Homicide Squad Chief Is Demoted In Shakeup

Sergt. Flaherty Put In Charge; Darnall Given Old Rank, Sent to Check Unit

Acting Lieut. George Darnall was removed from command of the Detective Bureau's homicide squad yesterday and returned to his rank of detective sergeant in the first of a series of personnel shakeups expected to result from the Congressional investigation of the Police Department.

Detective Sergt. Jeremiah Flaherty was named acting lieutenant and placed in charge of the homicide squad. He was formerly a member of the check squad. Detective Sergt. Richard Felber also was transferred from the check squad to the homicide squad. Darnall was transferred to the check squad.

The changes, recommended by Ira Keck, acting chief of detectives, and approved in the late afternoon by Police Chief Brown, become effective at 8 a. m. today.

"A lot of other changes are to be made," said Keck, but he declined to particularize.

Disclosing that Felber had protested his transfer to the homicide squad, Keck declared:

"The day has passed when the men in the detective office pick their jobs. They will work where I put them and they will produce—or else."

In the Congressional investigation of the Police Department the Detective Bureau was described by Chief Brown and others as "the weakest link" and Darnall bore the brunt of much criticism, chiefly for his handling of investigation of the rape-murder of Jessie Elizabeth Strieff, War Department employe.

Two weeks ago Darnall began his twenty-fifth year as a member of the force. In 1919, two years after appointment to the department, he was made a precinct detective. He was made a detective sergeant in 1921 and had been in charge of the homicide squad for eight years.

The squad's new head, Flaherty, is 42 years old and was appointed to the force in 1922. He became a precinct detective in 1927, a detective sergeant in 1930 and joined the homicide squad nine years ago.

Darnall holds 13 commendations. Flaherty holds 19, 5 for solving murders.

Felber, a former United States Marine, joined the force in 1930, became a precinct detective in 1937

Knudsen Restores Car Wrecked When It Crashed Into His

By the Associated Press

Los Angeles, July 15.—The duties and cares of heading the Office of Production Management haven't made William S. Knudsen forget he once built automobiles.

The former production head of General Motors was riding to a shipyard inspection last night. His limousine paused for a railroad crossing. Crash——

A jallopy stopped only after hitting Knudsen's car.

Out hopped Knudsen and his companions, brushing themselves off.

Parts of the jallopy were scattered about the pavement. The bumper was hanging by one bolt. The headlights were dangling by their cords. The fenders had accordion pleats.

Fifteen minutes later, a dusty Knudsen had restored the collection of metal to at least a reasonble facsimile of its former self. Then, with grimy hands, he helped his chauffeur straighten the battered fender of his own car and was off again.

The Post Regrets

Everything was going fine, and then Time Magazine spilled the beans.

The current issue says:

". . . The Washington Post, the Capital's sole big-league newspaper . . ."

And Time continues:

"Since Eugene Meyer bought The Post, sick and tottering with a circulation of 51,534 back in 1933 . . . its news lineage has gone up 68%, advertising lineage up 111%, circulation up 173% (140,536 copies average daily for last month).

"Besides it has become a journal of national importance, a reading must on Capitol Hill, an institution of high character and independence, a force for good in its bailiwick."

This, of course, is no news to Post readers.

But, strangely enough, it was startling news to The Post staff.

For eight years this staff has been fed on a Spartan diet of criticism. All hands have joined in.

Nothing it did was good enough. Everything had to be better. Reporting had to be tops. Every man had to be the authority in his field. Pictures had to be better. Editorials had to be better. Sports had to be better.

News coverage had to be better and five services were acquired. Topnotch commentators were added.

Naturally, Post readers saw the transformation, but the staff simply plugged ahead. Sweat and tears.

Then Time said The Post was tops!

The staff sat down and said, "Who, us?" and instantly formed a mutual admiration society.

It was terrible.

The Post asks cooperation of its readers in overcoming this temporary lapse.

If we did not cover your pet story, write to The Editor and pan us thoroughly. If we lack snap and punch, let us have it. If stories are not objective or editorials wander all over the lot, let the adjectives fly.

There can be no stretched hat-bands around The Post!

This newspaper has just started to grow.

Man Battles Clerks, Police In Mail Coach

Fight Halts Train Here; Inspectors Probe Presence in Car

A white man who had been beaten semi-conscious was under police guard in Gallinger Hospital last night while police and postal inspectors investigated his presence in the mail coach of a Chicago-bound Baltimore & Ohio Railroad train as it pulled out of Union Station last night.

The man who carried a Social Security card bearing the name of Strother Travis Brown, 40, of Sperryville, Va., battled five mail clerks, one of whom pulled the emergency cord, halting the train a mile from the station near the New York Avenue overpass. The train was held up 25 minutes while police took the man in custody.

He was taken to the hospital with severe head injuries, suffered when the clerks and police tried to subdue him.

Police Rush Reserves

When the train was stopped, one of the clerks, it was reported, yelled to a nearby watchtower that the train was being robbed. Metropolitan police immediately rushed all available scout cars and motorcycle police to the scene.

A. J. Kaskeskie, of the police traffic division, first officer to arrive, and M. M. Booth, special railway detective, pulled the intruder off the mail car. Although injured in the fight, the man, who weighs about 200 pounds, was still grappling with the clerks. The two officers held him with difficulty until the Twelfth Precinct patrol arrived. He was taken to Casualty Hospital and later transferred to Gallinger.

Phillip Pettel, 65, of 46 New York Avenue, who saw the train halt, ran to the scene, and quoted one of the

D. C. Mourns Hazen's Death; Rites Friday

(Hazen's History, Page 8.)

Official and civic Washington will pay final tribute Friday to Melvin Colvin Hazen, 73-year-old president of the Board of District Commissioners, who died yesterday as he always said he wanted to die—"in harness." Death came from a heart attack shortly before 11 a. m. while he worked at his desk in the District Building.

His death was described by President Roosevelt as a very great loss to the District—a comment echoed in the expressions of sorrow which came from city leaders in and out of the District Building.

At his press conference, Mr. Roosevelt commented almost immediately on Mr. Hazen's death and said he was very sorry to hear of it. He said he wanted to use a term of affection and referred to the Commissioner as the grand old man of the District.

Mr. Roosevelt said the term was very well bestowed and that he didn't know of anyone in Washington who was more public spirited in his long years of office dating back to the Woodrow Wilson Administration. The President said Mr. Hazen would be much missed.

Funeral services on Friday will be held at 1 p. m. in the Hamline Methodist Church, Sixteenth and Allison Streets Northwest. The body will then be taken to Manassas, Va., to rest beside Mrs. Hazen in the family cemetery.

The end was dramatic. Mr. Hazen appeared at his office shortly after 9 a. m. yesterday, cane in hand and the inevitable cigarette drooping from the corner of his mouth.

He seemed even more spry than usual and a few minutes before his

Roosevelt Calls for $6,500,000 To Build Offices in Suburbs

By Robert De Vore

Post Staff Writer

President Roosevelt yesterday asked Congress to appropriate $6,500,000 for a new defense office building program in Washington suburbs as the House voted overwhelmingly against naming a committee of its own members with power to draft legislation to transfer Federal agencies to other cities.

Congress was told the new buildings would be erected on Government-owned land near Beltsville, Suitland and Bethesda, Md., and in nearby Virginia.

If approved, the program would bring to $17,000,000 the total estimated cost of recent Federal building, either projected or already started, necessary to meet expansion of national defense agencies.

The House smothered by a 203-to-72 record vote, the Sabath resolution to name a five-member committee to investigate all aspects of the Federal office-space problem in the Capital, and to draft remedial legislation if necessary.

Its action, however, failed to halt the Congressional drive to move nondefense agencies outside the Capital or to stem House sentiment to investigate crowding of agencies in the city. Representative Lanham (Democrat), of Texas, chairman of the Public Buildings and Grounds Committee, announced the start of hearings sometime next week on two bills authorizing the President to transfer Government offices to "Chicago or elsewhere."

The bills are sponsored by Representative Sabath (Democrat) of Chicago. Lanham said reports on the proposal have been received by his committee from virtually every department of the Government, but

Up to Congress

By John G. Norris

Post Staff Writer

President Roosevelt declared yesterday that the Army will disintegrate if Congress refuses to extend the service of selectees, Reserve officers and National Guardsmen.

He said at a press conference that unless legislation is passed authorizing the citizen-soldiers to be held in uniform for the duration of the emergency two-thirds of the Nation's Army will return to civilian life and have to be replaced by untrained recruits. That is why the situation is so serious, the President said.

Declaring that the responsibility is squarely up to Congress, Mr. Roosevelt said the controversial issue really is a simple one. It is whether in times like these you want to disintegrate the Army or not.

Sees No Breach of Faith

The Chief Executive challenged the argument of those who contend that extension of the 12-month service period would violate an implied contract made by the Government last year to hold the men in uniform only for that period. This contention has been made by some of his own leaders in Congress.

Retention of the men would not be breaking faith with them, Mr. Roosevelt said, because the Draft Act must be considered as a whole. Congress last year was unwilling to commit itself more than 12 months ahead, and limited the service for that period with the added proviso that they could be retained if Con-

Husband Spirits Away Bride Whose Father Seeks Annulment

Insurance Executive's Daughter, 18, Taken Barefoot From Home

By the Associated Press

Kansas City, July 15.—Police issued a pickup order today for a 1941 green station wagon and its teen-age occupants after Walter J. Bales, jr., reported his daughter had been taken barefoot from the family mansion by her husband of 13 days and spirited away in the machine.

The station wagon was his, Bales, an insurance executive, told officers in asking them to locate his 18-year-old daughter, Lenore, whose elopement with Lynn V. Bowman, 19, resulted in an annulment suit two days after the ceremony.

The girl, a strikingly beautiful brunette, and her husband both are University of Kansas City students.

Police Sergt. William Parker issued the pickup order and gave this version of the incident:

Bowman entered the kitchen of the Bales home in the exclusive country club plaza district about 10 a. m. He told the cook he had come for Lenore and admonished her against calling Bales.

The youth went in search of his bride and soon reappeared in the kitchen, his hands encircling the girl's wrists. Her feet were bare, and she winced as she stepped onto the hot concrete driveway.

Bowman led the girl to the station wagon, and they drove away as Lenore called out to the cook to notify her father.

Bales confirmed that his daughter was missing, but declined comment.

LENORE BALES BOWMAN

Lynn E. Bowman, the youth's father, said his son had been rebuffed in repeated attempts to talk with his bride whom he had not seen since he took her home the night of their marriage. The ceremony was performed at nearby Olathe, Kans.

The elder Bowman, a plumbing company operator, said he thought his son merely wanted to discuss the annulment suit with the girl. The petition, filed in behalf of the bride, stated neither Bowman nor Miss Bales had parental consent to marry, that she had returned to her home and had not lived with her husband as a wife.

Nazis Smash Toward Moscow, But Russians Report Drive Aimed at Leningrad Crushed

Panzers Destroyed Section by Section In North, Soviet Communique Says

By the Associated Press

Moscow (Wednesday), July 16.—The Red army was reported early today to have wiped out a great segment of German forces driving toward Leningrad while successfully holding the Nazi tide trying to break through to Moscow and Kiev.

The Soviet information bureau communique acknowledged that all-day fighting yesterday in the Pskov-Porkhov, Vitebsk and Novograd-Volinski sectors took a heavy toll of lives on both sides. It gave this picture of the battlefront:

In the Pskov-Porkhov area, 175 miles south of Leningrad, German motorized troops were encircled by Soviet soldiers who destroyed section after section. Red troops seized a great quantity of Nazi tanks, armored cars and other equipment.

In the Vitebsk sector, 300 miles west of Moscow, "fighting continued all day long against motorized and mechanized units which endeavored in vain to penetrate to the east."

Losses on Both Sides Heavy

"The fighting continues with heavy losses on both sides," the communique said.

In the Ukraine, far to the south, the Soviets said their troops stubbornly countered German attempts to break through in the Novograd-Volinski area toward Kiev, 120 miles to the east.

The Russians indicated German advance units had swept ahead in this sector, but that these were tank crews who now found themselves in a dangerous spot because of the inability of German infantry to follow them.

In an undisclosed sector the communique said Red troops surprised and destroyed two German infantry battalions of perhaps 2,000 men moving along a narrow road where Russian artillery were lying in ambush.

(German news dispatches—but not the high command—claimed Nazi troops were menacing Novgorod north of the Pskov-Porkhov sector on the road to Leningrad. Leningrad is only about 100 miles from Novgorod. The official agency D. N. B. also told of Nazi units penetrating to the gates of Kiev in the Ukraine.)

The Soviet air force was said to have destroyed 52 German planes yesterday, losing only 24 planes.

Red airmen also bombed the Rumanian oil city of Ploesti, north of Bucharest, and the Rumanian ports of Sulina and Tulcea.

London Paper Says Goering Split With Hitler on War in East

By Joseph S. Evans, Jr.

Copyright by New York Tribune, Inc.

London (Wednesday), July 16.—Recent reports by Moscow radio of Hermann Goering's difference with Adolf Hitler were correct, according to an article this morning in Die Zeitung, German language newspaper published here.

It declared that Reichsmarshal Goering, while not in a concentration camp, has retired to his country house, Karinhall, around which Heinrich Himmler, Gestapo chief, has drawn a cordon of secret police, while practical command of the Luftwaffe is in the hands of Gen. Field Marshal Milch, who is directly responsible to Hitler.

The origin of the rift, the article said, followed the collapse of France, when Goering urged the immediate invasion of England, but Hitler, who did not agree, followed the advice of Field Marshal Keitel, chief of staff, to give the exhausted army a pause for rest and reorganization. Admiral Raeder also influenced Hitler, by declaring that the enterprise would be hopeless in view of Britain's naval strength.

Goering, then living in Paris, refused to go back to Berlin, the story went on, and his name thereupon disappeared from German

Berlin, July 15 (AP).—Friends of Reichsmarshal Goering revealed tonight he interrupted his work at the Luftwaffe GHQ long enough yesterday to pay a visit to Linz, Austrian town on the Danube where Adolf Hitler spent many years of his youth.

Goering inspected various industrial plants and mingled with the workers, the informants said.

Price Controls Being Drafted, President Hints

Bills Nearly Ready Would Also Regulate Rents, He Indicates

Sweeping legislation to control rents and prices of virtually every commodity the average man or woman buys is nearly ready for Congressional action, President Roosevelt indicated yesterday following a conference with Leon Henderson, office of Price Administration and Civilian Supply director.

The Chief Executive told his press conference that legislation to control rents and prices, perhaps couched in two or more bills, was in preparation and he admitted at the same time that the question of freezing wages was under consideration.

The President said that he has always felt that if you put a ceiling on the prices for food and clothing you should also limit rents.

He did not indicate plainly whether he favored a flat system of freezing all prices as of a certain date or a more selective measure, but he told a reporter who asked him to express a preference between the two methods that it all depends on the article and on the locality involved.

The plan to freeze all prices as of a given date is one sponsored by Bernard M. Baruch, World War Industries Board chairman and a constant adviser to the President. Mr. Roosevelt said yesterday, in answer to a question, that he never had heard of the "Baruch plan" for freezing prices.

On the broad question of freezing wages, the President told a questioner that all he could say was that the Administration was trying to keep things pretty well in balance. He did not explain whether this meant that wages would be permitted to move freely upward or would be controlled as part of the move to curb inflation.

British Cheered By Sharp Drop In Ship Losses

Decrease in Sinkings Seen as Turning Point In Battle of Atlantic

By the Associated Press

London, July 15.—Britain drew encouragement today from the announcement of a sharp curtailment in shipping losses and set this down as a concrete indication that the tide was turning in the battle of the Atlantic chiefly as a result of increased air and surface power at sea.

The loss of British, Allied and neutral vessels for the month of June was placed at 79 ships with gross tonnage of 329,296. This represented a decrease of 29 ships and 168,551 tons from the May figures.

Some of the factors credited by neutral naval observers for the reduction of shipping losses are:

1. Increased patrols of flying boats, mainly United States-built Catalinas, which protect convoys and scour sea-lanes seeking out U-boats and long-range bombers.
2. Introduction of flotillas of corvettes to the convoys, releasing more costly and less numerous destroyers for fleet duty.
3. Short summer nights limiting the submarines' most favorable hours of attack.
4. United States patrols which take some burden off British convoys.
5. Replacement of shipping with newer, faster vessels better able to escape submarines through speed and maneuverability.
6. Speedier turnarounds in ports for cargo carriers, thus upsetting U-boat time tables.
7. Toughness of British merchant seamen, some of whom have been torpedoed three and four times but return for more.

"We may have been short of ships at times in the last year," one officer said, "but we have never been short of men to serve them."

Path of Destruction

By the Associated Press

Berlin, July 15.—The Luftwaffe was reported today to have blasted a path of blazing destruction ahead of advancing German armies, now declared to be close to Novgorod, just 100 miles southeast of Leningrad, and in possession of the easternmost bunkers of the Stalin Line on the road to Moscow.

D. N. B., German official news agency, said strong Nazi air units effectively bombed the highway from Smolensk to Moscow and the railway network in that area while land forces were reported to have captured vital Red army defense positions in the Vitebsk area, some 300 miles from the Russian capital.

A number of railway stations and spur lines and pontoon bridges were smashed in this sector, the news agency asserted, adding that in other sections of the vast battle line Soviet rear communications and supply bases were heavily assaulted in support of attacking Nazi infantrymen.

In the Smolensk area alone D. N. B. said the Luftwaffe destroyed 33 tanks, 500 trucks and a great number of guns.

Red Column Surprised

Between Chernigov and Brayansk, D. N. B. related, rail lines, depots and rail yards were destructively attacked by German airmen. It claimed 23 engines and 1,000 freight cars were destroyed yesterday.

East of Gomel, it said, the raiders surprised a column of Soviet troops and inflicted heavy losses among both men and horses.

Within 24 hours, it went on, German chasers shot down 72 Russian planes and destroyed an additional 150 on the ground, bringing Soviet plane losses to date to 7,182.

In the northwest German armies were reported to have thrust steel

Hopkins on Way To London; Mission Is Held Not Secret

High Administration sources disclosed last night that Harry Hopkins, supervisor of the lease-lend program and one of President Roosevelt's closest advisers on aid to Britain, had left for London.

Hopkins returned from England in February after a special trip to survey the war situation as the President's personal representative.

It was understood that Hopkins held no secret mission and would go back for another first-hand checkup on war developments abroad.

Deadlines Must Be Met

Reich Protests Refusal to Give Consuls More Time to Leave

Dr. Hans Thomsen, German Charge d'Affaires, protested to Acting Secretary of State Sumner Welles last night against this country's refusal to give Fritz Wiedemann and other Nazi consular officials more time to leave the country.

The German protest was immediately rejected and a few hours later Wiedemann and other Germans who refused to leave last Sunday for Japan from the Pacific Coast because the British held up their pledge of safe conduct, were sailing for Germany from New York Harbor.

Another factor ruffling German-American relations during the day was a Stockholm report, printed in London, that Germany would break off diplomatic relations with the United States within the next 48 hours. The State Department and the German Embassy both denied knowledge of the reports.

Thomsen lodged his protest in person.

He recalled that the consular group, including Wiedemann, consul general in San Francisco, and Dr. Johannes Borchers, consul general in New York, had gone to the West Coast two weeks ago to sail for home via Japan, in compliance with State Department orders that they leave the country by July 15—yesterday.

At the last moment they had to cancel these sailing plans because a British guarantee did not arrive in time. The Germans flew to New York yesterday preparatory to sailing on the transport West Point, which is taking some 500 German and Italian consular officials and employes with their families to Lisbon, Portugal.

Thomsen was told, the State Department said, that the German government had been given ample notification of the July 15 deadline and that the orders given could not be changed.

Russia, but Not Creed, an Ally, Churchill Says

By the Associated Press

London, July 15.—Prime Minister Churchill today wiped away all fine distinctions concerning Britain's relationship with Russia in the war against Germany by declaring the new British-Russian pact "is of course an alliance and the Russian people are now our allies."

However, Churchill quickly added to his statement to the House of Commons that it did not mean an alliance with Communism. He said:

"If this Hitler, in his insane megalomania, has driven Russia to fight him in self-defense, we bless her arms and wish her all success without for a moment identifying ourselves with her communistic creed. Hitler made her his enemy and not us friendly to her creed."

Showing irritation over last week's three-day debate in Commons on war production, Churchill declared statements criticizing British production had caused serious harm abroad. He promised another day of discussion soon at which the government would be prepared to answer.

"The statement that our industry is working only to 75 per cent of some unspecified standard and that the ministry of aircraft production is in chaos from top to bottom gives the impression in the United States, the dominions and particularly in Australia that these are ill managed and we are not doing our best." he said. "These sensational statements do serious harm wherever they go.

"Moreover, they do not at all represent the immense and well-represented efforts which are yielding remarkable results in almost every field of war production. . . .

"It is not like ordinary party peacetime debates. These are very serious times. I have given directions that allegations of any serious substance should be sent to departments concerned in order that they may be examined."

Biggest Counterattack

By the United Press

Moscow, July 15.—The Red army in its biggest counterdrive of the war has hurled the Germans back 20 miles from the Dnepr River, which protects Russia's main defense line on the vital central front about 350 miles southwest of Moscow, the official newspaper Izvestia said today.

Izvestia's correspondent at the front telephoned the German "panzer" forces, instead of breaking the Stalin line at all important points as the Nazis claim, had been driven in retreat west of the Dnepr in a rout of infantry, tanks and artillery.

The defeat of the Germans was said to have occurred in the Bobruisk sector where, according to the Soviet high command's communique early Monday, Russian troops recaptured the key towns of Rogachev and Zhlobin along the Dnepr. Rogachev is 32 miles east of Bobruisk and Zhlobin is 12 miles south of Rogachev.

After the battle, which resulted in a rout of "fleeing, demoralized crowds of German soldiers," several miles of the battlefield were said to have been strewn with Nazi dead.

Rogachev Looted

Izvestia's war correspondent said the Russian counter-drive in the central sector cleared the west bank of the Dnepr at "several places" north of Rogachev after silencing German artillery and routing tank columns.

Citizens returning to Rogachev last night were said to have found the city looted and many homes burned out. The Rogachev highway was said to be choked with captured and disabled German tanks.

Pravda, official organ of the Communist Party, asserted the Russian air force was using a new light dive-bomber, better armored and faster than any German fighter plane.

The pilot of one of the Russian dive-bombers was said to have battled a squadron of 15 German fighters, shot down two of them and scattered all the others.

Telling of the German rout on the southern Bessarabian front, Tuesday's early communique said that a German-Rumanian infantry regiment and two artillery regiments invaded Soviet territory, to be met by crashing Soviet artillery fire and a tank and infantry charge.

Column Seized With Panic

"The enemy was mowed down by machinegun and rifle fire from the flanks by our infantry," the communique reported.

"The column was seized with panic. Trucks, guns, horses and soldiers blocked the road. Soviet gunners rushed up and turned the Germans' own guns against them."

The communique also described the destruction of six German tanks by a Russian armored train when the German "panzer" forces tried to seize a railroad station near the front.

Destruction of 27 German planes on an unidentified airdrome by three waves of Soviet bombers in a night attack was reported, with the attacking Russians losing only two planes. Fuel tanks and Nazi planes set ablaze in the first attack lighted the target for the second and third waves, it was stated.

President Warns of Axis Peace Feelers

President Roosevelt warned Americans yesterday that persons in Europe or the Far East were planting peace ideas among well-meaning Americans.

Indicating clearly that any peace offer that Germany or Japan may make will be quickly rebuffed, the President said that well-meaning persons rush down to Washington nearly every week with peace plans they have secured from foreign sources.

Mr. Roosevelt's warning came as comment on a speech in which Mayor Fiorello LaGuardia of New York said yesterday that Hitlerian peace proposals have been presented to leaders of an American peace movement and will be made public shortly.

The peace feelers he referred to, it was said, would be calculated to spread disunity among the American republics.

The expected peace offensive by the Axis will be similar in nature to recent appeasement attempts reported by The Post from Hyde Park, N. Y., June 28. At that time it was learned that Nazi proposals that the United States and Great Britain join Germany in making war on Russia had reached the President and that he had rejected them.

The President said yesterday at his press conference that nearly always the bearers of such peace proposals are well-meaning persons. But sometimes, he said, the overtures look like a plant.

Liner Carrying Axis Officials Starts Voyage

Copyright by New York Times

New York, July 15.—While a Coast Guard plane hovered watchfully overhead, the Army transport West Point pulled out of her berth at Pier 61, North River, at 5:32 p. m. today on the first stage of her voyage to Lisbon with a passenger list made up exclusively of Germans and Italians leaving this country in compliance with orders of the State Department.

The huge 26,000-ton vessel, until recently the luxury liner America, steamed only as far as quarantine, however, and dropped anchor to await the arrival of a party of 16 German consular officials, headed by Capt. Fritz Wiedemann and Dr. Johannes Borchers, who were flying here from the West Coast in three chartered planes.

As the West Point lay at anchor she was guarded by three Coast Guard patrol boats and two police launches, which refused to let any unauthorized craft approach her.

Raymond Muir of the protocol division of the State Department, who was to make the crossing on the West Point, and Jesse E. Saugstad, assistant chief of the division of international communications, who are in charge of arrangements at this end, expected that it might take them until daybreak to complete their check of the sailing list and give Capt. Kelley his sailing orders.

430 on Board

Among the 430 passengers on board the huge, drab-gray vessel when she pulled out of her slip, were four Germans who had been released from custody by the State and Justice Departments in exchange for four Americans held by the Nazis abroad. They were Dr. Kurth Reith, one-time German minister to Austria; Dr. Manfred Zapp and Guenther Town, of the German Transocean News Agency, and Eugene Buerk, under indictment in Milwaukee for activities as a German propagandist.

Sumner Welles, Acting Secretary of State, revealed in Washington that they would be exchanged for Jay Allen and Richard Hottelet, American newspaper correspondents, and Frank Nelson and Ivan Jacobsen, employes of the United States consulate at Oslo, Norway.

Four 5-inch guns, two mounted forward and two aft, were visible on the upper decks of the transport as tugs nosed her out into the middle of the North River. A number of antiaircraft guns and searchlights could also be seen. Members of the crew said that the West Point also had been fitted with a protection against magnetic mines.

Syria's Military Facilities Go To British

By Ralph E. Heinzen
United Press Staff Writer

Vichy, July 15.—France had turned over to Britain all military facilities and resources of Syria and Lebanon, according to terms of the armistice announced here today.

The agreement signed last night provided for British and Free French occupation of all the mandated Levant states and the surrender by France of virtually all rights and privileges useful to Britain in strengthening her position in the middle east.

A government spokesman said, however, that France was not abandining Syria and Lebanon or the League of Nations mandate over the territory where the French flag has flown since the Crusades.

"At the end of the war France will resume her role of mandatory power with full responsibility for arranging the future political independence of Syria and Lebanon," he said.

While the pact provided for France turning over all ships, planes and fuel, an Aleppo dispatch printed in Paris said the French had burned gasoline reserves and destroyed stores of ammunition before asking armistice terms.

It said the French planes in the Middle East were flown to North Africa or Turkey, while warships, tankers and freighters steamed to Alexandretta.

As a token of respect the British permitted the French troops to keep their sidearms. Prisoners on both sides were ordered freed at once.

Goering-Hitler Split Held True

propaganda. In the spring of 1941, there was a reconciliation between Goering and Hitler, and the former's prestige rose after the occupation of Crete, the paper added.

After Rudolf Hess's flight to England there was great nervousness in the Nazi hierarchy with Hitler giving an order to Himmler to keep a close watch over every Nazi leader, asserted the article, adding that Goering showed great anger at this autocratic order of Hitler.

A definite breach was reached when the attack on Russia came under discussion, the paper said. Despite the Balkan campaigns and the capture of Crete, Goering's policy, the article stated, was to build up his air strategy more strongly around the western offensive bases. Army views were divided, it added, the younger men favoring the attack, while older ones feared a war on two fronts. But Himmer, Goebbels and Ribbentrop were said to have favored the war.

Goering held that if Russia were attacked he could no longer assume responsibility in the air in western Europe, a view which was taken over by Hitler in distorted form in his June 22 proclamation, the paper asserted. Hitler twisted Goering's statement in the same way he has twisted declarations by foreign statesmen, the article continued.

The relevant passages in the proclamation read:

"Thus (namely after the alleged Russian deployment on the German eastern frontier) came about the result intended by the British and Soviet Russian cooperation, viz., the tying up of such powerful German forces in the east that a radical conclusion of the war in the west, particularly in the air, could no longer be vouched for by the German high command."

Those behind the scenes were consequently able to recognize in this hardly disguised reproach that relations between Hitler and Goering were very troubled, the newspaper went on.

Goering thereupon was declared to have informed Hitler that he would retire from the supreme command of the Luftwaffe. Hitler accepted this and said that he would command the Luftwaffe himself.

For obvious reasons such a change would not be published. Goering has been completely neglected by Goebbels propaganda.

The report that Goering is again suffering from his old disease has been spread in high military and party quarters to explain away the position.

It remains to be seen whether the breach between Hitler and Goering is final, or whether it will again be overcome, at all events superficially and for propaganda purposes.

Spy Charges Call Germany Conspirator

By the Associated Press

New York, July 15.—The German Reich was named today as a coconspirator in an espionage indictment against 3[illegible] persons, rounded up in a Federal Bureau of Investigation spy hunt last month.

The indictment said:

"The defendants conspired with each other and with the government of the German Reich and with others."

The defendants were ordered to trial in September.

Six other persons similarly were indicted, but United States Attorney Harold Kennedy said they were at large in foreign countries, including Germany and Portugal.

The 33 were accused of conspiring to transmit information to a foreign government, and 31 of these were additionally accused of acting as agents for a foreign government without having registered with the State Department.

In intricate detail, the indictments, handed up to Federal Judge Robert A. Inch in Brooklyn Federal Court, accused the defendants of having recruited agents, gathered data, received information, dispatched it and paid agents for their assistance. Their activities were dated from 1936, the indictments said.

Europe-bound ship crews, the indictments charged, were used as messengers and names of towns in Germany often were employed as passwords.

Most of the arrests were made last June 29 in what FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover described as the biggest spy roundup in the history of this country.

A number already have pleaded guilty. Some accused persons, arrested in Western cities, are yet to be brought to Brooklyn for trial, Federal attaches said.

29 Indicted For Plotting U.S. Revolution

By the Associated Press

St. Paul, July 15.—A Federal grand jury, indicting 29 persons today, charged to the Socialist Workers Party a plot to overthrow the United States Government by a revolution modeled after that in Russia in 1917.

The mass indictment—officials called it the largest peacetime roundup in the history of the Nation—alleged seditious conspiracy, and violation of the Smith Act of 1940 which makes it an offense to advocate overthrow of the Government.

Union Leaders Included

Among those indicted are four New York members of the Socialist Workers Party—James P. Cannon, national secretary; Felix Morrow, editor of The Militant, party newspaper; Albert Goldman, member of the editorial board of the publication, and Farrell Dobbs, national labor secretary.

A raid on Twin Cities offices of the party in which documents were war ticket; Alfred Russell, secre- seized but no arrests made preceded the grand jury inquiry.

Others named included Dr. Grace Carlson, St. Paul, Minnesota organizer for the party and unsuccessful candidate for the United States Senate on the Trotzkyite antitary of the Omaha branch of the Socialist Workers Party, and a number of officials of the powerful General Drivers Union, 544, of Minneapolis.

At request of Victor E. Anderson, United States attorney, Federal Judge Robert C. Bell set $5,000 bail for each defendant.

Others Indicted

The others indicted were:

Vincent Ray Dunne, Carl Skoglung, Miles B. Dunne, Oscar Coover, Harry Deboer, Jake Cooper, Carlos Hudson, Max Geldman, Edward Palmquist, Rose Seiler, Oscar Schoenfeld, George Frosig, Emil Hanson, Dorothy Schultz, Kelly Postal, Clarence Hamel, Carl Kuehn, Roy Orgon, Ray Rainbolt, Grant Dunne, Harold Swanson, Walter Hagstrom and Nick Wagner.

Vincent Dunne is one of three brothers who head the powerful local truck drivers union which recently has been the center of a jurisdiction fight between the American Federation of Labor and the Congress of Industrial Organizations. The union bolted the A. F. L. a month ago. Then A. F. L. national heads came here, and Dan Tobin, international president, charged the Dunnes tried to lead the group into the C. I. O. because they faced ouster proceedings following his investigation of radical accusations. The local was given a C. I. O. charter.

In New York, Cannon said that the indictments represented "the cynical payment of a political debt owed by Franklin D. Roosevelt to Daniel J. Tobin, president of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters."

"To Help Tobin"

He said the initial object was "to help Tobin in his fight against the rank and file of the Minneapolis teamsters who have revolted against his dictatorial rule and gone over to the C. I. O."

Goldman, described by the Socialist Workers Party as one-time attorney for Leon Trotsky, said that he considered the indictments a violation of civil rights.

"They make mockery of the claim of the Roosevelt government that it is in the war on behalf of democracy," he asserted.

The President's Day

By International News Service

BUNDLE FROM BRITAIN: Bright and early yesterday morning, tall, loose-limbed Lord Halifax, British Ambassador and Chancellor of Oxford, stalked into the Executive office with a bundle from Britain under his arm. In the bundle was the cap and gown which goes with the honorary degree presented to the President by Oxford University at Harvard commencement exercises.

TAXES, PRICES AND TAXES: After the Ambassador and the cap and gown had been taken out of the Presidential office in came the tax league for a lengthy pow-wow on taxes. Secretary Morgenthau, Budgeter Harold Smith, Guy Sullivan, Congressmen Doughton and Cooper and Mr. Roosevelt talked "in a general way" about the current tax bill before the House.

TRIANGLE: OPAC's Administrator Leon Henderson, Presidential "Leg Man" Wayne Coyne and the President held a three-way, perfectly triangular huddle on price control—and necessity for some legislative teeth to back up Controller Henderson's bark.

BEER, CHEESE AND BUTCHERS: Received at the White House yesterday was a packet of cheese and a case of beer from Wisconsin's Gov. Heil. Mr. Roosevelt tasted the cheese, hasn't got around to the beer as yet.

IT'S A DATE: OPMer Sidney Hillman was scratched from the sheet of Presidential appointments, so Mr. Roosevelt decided to have lunch rather early, called up his daughter-in-law, Mrs. Elliott Roosevelt, at the White House, and asked her to come on over and share his desk for lunch.

spearheads to the vicinity of Novgorod, a city of 35,000, with this offensive still going full blast.

All this, indicating that the northern Nazi offensive was drawing measurably closer to Leningrad itself and that a tremendously important break-through had been concluded at the Red center, was reported in censored military dispatches from the front and by the official German news agency D. N. B.

High Command Reticent

The high command itself continued to withhold details, simply reporting "progress" on the whole of the eastern front.

From the Vitebsk area, D. N. B. reported that all fortifications of the Stalin Line in that region had been breached and that the most easterly positions had been occupied by the Germans since Monday evening.

The main Red bunker, overcome by German infantrymen in 36 hours of fighting, was described as a great block of cement and steel with subterranean rooms and so camouflaged as to be unrecognizable.

As to operations on the Ukrainian front there was no official information on the progress of the drive on Kiev, but it was said here that the city's fall was imminent. Before Kiev, the Russians were reported to have used hundreds of giant tanks of 50 to 70 tons.

Strong Resistance

That the Nazi offensive toward Kiev had run into strong resistance between the towns of Zhitomir and Berdichev, both roughly 100 miles from Kiev to the southwest, was acknowledged by D. N. B.

The agency reported, however, that the best efforts of hastily reinforced Russian troops were in vain, and said that strong Soviet forces west of Berdichev had been entrapped and subsequently destroyed or captured.

In the far North, German and Finnish columns striking from northern Finland reported the annihilation of many troops of two Soviet battalions and the capture of the rest.

All dispatches from the front stressed that the German advance was so rapid there was hardly a pause for sleeping and overhauling equipment.

"The infantrymen," said one report, "had nothing to eat or drink because only munitions could be brought up."

Heavier Taxes Due Next Year, Roosevelt Says

By Robert C. Albright
Post Staff Writer

President Roosevelt yesterday forecast heavier taxes next year and a new tax bill every year during the emergency.

His warning of more taxes to come included no recommendation for a boost in the pending $3,500,000,000 revenue measure.

But Congressional tax spokesmen who conferred with him earlier called a meeting of the Ways and Means Committee tomorrow to consider a policy change.

Complete secrecy screened the move but speculation turned on possible revision of the committee's excess profits and corporate tax proposals into closer alignment with Treasury views.

May Face Revision

Indications that the bill later may face a more general revision came with reports that the committee now is almost evenly divided on proposals for joint income tax returns by husbands and wives. Both Speaker Rayburn and Majority Leader McCormack were reported opposed to the provision.

President Roosevelt at his press conference replied in the negative when asked if the joint return issue was discussed at his conference with congressional and departmental fiscal experts.

Nor was there any discussion of going beyond the present $3,500,000,000 total of the bill, the President added. He said tax legislation was discussed in a general way, but no decisions were reached.

Taxes to finance new billions in defense appropriations recommended since the present tax bill was projected was a matter to be met in the tax bill next winter, he said. A new tax bill may have to be drafted each year in times like these, he commented.

Besides Chairman Doughton of the Ways and Means Committee and Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau, participating in the White House tax talks wer- Representative Cooper (Democrat), of Tennessee; Budget Director Harold Smith and John L. Sullivan, Assistant Secretary of the Treasury.

Excess Profits Tax

The bill's excess profits tax provisions would raise about $1,202,300,000, or $1,314,000,000 when combined with corporate income taxes. The Treasury has been represented as dissatisfied with the section. The Treasury had asked that invested capital be used as the sole base for computing excess profits. The committee had retained as well the more popular average earnings base.

While all declined comment on subject matter of the President's tax conference, it was believed likely the committee may be asked to devise a formula striking more deeply into defense profits. Some have estimated that between $300,000,000 and $400,000,000 additional could be raised from this source.

Once the measure is opened for revision, Representative Buck (Democrat), of California, will present his independent motion for reconsideration of the controversial provision compelling joint income tax returns by husbands and wives. The joint return section was originally adopted by a 15-to-9 vote, but shifts in the position of the committee are said to have reduced this margin to 13 to 12.

Should the Buck motion succeed, knocking a $304,000,000 hole in the bill, informed committee members said it would precipitate a new search for revenue that might lead to higher individual surtaxes or stiff excises on gasoline, beer and tobacco. To stave off a long controversy that might indefinitely delay progress of the measure, Doughton and some other ranking committeemen reportedly favored holding the lid on the bill largely as now written.

It was announced yesterday by the Treasury that the Italian freighter Aussa had been seized by customs collectors in Hoboken, N. J., in an action preparatory to confiscation by the United States Government.

The Aussa was among the ships sabotaged but forfeiture had been delayed by questions of jurisdiction which have now been decided.

OPM and A. F. L. Agree on Plan To Fix Pay, Ban Defense Strikes

By Alfred Friendly
Post Staff Writer

A stabilization agreement, banning strikes, lockouts and jurisdictional disputes, and covering wages and working conditions for an estimated 1,500,000 workers on Federal construction projects, is expected to be announced soon by Sidney Hillman, associate director general of the Office of Production Management.

Tentative agreement has been reached with A. F. of L. building trades unions on the terms of the compact, it was learned. Patterned after the regional stabilization agreements in the defense shipbuilding industry, the construction agreement was negotiated with the unions by the OPM, Army, Navy Maritime Commission and Federal Works Agency.

Significant provisions of the accord, tending to keep construction labor costs within bounds, eliminate "punitive" double pay for time worked on Sunday, substituting instead, simple time and one-half for overtime, and permit the hiring of second and third shifts without premium or penalty payments.

Specific wage scales have not yet been completed in detail, although agreement has been reached for uniform wages on a regional basis, it was learned. The scales will equal prevailing wages in each area.

Besides barring labor disputes and jurisdictional controversies, such as the one earlier this year at Wright Field, Ohio, which have plagued Federal and private construction, the agreement also eliminates another past provocation of strikes by setting wages at a fixed level for the duration of a given job or for one year.

In the past, workers occasionally struck for higher pay in the midst of a project, creating difficulties for a contractor who had estimated his costs on the basis of previous wage rates.

In negotiating the agreement, Hillman followed the policy, enunciated recently at a press conference, of dealing with the "predominant" unions in the field, in this case, the A. F. of L. He thus ignored the C. I. O. United Construction Workers Organizing Committee, headed by A. D. Lewis, brother of the former C. I. O. president, John L. Lewis.

U. S. Consuls In Italy Leave For Portugal

Copyright by New York Times

Rome, July 15.—The staffs of all American consulates in Italy left this evening for Lisbon aboard a special train paid for by the American Government. Thus, today, for the first time since 1798, the United States has no consular representation in this country.

The passengers numbered 75, including 12 members of the American Legation in Athens, headed by Leslie E. Reed, charge d'affaires. The legation was ordered closed by the Italian government shortly after Italian troops replaced the Germans in Greece.

Marshall Appeals For Bill to Oust Unfit Officers

Gen. George C. Marshall, Army chief of staff, ysesterday asked the House Military Affairs Committee to approve legislation to permit the discharge of unfit officers.

He termed the present system for weeding out the inefficient a "joke" and declared that "there's no place in today's army for a man who is slowing down." Under the proposed system, involving a "plucking board" of five generals, only about 1 per cent of the Army's 13,000 officers will be retired or discharged, Marshall estimated.

"This isn't a question of persecution or star-chamber proceedings," he said. "It will be administered fairly by a board of competent officers."

Arms Output Must Be Hiked, Patterson Says

Undersecretary of War Robert P. Patterson declared yesterday that the past year has brought 'great progress" in American defense production but that it must go much farther.

But 15 per cent of the Nation's productive endeavor is now being devoted to defense work, the Army procurement chief told a Senate committee. Far more of our machines and labor must be turned to arms output, to equal and surpass other countries, he said.

"We must bear in mind that for total warfare of the kind raging in Europe today we can never have enough munitions," Patterson stated.

Cites Expansion

The assistant War Department head presented to Senate defense investigating committee a lengthy review of Army expansion during the fiscal year which ended June 30.

"I do not claim," he said, "that America as yet is adequately armed or prepared, or that we have become a thoroughly stocked and sufficiently productive arsenal for ourselves and for the other democratic nations as well. But we have gone a good distance.

"Before long the work which we have already done in planning and ordering equipment and in providing manufacturing facilities will produce in ever increasing measure the results which we all desire."

Expenditures Rise

Patterson noted that while the man-power of the Army has increased six-fold during the past year, to a strength of about 1,500,000, the arms for such a force when complete will involve an increase of about 30 times the materiel then on hand.

Expenditures rose during the year from an average of 3.6 million dollars per working day during the first quarter, he said, to an average daily outlay of 20.9 millions the last quarter.

"Our goal is not yet achieved," the undersecretary said, "but we are working with all the speed we can. We know that every day and every hour counts. We are now partially ready, and we hope to be completely ready when called upon."

President Asks To Extend Daylight Time

President Roosevelt asked Congress yesterday for authority to order a far-flung extension of daylight saving time, mentioning the District specifically as one of the areas where a serious power shortage makes quick action "imperative."

In a letter to Congress the President said his expert advisers see a need for immediate extension of summer daylight saving time to the Southeastern States—including the District—and they also advise year-round daylight saving time for parts, or all, of the country.

Simultaneously with his request to Congress, the President sent Governors of eight Southeastern States an urgent appeal to set clocks one hour ahead in their States, if legally possible.

The appeals went to Alabama, Virginia, Tennessee, South Carolina, North Carolina, Georgia, Mississippi and Florida. None was sent to the District Commissioners because, the White House explained, action by Congress would be necessary to order daylight saving time here.

Situation "Serious"

"The country is faced with a serious power shortage that is impeding the national defense program," Mr. Roosevelt declared in his letter to the southeastern Governors.

"The seriousness of the situation" in the southeastern region, including the District, he said, "makes it imperative that action be taken to alleviate the present shortage at the earliest possible moment."

The President, accordingly, asked Congress to pass a law permitting him to provide daylight saving time "upon such a regional or national basis, and for such part, or all, of the year," as the President may deem necessary in the interests of national defense.

Congress Gets Bill

The President sent Congress a draft of a proposed bill to carry out his plan and in it he asked for authority to set clocks as much as two hours ahead of the standard time.

Year-round daylight saving time would save annually 736,282,000 kilowatt-hours, the President estimated. Defense officials said this would be enough energy to operate one aluminum plant of 700,000,000 pounds capacity.

Reaction in Congress was mixed, with several Representatives of farm States asserting that the proposal might inconvenience farmers, but others supporting the request as necessary for the national defense.

Heads Back Time Plan if Area Adopts It

District government officials and civic spokesmen last night were almost unanimously in favor of President Roosevelt's proposal for the adoption of daylight saving time here and in Southeastern States.

Just as universally, however, they favored daylight time for Washington only if it was adopted in surrounding areas.

Corporation Counsel Richmond Keech said daylight time would be a success here if it was established in a "substantial area," including Maryland and Virginia. It would be a failure, he said, if Washington adopted the system, adjacent States did not, and the Capital thus found itself on an "isolated" time arrangement.

Keech said that he believed no Congressional action would be necessary to effect the change in the Capital. This, he thought, could be accomplished by Presidential order as in the staggered pay day innovation.

Arthur W. Crossley, executive secretary of the Public Utilities Commission, said adoption of daylight time would "greatly lighten the load on the Potomac Electric Power Co."

He said in the winter, with early darkness, thousands of kilowatts would be saved in offices and homes, where in effect it would not be necessary to burn lights until an hour later than in years past.

Engineer Commissioner C. W. Kutz also favored daylight time if "it is to be universal." Of importance to the success of the new system here would be its simultaneous adoption in the Free State and the Old Dominion, he said.

L. A. Carruthers, past president of the Federation of Citizens Associations, said he favored the plan "if it is in the interest of national defense."

He added, however, that there might be a question as to the "logic of daylight time in winter" here. He said the kilowatt hours saved at the end of the day would be lost with Washingtonians getting up an hour earlier, when it would be dark, and they, therefore, would be forced to burn electricity.

American Broadcasters Leave Italy After Nazis Take Over

By International News Service

New York, July 15.—The Columbia Broadcasting System announced today it had suspended its broadcasting activities from Rome due to new and rigid censorship restrictions by which Germany exercises virtual control over the Italian radio.

News items, the C. B. S. said, can no longer be released from Rome until they are circulated by the official Nazi news agency, D. N. B., and the Rome radio is now receiving special daily instructions from Berlin.

(An International News Service dispatch from Rome said David Anderson, National Broadcasting Company representative in the Italian capital, stated he had been informed by Italian authorities that all American radio broadcasters henceforth will be denied use of radio facilities in Italy, following the C. B. S. decision to withdraw its correspondent from Rome.)

Other new restrictions, according to a C. B. S. correspondent in Rome, prohibit the use of live news before its appearance in daily newspapers, ban mention of all reports of anti-American activities and heckling incidents, and prohibit discusson of scripts with censors.

U. S. Maps Lend-Lease Pact With Brazil

By George Bookman
Post Staff Writer

The United States shortly will make public a lend-lease agreement with Brazil, the first with a Latin-American nation and a model for others to follow which will definitely insure the adequate fortification of that nation's strategic air and naval bases, it was learned yesterday.

Brazil would thus be the first nation not at war to become eligible for supplies of war weapons under the generous terms of the lend-lease law.

The arrangement will be reciprocal, it was learned, although the lend-lease contracts with Brazil will not specifically mention the terms of repayment.

There will be a definite understanding, however, officials said, that in return Brazil will continue to reserve all her strategic materials for the United States and also will use the lend-lease supplies to fortify such bases on Brazilian soil that could be used by the United States in time of war.

Money to pay for the first shipments of supplies to Brazil will be contained in the gigantic new request for lend-lease funds that President Roosevelt will send to Congress shortly, it was said.

Brazil was chosen as a testing-ground for the first lend-lease agreement in Latin America because of the traditional friendship between the United States and Brazil and the close personal friendship between President Roosevelt and Brazilian President Getulio Vargas.

The exact type of equipment that Brazil will receive is now being determined at talks in Rio between Brazilian and United States military authorities.

Unofficial estimates have placed the amount likely to be involved at around $100,000,000.

The strategic minerals which the United States wants from Brazil in partial repayment for the lend-lease goods include manganese, diamonds, mica and several lesser but vitally needed minerals useful in defense production.

The Brazilian guarantees that bases will be adequately equipped for defense are being treated as a separate question from the lend-lease negotiations, officials said. They did not disguise the fact, however, that the United States will expect the bases to be fortified and made available to American forces in wartime.

It is known that the United States is anxious to see strong emplacements built at Recife (Pernambuco), on the easternmost tip of Brazil that juts out toward Africa and toward the French African stronghold of Dakar.

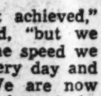
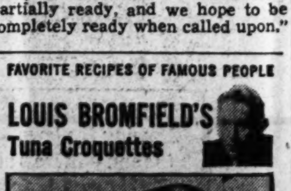
LOUIS BROMFIELD'S
Tuna Croquettes





3 tablespoons butter
3 tablespoons flour
½ teaspoon salt
1 cup milk
2 cups tuna fish
Salt to taste
1 tablespoon Lea & Perrins Sauce
1 cup fine bread crumbs
1 egg, beaten
1 tablespoon cold water

Make white sauce of butter, flour, salt and milk. Cool, mix lightly with tuna fish, Lea & Perrins Sauce and salt. Spread in shallow pan and set in refrigerator 1 hour. Mold mixture into desired shape, using rounded tablespoon of mixture for each croquette. Roll in crumbs, then in egg to which water is added, and again in crumbs. Fry in deep fat at 390° F. for 3 minutes. Drain on absorbent paper. Makes 5 servings.

You could write a book about the thousand and one uses of Lea & Perrins Sauce...how, for over a century, chefs of fine restaurants the world over have counted on this famous sauce to make a simple dish good, and a good dish great.

Try it tonight, and see how exciting Lea & Perrins Sauce can make the plainest home-cooked meal.

YOU'LL NEVER DEATH-TEST YOUR CAR in sinister Death Valley

Cars ran on 1 fill till engines cracked up or flamed up. Fire Fighters stood by for emergencies.

But get your own Economy Proof from this New oil that outlasted 5 rivals by 5,683 miles or more... CERTIFIED

It may take many a surprised look at the engine gauge-stick before you fully believe the best about your change to Conoco Nth motor oil. Yet it's all true. For you're bound to expect oil economy, judging by the Official Certified Record of Conoco Nth oil vs. five other big-name oils in their plain fair test to the death.

6 cars Die to prove that Yours can Live Long

Down in Death Valley—which holds America's heat record—the Official Test Referee gave 6 identical everyday cars exactly one fill of some one representative oil in this all-out test. He put the engines under lock; no oil could be added. He put Official Observers on watch. He enforced 57 miles an hour. The finish came only as one engine after another consumed its oil, gave its death rattle, and scattered parts on the desert. The engine lubricated by Conoco Nth lasted 5,683 miles longer than any of them. And all 5 averaged less than half of the 13,398 miles reached by one 5-quart fill of Conoco Nth oil. This is Certified. And it has a bed-rock basis.

Man-made new Economy aid in Conoco Nth

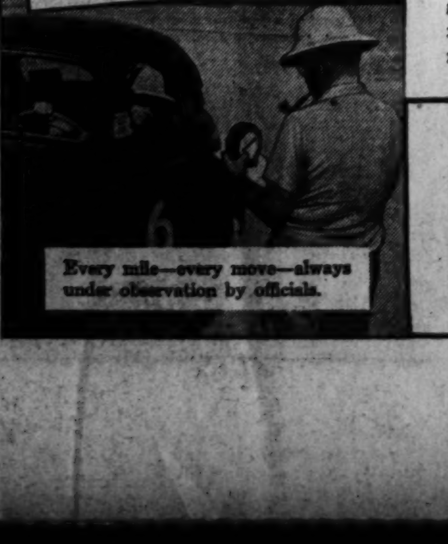
The truth is that the latest oil refining methods have to throw out a lot of good with the bad. Out go some of Nature's best life-givers! Much the same happens, you know, in food processing. But today that food loss is often made up by adding vitamins . . . man-made. And today the vim-and-vigor that oils lose in proper refining is added back more than generously by Conoco Thialkene inhibitor . . . man-made . . . in patented Conoco Nth motor oil. That's why it was able to laugh off Death Valley's worst. But you can't laugh off the insistence of qualified authorities that you drain and refill at the right times, as always.

In between times, however, you haven't got to worry about your engine. You can merely remember that even Conoco Nth may occasionally get down to where there's just room for another quart. Continental Oil Company—Pioneers in Bettering America's oil with Synthetics

AND CONOCO Nth OIL OIL-PLATES YOUR ENGINE!

Long the keystone of Conoco success, OIL-PLATING comes from another great Conoco synthetic . . . man-made under the famed Germ Processed oil patent. By magnet-like action, OIL-PLATING is bonded to inner engine parts. Then it can't all drain down—not even overnight —not while you're using Conoco Nth. So OIL-PLATING is on guard against wear in advance! . . . and helps mileage, as it did in Death Valley. An OIL-PLATED engine is one more economy you get from a change to popular-priced new Conoco Nth oil.

IMPARTIAL
The new test cars were taken apart for the Referee, to check uniformity, and then were broken-in alike.
Drivers switched between cars, equalizing the human factors.
Latest available oil of each competitive brand bought retail by Referee; allotted to cars by chance.



Every mile—every move—always under observation by officials.

CERTIFIED I hereby certify that the Death Valley Test and related work were thoroughly and fairly conducted. Engine Destruction occurred in each case at the mileage stated.

21-Year-Olds Get News Tomorrow

Tomorrow night at 7 o'clock two United States Cabinet officers, members of Congress, and representatives of several military organizations will dip their hands into America's famous goldfish bowl to decide the order in which 750,000 young men will be called from civil life into their country's armed services.

Brig. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, head of Selective Service, announced last night that Secretary of War Henry L. Stimson, who drew the first of 9,000 numbers last October, had been invited to draw the first number again. Also invited to participate in drawing numbers are Secretary of the Navy Frank Knox; Representative James W. Wadsworth, of New York, cosponsor of the Selective Service Act; the chairmen of the House and Senate Military Affairs Committees, Chief of Staff Gen. George M. Marshall and high Navy and Marine officials. President Roosevelt is not expected to participate in the ceremonies.

Selective Service headquarters also announced last night that 50 selectees from six Army camps will be brought here to take part in the lottery. They, too, will draw numbers from the bowl, choosing the sequence in which their future "buddies" will serve.

Bowl in Philadelphia

These inductees will be men who have earned noncommission ratings since their registration last October. They will come from Fort Meade, Md.; Langley Field, Va.; Fort Belvoir, Va.; Camp Lee, Va.; Fort Story, Va., and Fort Dix, N. J. A reception committee and entertainment is being prepared for the men by a score of military organizations in the District.

Selective Service officials accompanied by an armed guard were scheduled to leave early today for Philadelphia, where they will get the lottery goldfish bowl. The receptacle, used in the first World War and in the lottery last October, has been on exhibition at Independence Hall.

In Philadelphia the bowl will be presented to Capt. Harry Richardson by Mayor R. E. Lamberton, and will be convoyed here by police of three States and the District. It will be kept under armed guard at Selective Service headquarters until it is removed tomorrow evening to Departmental Auditorium for the lottery.

Capsules Guarded

Also under guard are the 800 capsules filled with numbers which are being held in a Treasury Department vault until the time of the lottery. After being prepared at Selective Service headquarters, they were brought to the Treasury yesterday, accompanied by a trailer with machine guns.

In contrast to the drawing last October, which required more than 17 hours, it is expected that the lottery tomorrow night will not take more than two hours.

As each number is drawn it will be photographed and the announcer's voice will be recored on a sound track. The numbers will be listed on a master sheet, copies of which will be sent to each local draft board.

Every 21-year-older who enrolled July 1 has been given a registration number ranging from 1 to 661, which is the highest total of registrants in any board area. The new order numbers will be integrated proportionately among those remaining in each board area from the original 1940 listing.

It is not believed that any of the new registrants will be called to service until September at least, because of the time required for the local boards to prepare their rolls and for physical examinations of registrants.

However, Selective Service officials in the District pointed out last night that it is probable that there will be a small percentage of exemptions for the new registrants because "for the most part, they are able bodied and do not have dependents."

Army 'Jeep' Goes for a Swim ...

SET FOR A DIP—Engineers at Fort Benning, Ga., go through experimental stages of floating a 1-ton midget scout car across a stream. Above—Men drive the "jeep" atop a square section of canvas, floating in 16 or 18 inches of water. Edges of the canvas are then pulled up and tied, just as you would wrap a package. Water in the canvas sack is then pumped out with a small hand-pump and the vehicle displaces enough water in the stream to float. Roosevelt Says Draft Time Limit Endangers Army gress later found an emergency existed, he stated.

Earlier in the day the War Department formally sent the retention legislation to Congress, and two of its ranking chiefs warned in forceful language of what might be expected if Congress failed to heed their plea.

Acting Secretary Robert P. Patterson, in a letter submitting the legislation, said that Germany's quick victories have resulted from "launching an overwhelming force against an unprepared enemy."

Adding that "we cannot speculate with the security of this Nation," Patterson said that virtual demobilization" of the Army will result from the failure to pass the bills. Such a situation, he added, is "unthinkable."

Gen. George C. Marshall, Army Chief of Staff, at the same time was disclosed to have stated that failure to retain the selectees and guardsmen might result in a "national tragedy."

Marshall testified in support of the Army's proposal at a closed session of the Senate Military Affairs Committee last week. Much of his statement was "off-the-record," but in that part released for publication yesterday, the chief of staff said that failure to pass the proposed legislation would mean that practically all military units would "break down" and the Army "will largely melt away."

"I submit, on the basis of cold logic," he stated, "that the virtual disbandment or immobilization of two-thirds of our trained enlisted strength and three-fourths of our trained officer personnel at this time might well involve a national tragedy."

Marshall urged the Senators to "keep in mind" the fact that the "nation which threatens our security" has an army of "all veterans" whereas America's Army has been under development only since last fall.

He also urged removal of the present restrictions on sending selectees of Guardsmen outside the Western Hemisphere. Denying emphatically that he had any thought of sending "another A. E. F.," Marshall said that he was concerned only with preparing the Army for whatever might come.

As an example, the Chief of Staff said that it was necessary to send Marines to Iceland on what was actually an Army mission. He explained that Marines are especially trained in landing operations under fire, a condition not present in Iceland.

The Army's First Division, composed mostly of regulars who can be sent anywhere, was considered for the occupation, Marshall disclosed. It was not sent, however, because of the large proportion of Reserve officers whom it would have been necessary to ask to volunteer. This might have "advertised the convoy before it sailed," risking the chance that one or more of the ships would be torpedoed, he said.

Gen. Marshall explained that the War Department did not want to hold all the selectees beyond their present year's service, but preferred to release "a certain number" to the Reserve, depending upon "existing conditions as to time and place."

"Specifically," he added, "we wish to release the older men, those 28 years old and over, on completion of their 12 months and even earlier, and I think that in the large majority of cases we can do so without too serious an effect on organizational efficiency.

The legislation presented by Patterson also would remove the present 900,000 limit of selectees in uniform at one time. There has been nothing said officially as to what size Army the War Department plans in this connection, but Gen. Marshall indicated that a 2,300,000-man force or larger might be in view.

He told the Senate committee that in addition to the already authorized 152,000 increase over the present 1,418,000 strength, the War Department hoped to get funds for 100,000 to 150,000 more men for antitank and other special units.

"In addition to these numbers," he added, "we could train with the greatest of ease 500,000 more men."

Marshall also disclosed that the Army planned to increase the number of three-year enlisted Regulars from 476,000 to 640,000 men, and that later as the new Atlantic bases were completed, raise this figure to 800,000 men.

Public hearings on the service extension measure will get under way tomorrow morning before the Senate Military Affairs Committee, with Gen. Marshall as the first witness.

Sentry Fires Shot As Two Youths, Soldiers Fight

Two 18-year-old Negroes were held temporarily by Third Precinct police last night after a fight near the Washington Brigade Headquarters, Twenty-first and C Streets Northwest, in which a sentry on duty fired one shot.

Witnesses said a fight broke out between soldiers and the two youths when they resisted attempts of an Army officer to remove autos from an alley through which Army trucks are driven into the Brigade Headquarters garage.

Col. Edwin G. Sherburn said he was investigating the incident. He said one shot was fired and that no one was injured. The two youths were released after being held for a few hours.

Labor Must Have Say in Peace Terms—Willkie

Special Dispatch to The Post

New York, July 15.—When nazism is crushed, the American and British people will demand that the peace to come recognize the need of all men for freedom and opportunity, Wendell Willkie said tonight. The nations will establish a partnership between labor and enterprise, so that industrial age is harnessed "not for the destruction of men but for their fulfillment," he declared in an address over the National Broadcasting Co., sponsored by the American Labor Committee to id British Labor.

Willkie reminded that British labor was resolved to defeat Nazi Germany because British workers knew that a triumph of nazilsm would deprive them of all they had conquered in years of struggle. "They know that if Hitler should conquer Britain," he said, "one of the first acts would be to abolish labor unions and the social gains of labor. . . .

There is no disagreement in England today about the need to defeat Germany, Willkie continued. "All parties and groups are resolved that whatever may be their divergent views on social and economic problems, there will be nothing worth while for any of them unless nazilsm is destroyed. To bring this about, radical, liberal, conservative, laborer and manufacturer are joined in a common effort."

British labor has made many voluntary sacrifices to win the war, Willkie said, but it is resolved that "this war shall not be used for old purposes. It is not interested in imperialistic gains or the enslavement of other countries or in a peace written in bitterness and hatred, from which new conflic and wars will arise."

The 1940 Reublican Presidentia candidate concluded: "When nazi ism is crushed, we too will demand that there shall be a peace written in understanding of the aspirations of all men for freedom and opportunity."

Survey Shows Most Baldness Starts Between Ages of 20-30

In a survey covering the case histories of more than eight hundred men, F. D. Johnson, local hair and scalp specialist, found that more than 65% of these men had developed hair and scalp troubles before they were thirty years old.

Faulty understanding of the care of the scalp and hair, accepting bad advice, and pure negligence are the contributing factors to hair loss. A common fallacy is the idea that simply removing surface dandruff by shampooing, or by dissolving it with an alcoholic solution constitutes a satisfactory remedy.

It may require a long time for scalp troubles to manifest themselves and break down natural resistance, and this is evidenced by the fact that many people have dandruff for some time before their hair begins to thin out. Many cases of ultimate baldness could be avoided by adopting corrective measures.

Hundreds of men each year go to Room 1052, Shoreham Building, and consult F. D. Johnson about their scalp and hair troubles. He has enjoyed unusual success in helping men regain their scalp and hair health.

If you also need help . . . Call NA. 6081, or call in person for an examination. There is no charge, and treatment will not be advised unless he believes it will help you.

SOUTHERN MANOR

The Colonial style which flowered in the South was an outgrowth of the climate. The houses were large, with spacious rooms flanked alongside a wide center hall. A porch was a necessity. The portico supported by tall, stately columns, or the two-storied colonnade, such as one sees at Mt. Vernon, became a feature of the Southern manor house. Adjoining wings were connected to the central portion by corridors or galleries.

State Asks Chair In Holdup Murder

For the murder of Miss Fanny Cohen, 62-year-old shopkeeper, the Government yesterday asked the life of William T. Mumforde, 20, Negro cook's helper and holdup man.

Mumforde went on trial in the District Court, before Justice T. Alan Goldsborough, on a brief indictment charging that he killed Miss Cohen while trying to rob her dress shop at 1512 U Street Northwest the night of Saturday, February 15.

Assistant District Attorney William Hitz told the 12 men jurors that Mumforde went to the shop with a pistol in his pocket "to get some money," became frightened when Miss Cohen screamed and shot her to death.

Jury Told of Confession

Edwin Ewings, acquaintance of Mumforde, testified that he heard Mumforde's confession and saw the defendant reenact the crime after the police caught him.

"He said he fired one shot, and then he leaned over to see what she had in her pockets," Ewings declared. "But Mumforde said that then he thought he heard somebody coming and he ran away."

Mumforde was trailed to his home in North Carolina and brought back here a week later. The indictment does not charge ordinary murder but is based upon a recent law which declares any homicide committed during a felony to be murder.

Legal authorities believed that the nature of the charge would require the jurors either to send Mumforde to the electric chair or to set him free, without considering second-degree murder, manslaughter or other degrees of homicide.

Case May Reach Jury Today

However, Defense Counsel George E. C. Hayes and Leonard Hayes said they would ask the court to instruct the jurors on second-degree murder.

The case may reach the jury late today.

St. Barnard And Pup Win Takoma Show

Brownie and Duke, a St. Bernard and her puppy, brought honors yesterday to James Fischer, 13, grandson of Maj. and Mrs. William F. Fischer, 112 New York Avenue, Takoma Park, Md., at the first of a series of pet shows sponsored by the municipal playgrounds.

The dogs were adjudged the most beautiful pets in their class. Brownie has won awards in previous shows in Takoma Park when entered alone.

Approximately 250 children and adults attended yesterday's show at the North Takoma Playground, New York and Buffalo Avenues.

George O'Brien, 9, won a prize for his pony, Sam, adjudged the largest pet.

A turtle entered by James Schultz, 11, of 27 Philadelphia Avenue, was given first prize for the smallest pet. The most unique entry was Skippy, a Manchester toy entered by Patricia Hawks, 115 Takoma Avenue.

Judges were Mrs. Anna Corusillio, Mrs. George J. Korschen and Mrs. Ruth Weir. The show was under the direction of Miss Mary Pailthorpe, director of the playground. A similar show will be held tomorrow at the Philadelphia Avenue Playground at 3 p. m.

Judy Canova Sues For Divorce, Says 'Soft Moon' Hit Her

Los Angeles, July 15 (AP).—Judy Canova, the movies' backwoods warbler, who was "hit in the head by a soft moon" and married unexpectedly in Honolulu a month ago, filed suit today for a divorce or annulment.

The suit, naming Corpl. James H. Ripley, of Fort Ruger, Honolulu, as defendant, was not specific. It merely charged cruelty as the basis for a divorce plea, and alleged fraud as the ground for an annulment.

The actress returned here three days after the ceremony June 14, leaving the bridegroom in an Army guardhouse, to which officers said he was assigned for going A. W. O. L. after the ceremony.

MAN UNDER POLICE GUARD—This man, identified by a Social Security card as Strother Travis Brown, of Sperryville, Va., was under police guard in Casualty Hospital last night as postal inspectors investigated his presence in a mail coach of a Chicago-bound train as it pulled out of Washington. Smeared with his own blood, he is shown as he was placed in a police van. He had battled with five mail clerks clerks as saying Brown was found "hiding in the coach as we pulled out of the station." Brown was asked to leave before the train gained speed. But he would not. Then he was tackled.

"He was the fightin'est man I ever saw," Pettei reported after watching police subdue him.

Despite the scuffle there was no indication, according to police, that Brown attempted a robbery, as was first reported. Police said the man was not armed. No charge was filed against him immediately.

He was held under guard, however, for investigation and for postal authorities. G. T. Bleakeley, postal investigator, was on the case last night, and is expected to make his report this morning.

Metropolitan police in their report at the Twelfth Precinct Station said Brown jumped on the mail car and attacked the clerks.

Nazis Say President Wants War

Berlin, July 15 (AP).—Deutsche Diplomatisch-Politische Korrespondenz, German foreign office mouthpiece, tonight accused President Roosevelt of "preparing the most detestable trick—namely, pushing his own Nation, arm-in-arm with bolshevism, into war."

Press attacks on the President increased in intensity today. Virtually the entire afternoon and evening press followed the same line as Korrespondenz.

A year has not passed since, as a Presidential candidate, President Roosevelt promised the people to "do everything possible to keep the country out of war," Korrespondenz said.

Nothing has been done since then by the Axis powers, the organ asserted, which could raise or intensify suspicion among inhabitants of the Western Hemisphere that an attack on their continent was being planned.

On the other hand, the publication claimed, Mr. Roosevelt has "left nothing undone since his reelection to back down from his earlier promises."

Whether this was done from a real intention to support England in the fight against the Reich or whether the President has an idea in the back of his head that he could inherit the British Empire step by step, even during his lifetime, "the policy of the present rulers in the United States is to leave nothing undone to approach closer to the theater of war and finally to move directly onto the field of battle," Korrespondenz said.

Roosevelt Asks $6,500,000 for U. S. Offices in Suburbs that these will not be made public in advance of the hearings.

Leasing by the Federal Government of Washington apartment houses for conversion into office buildings, particularly in the case of the Dupont Circle Hotel, will be thoroughly aired by the committee before the hearings are closed, Lanham said.

If Congress votes the new building appropriation, the Public Buildings Administration will move ahead to at least partial realization of its "dream project"—a Federal city near Suitland, Md., about five miles southeast of the Capitol.

450 Acres Available

The Government has 450 acres purchased or under option in the vicinity of Suitland and the PBA is studying bids on a building to be located there and to cost an estimated $2,500,000. The money will come from $6,400,000 already appropriated and from which a $2,600,000 building is being erected near Arlington National Cemetery.

Buildings at Suitland and other sites in Maryland for which funds were requested yesterday are to be semipermanent in character. While exact locations have not yet been settled, PBA officials expect also to utilize Government land at the Department of Agriculutre Experimental Farm at Beltsville and in the vicinity of the Naval Medical Center and the National Institute of Health at Bethesda.

The Arlington Experimental Farm, it was said, may be used as sites for one or more temporary buildings in Virginia. With the funds requested, the Government contemplates provision of 450,000 square feet of office space in Virginia and 400,000 square feet in Maryland.

Because of the defense program, office space requirements in the District "have become more acute," declared a report of Budget Director Harold D. Smith, which the President transmitted to Speaker Rayburn.

Housing Shortage Considered

"A careful analysis of the situation indicates that at least 1,000,000 square feet of additional space will be required before June 30, 1942, to accommodate the known expansion of Federal activities," it added. In estimating space needs, consideration was given to "the housing shortage in the District caused in part, by the conversion of apartment houses for office use and the possible reduction in requirements due to decentralization of some activities."

In calling up his resolution, Representative Sabath (Democrat), of Illinois, chairman of the Rules Committee, called leasing of the Dupont Circle Hotel the "most outrageous action that could possibly take place."

Republican and Democratic members of the Public Buildings and Grounds Committee joined Lanham in the tug-of-war over the right to conduct hearings on the space emergency. Lanham called for maintenance of the "dignity and jurisdiction" of House committees.

Sabath explained that he had substituted the resolution for two bills he had introduced earlier because Speaker Rayburn wanted the investigation conducted by a special committee rather than one of the standing committees. Representaive Pheiffer (Republican), of New York; McLaughlin (Democrat), of Nebraska, and Halleck (Republican), of Indiana, supported Sabath.

Representative Sumners (Democrat), of Texas, chairman of the Judiciary Committee, declared that the machinery of Federal Government is now overburdened because it has taken over functions properly belonging to the States.

"This resolution is a lot of nonsense," declared Representative Bender (Republican), of Ohio, who called for elimination, rather than transfer, of Federal agencies.

Asked after the debate how he stood on transfer of agencies out of Washington, Lanham replied: "I am simply one of the jury. I want the information first. Some of these departments can't be moved, that I know. We'll have to wait for hearings to see what the situation is."

Letter Lauding Brown Given Out by Hazen

One of the last acts of Commissioner Hazen before he died yesterday was to release to reporters a letter from the Secret Service praising his long-time friend, Maj. Ernest W. Brown, superintendent of police.

"I think this is pretty nice," said Hazen, handing the letter from Secret Service Chief Frank J. Wilson to reporters.

The letter read:

"Without exception there has never been during my administration of the Secret Service any more responsive, more efficient or intelligent cooperation accorded us by any enforcement organization than that received from Maj. Brown and the officers of his department."

Wilson praised Brown's "able leadership" and continued:

"Our responsibilities in connection with the protection of the President and members of his family have been complex and multitudinous during these troublesome days, but the ready willingness of Maj. Brown to supplement and reenforce our efforts upon request and upon the fidelity of the men assigned have mitigated my anxieties immeasurably.

"In fact, a large share of the effectiveness of our work in this respect has been due to the distinctively capable assistance of the Metropolitan Police Department."

He added:

"This is true also—and I should like to state this emphatically—of the high quality of policemanship evidenced whenever the activities of counterfeiters and other criminals have brought the police force and their Washington agents together in coordination.

"It is with a keen sense of appreciation that I send you this deserved tribute regarding Maj. Brown and the other members of his organization."

Commissioner Hazen was obviously pleased with the letter. In the past, he had never concealed his high regard for Maj. Brown.

District Native Becomes Assistant At St. Michael's

A native Washingtonian comes to St. Michael's Catholic Church, Silver Spring, Md., as a newly appointed assistant to the Rev. Thomas A. Calnan, pastor. He is the Rev. Leo J. McCormick, S. T. L., Ph. D.

REV. McCORMICK

Dr. McCormick was graduated from St. Charles' College and St. Mary's Seminary in Baltimore. He was ordained in Rome after a course in philosophy and theology at the Propaganda University.

While living at St. Dominic's rectory in Baltimore he followed postgraduate courses in clinical methods in education and in the history of education at Johns Hopkins University for three years.

When he returned to Washington in 1938 he entered the Catholic University for postgraduate study in education and sociology. In June, 1941, he received the doctor of philosophy degree in education from Catholic University. His study "Church-State Relationships in Education in Maryland," will be published by the Catholic University Press.

$70,000,000 Is Voted For Secret Weapon

The Senate Naval Committee approved yesterday a bill authorizing $585,000,000 for the Navy, including $70,000,000 for constructing a plant to produce a new secret explosive.

Of the total $300,000,000 would be for shipbuilding facilities and equipment, $160,000,000 for ship repair facilities and $125,000,000 for building, equipping and expanding ordnance manufacturing plants.

Hazen's Death Delays Police Recommendations

The sudden death of Disrtict Commissioner Melvin C. Hazen yesterday postponed until Monday the joint conference of District officials and legislators drafting recommendations based on findings of the House Police Investigationg Subcommittee.

Commissioner John Russell Young announced Hazen's death to the subcommittee as soon as he entered the District Committee room for further consideration of steps to be taken in reorganizing the Metropolitan Police Department in the light of weaknesses disclosed by the investigation.

Representative Schulte (Democrat), of Indiana, subcommittee chairman, immediately announced a recess.

Schulte and other subcommittee members paid warm tribute to Hazen who, with Young, attended all sessions of the investigation.

Mayor Heads Aluminum Drive In Alexandria

Mayor William T. Wilkins has been appointed chairman for Alexandria's participation in the campaign to collect aluminum for defense industries, to be inaugurated next week under sponsorship of the Northern Virginia Regional Defense Council. His appointment was announced by Albert V. Bryan, Alexandria Commonwealth's attorney, who has been appointed to direct the drive for the entire region.

Alexandria Finds Housing Shortage

Figures compiled through a defense census now under way in Alexandria have disclosed the city is confronted with a serious shortage of housing facilities, particularly among the Negro population, Mrs. Ellen R. Harper, director, said yesterday.

With the census only partially completed, the enumerators have encountered seriously overcrowded conditions in many homes, Mrs. Harper said, and in some instances have found as many as 20 Negroes occupying three and four-room houses. Overcrowding also has been noted among white families, although it is not reported to be as serious as among the Negro population.

Main Battle

War in Russia has obscured the main battle of the war which is going on in the Atlantic. The progress of this battle is to be traced in shipping losses. Last month, the British Admiralty has revealed, 79 British, Allied and neutral ships with a total of 329,296 tons were sent to the bottom by Axis submarines, planes, raiders and mines. These are the smallest losses for any month of the last 12 with one exception, namely, January. These losses, moreover, are little more than half as great as those for the peak months of this year.

This is welcome news. But the Battle of the Atlantic is not won yet, and there is no assurance from the June figures that it will be won. It is undoubtedly comforting that shipping losses have begun to decline. This is probably the result of a combination of factors, including the persistent destruction of U-boats, improved convoy methods and submarine detecting devices, a more extended system of naval reconnaissance, the Atlantic patrol of the United States Fleet and German aerial concentration on the Russian front. Yet the losses of British, Allied and neutral shipping last month were still well above the combined shipbuilding capacity of Great Britain and the United States.

Even, therefore, if the British succeed in keeping depredations of German U-boats and bombing planes down to present levels, their plight will remain serious. The diminished losses only mitigate the continued attrition of their shipping resources. Already British, Allied and neutral shipping losses since the beginning of the war have reached the staggering total of more than 7,000,000 tons. And since American shipbuilding efforts will not begin to show any real result on the shipping situation before next year or the year after, the danger that faces the British cannot yet be said to have been removed.

That is particularly the case in view of the circumstance that the Russian War has tied up a considerable number of German bombers. Many of these bombers could be hurled into the Battle of the Atlantic if and when the Nazis succeed in overcoming the resistance of the Red army. Thus the need for additional precautionary measures, including more effective American methods of insuring the safe delivery of lend-lease materials to Great Britain, remains as great as ever. It is necessary for us to do our part to "clear the Atlantic." And the time is now—while Hitler is engaged in Russia.

Yoo-Hoo

We dare say you read about the bathing beauty parade at El Paso (Tex.) Country Club the other day and how, when the girls in swimming suits and shorts passed in review before Maj. Gen. Innis P. Swift, U. S. A., he called out "Yoo-Hoo" with the inimitable gaiety and gallantry of an old cavalryman, bless his heart! The general, you see, was well aware that the girls had put on these costumes for the single purpose of catching his eye, and he politely allowed them to know they had succeeded.

The moral of this seems to be that it takes nobody less than a general officer, with all the experience and worldly wisdom that the rank implies, to determine when girls in shorts are pleased to have "Yoo-Hoo!" yelled at them in a martial voice, and when they prefer a cold but respectful silence. It was a tactful lesson in discretion to the young men of the 110th Motor Transport Battalion. In a way, though, it helps to explain that unfortunate incident at Memphis. The Motor Transport is not the cavalry, of course, but even motor transport men have their chivalrous impulses. They had probably got it into their inexperienced heads that those girls on the golf links might have been wearing shorts for much the same reason that the girls at the El Paso Club wore them. Of course, Lieut. Gen. Lear, with his greater knowledge of women, knew how essentially absurd this notion was, and how necessary that young men should be disabused of it. Hence the paternal spirit in which he decreed the 15-mile penitential hike.

The publicity given to this episode, however, has not been without unfortunate consequences. It is now reported that groups of girls and young women in and out of shorts have got started the custom of yelling "Yoo-Hoo!" whenever they catch sight of solemn-visaged soldiers marching by. A ribald and suggestive tune of the depraved early years of the 1920's called "I Hear You Calling 'Yoo-Hoo!'" has now been revived and is being whistled in mocking spirit. A little of this sort of thing at properly chaperoned camp dances and entertainments might not be amiss. But when it occurs in public it must be very annoying, indeed, to soldiers who are trying to concentrate on their marching.

Putting On The Pressure

The Chamberlain theory has long been discarded that economic pressure was all that was necessary to bring about the downfall of Hitlerism. It has come to be realized that for several reasons economic measures are not enough. They are vastly important, nevertheless, in adding to the pressure on Nazi Germany and in weakening the Titan into a condition which will make him the more vulnerable to a military blow. The trouble is that Hitler so far has been able to tap extracontinental sources of supply in addition to all the resources of continental Europe. He has been getting them from Latin America. Some have been imported through Vladivostok, though this port is now closed to Hitler by the Russo-German war. Another leak is through Marseilles, a penultimate port to Germany of supplies which are imported across the South Atlantic, and this route is still open to the Fuehrer for such necessities of his military machine as machine parts and tools.

Now some of these supplies may take the form of goods imported from the United States or they may be made out of United States material. Such a traffic is clearly inconsistent with our anti-Hitler policy. And a move is now afoot partly to stop the trade by compiling an American black list of Axis firms doing business in Latin America which will not be allowed to import goods from our country. The list is so comprehensive, extending to over 2,000 names, that it is said to exceed in size even the black list of belligerent Britain. This comprehensiveness is probably a tribute to the Office of the Coordinator of Commercial and Cultural Relations among the American Republics under Nelson Rockefeller. What Mr. Rockefeller's office has done is not spectacular enough to merit the big headlines. But it is vastly significant just the same. For the squeeze on Nazi supplies at a time when the Nazis are heavily engaged on the Russian front and the R. A. F. is blasting at German munitions centers may be extremely helpful to the anti-Hitler cause.

At any rate, the British will note the development with a great deal of satisfaction. Our slowness in black-listing Axis firms in Latin America has blunted the teeth of their own black list. For Britain and America make much the same things, and some of the Axis firms, denied access to British factories, have merely transferred their orders to America. There will be no such subterfuge any more. And if, as seems likely, the two black lists are correlated, a crimp will be put in much of the South American trade with Germany. The need for a correlated list is necessary because there must be no suspicion that one or the other country may pick up trade that the other is sacrificing.

Of course, the leak cannot be altogether stopped up by this means, for there are non-Axis as well as Axis firms in Latin America doing business with Germany. Success could be won only by obtaining the full cooperation of Latin America in the measures which we have initiated. There is a chance nowadays of getting some such cooperation. Today the countries below the Rio Grande must have a fuller appreciation than they have had hitherto that the United States intends to stay alongside the British till Hitlerism has been vanquished. Moreover, the outlook for Hitler, militarily, has suddenly turned cloudy. Latin America will be much more willing to back our policy as they see the fortunes of war turn in favor of the anti-Hitler forces.

"Effort Syndrome"

British medical officers, with the aid of a Rockefeller Foundation grant, have been looking into "shell shock," as it is popularly called, and have found that with it often goes a curious brain and heart malady which incapacitates men who have seldom been exposed to danger. It is no news that war accentuates psychological maladjustments in many individuals, but the findings of the officers, as reported in The Lancet, the journal of the British Medical Association, are particularly valuable from the morale standpoint. Soldiers suffering from the "effort syndrome" are apparently a greater menace than typhoid carriers, for their hysteria can be contagious, upsetting the morale of their fellows. Victims of the disease may have nothing wrong with the heart or lungs, yet be subject to extreme breathlessness, blurred vision, fainting spells and fatigue after slight effort. Very often men examined were found to have an exaggerated sense of duty and of patriotism and were subconsciously worried that they were not living up to their jobs. In other times they might have been called cowards and shoved into the front lines as the only suitable corrective. Not so today. Medical officers conclude that there is almost no chance of making them satisfactory soldiers, without subjection to a long course of mental therapy. Lest this revelation encourage fake victims, it is pointed out that deception is usually easy to prove.

So far the only British solution has been to discharge genuine sufferers from the Army. Nevertheless, one cannot help wondering what, if any, solution the Nazis have for such cases. German psychologists attached to their army are reported to have devised remedies for "intellectuals," for "individualists," and for "cowards and conscripts with religious tendencies." No command is more aware of the value of sound morale than the German. But no command is quicker to exercise utter ruthlessness, should it seem advisable. In the circumstances German victims of the "effort syndrome" may be doing exactly what victims in other wars did—that is, suppressing their true state of mind for fear of having to face a firing squad. If this is the case, it is not merely wishful thinking to predict that there may be serious morale trouble ahead for the Nazis, particularly when they encounter reverses.

Commissioner Hazen

Justice Holmes once said that if a man is this, he is not that. He meant that a man could not be expected to have every quality under the sun. To be "Mayor" of Washington, however, almost every quality is called for. Here we have the most rapidly growing city in the country with problems enough even to tax the vitality of a LaGuardia. Yet the first requisite of a successful chairman of our District Board of Commissioners, as our "Mayor" is called, is not, curiously enough, energy. It is resiliency. This is because our "Mayor" has to deal with a host of persons who are pleased to think of themselves as his superiors.

Mr. LaGuardia's arbitrary manner, in consequence, would be distinctly out of place in Washington. For the municipality of this District is run by Congress. That means that a chairman must be on good terms with Senators and Representatives who never altogether forget their prerogatives as municipal councilors, so to speak. The District is likewise the Capital of the Nation. So that the chairman must constantly hobnob with, and consult the convenience of, officials of the Government from the President down.

Commissioner Hazen, who died yesterday after holding this post for eight years, had an abundant measure of the bamboo-like resiliency required of a District chairman. He was a mixer par excellence. And he did not limit his attentions to the army of legislators and officials who felt coequal with him, if not in doing his own job, at least in supervising it. He had an ear ever open for the disfranchised folk of Washington who insist through their organizations in having their say about local governance. This was not due alone to his good nature. Commissioner Hazen was a good democrat, and, in the absence of self-government for the District, of which he was a champion, he believed that the least he could do was always to keep the door open to the local citizenry. The wonder is that he found so much time to listen. Yet he was more than accessible to complaints and suggestions; he went forth to seek them, and carried his gregariousness over into a lively interest in public functions.

Naturally he preferred the pleasant functions. What mayor (or even a lesser mortal) doesn't? In a mayor's case they must come as welcome relief after a day spent as a kind of inverted Micawber, waiting to turn things down. Moreover, such functions are just as much part of his job as disagreeable conferences. In this respect the role of being a public person with a gift for putting in an appearance where the welcoming hand or ceremonial accolade was in order jibed harmoniously with the Commissioner's urbane temperament. Our suave Mr. Hazen was perfectly at home in a city that is so often a pageant.

This easy affability had its roots in his Southern ancestry. Born in the countryside of Virginia, he was bred in Southern ways, and he wore them like a garment even amid the hurly-burly of administrative life. Out of such a background he got his interests in fishing, riding, and in outdoor life on his farm. Nostalgically he always looked forward to a twilight of "whittling," and even if the loss of his wife had made the prospect sour, he had determined to retire at the end of this year. But death came at his desk—a desk of public service in Washington which he entered as far back as 1889. He will be missed in the social life of the Capital as few other men have been missed for a good many years past.

WE ARE THE MINERS

We have come at last to the day when the scales balance,
For we love equally. The fine rich grams are divided
Share and share alike between your cup and mine.
It is our wish that no one tilt the cups, to spill
From one more than from the other, leaving the scales
Out of balance. Once this richness has been spilled,
There is little chance of gathering it up again.
We cannot mine love from the earth like gold,
Nor take it from the sky like rain. The mines of love
Lie deep within us, fed by a network of seams.

Opportunity For U. S.

Hitler's invasion of Russia gives England an unlooked-for opportunity for supremacy on the Western Front. Because England's chance is ours, history will not forgive us if we fail to improve it by sending her every plane, gun and tank we can spare, now, while Hitler is tied up on the Eastern Front. Even if he wins the battle quickly, it will be precious months before Russia is a going concern as part of the "new order." Delivery of the weapons whereby England can shatter the German war machine's industrial bases and end forever the danger to herself of invasion, and to us of a strong Europe united against us, must therefore be guaranteed by our Navy, without the waste of a day.

Hitler's so-called crusade against Communism should deceive no one. Nazism is equally anti-Christian, and at the moment considerably more of a military and economic threat. Any aid we give to Russia, direct or indirect, is given from practical, not ideological, motives, and will not alter our hostility to subversive Communist activity on the home front.

There is no reason to suppose that opportunity will knock twice for us. ELIZABETH L. FORBES.
Wellesley, Mass., July 10.

Applauds Iceland Move

Senator Wheeler denounces our occupation of Iceland on the score that he doesn't want America to "get into a shooting war." Would he prefer the shooting to "get in" to us? Either he would prefer it, or he fails lamentably to face the fact that Hitler has set out to be a world conqueror (which involves, as Hitler himself has made clear, the conquering of the United States) or—if we were to be invaded, he just wouldn't try to preserve America. I can see no other interpretation of his attitude.

Fortunately, he and his stiff-witted band don't represent America. The great majority of us applaud the move into Iceland, and hope it will rapidly be followed by similar moves into the Azores, Cape Verde Islands, and Dakar.

'3d Degree' Mural

I want to add my protest to that of the Right Rev. James E. Freeman, with respect to the "third degree" mural, as shown in The Post of July 12. What good could possibly result from displaying a scene so revolting? Instead of proving that the police "know how to deal with violence," will it not have the adverse effect of embittering the public mind and creating prejudice toward the Police Department's activities in general, even when perhaps acting within the orbit of their rights and responsibilities? E. B. STOUT.
Washington, July 12.

The mural criticized by Bishop Freeman, wherein is depicted a scene of brutal conflict with police officers, is without doubt in execrable taste. No public good is served by the public display by picturization of examples of physical combat or public torture, whether such be the rack of the Inquisition, the gallows for dissenters or the misguided zeal of officials. Such remembrances of the weaknesses of mankind are for the contrite and serious student of history, who may seek to discover the causes and try to minimize their occurrence.

NATHAN BOONE WILLIAMS.

Under Pressure

Since pressure has been put upon them, our police force has exerted every effort to round up the criminals in this city. Result: Innumerable tickets to those motorists guilty of petty traffic violations. Keep it up, boys! You'll scare the thieves, murderers and rapers from parking in the wrong place. At least the citizens who pay your salaries know you are busy, even if the lawbreakers don't BERNARD COOPER.
Washington, July 13.

Puzzled

I have a few questions to ask, which bother me day and night. Perhaps some of your readers or some military and political experts can give me the replies. The following are the questions:

If Finland was a democracy during the Russo-Finnish war, why is she fighting on Hitler's side now? Would not her true democratic character reveal itself if she fought on the Soviet side, for the Soviet is fighting on democracy's side? How is it that, according to our press and radio, some 300,000 Finnish troops annihilated vast numbers of Russians during that war and now that these same Russians are facing the 5,000,000 best soldiers in Europe, the Russians are seemingly able to hold them dead in their tracks?

Just five minutes ago I heard on my radio that Vichy confirms all Soviet communiques as being truthful, the communiques which are announcing the tremendous Soviet victories over combined Nazi, Italian, Finnish, Spanish, Hungarian, Rumanian and Croatian troops. How is this that all of a sudden the Soviet became so mighty a fighting machine? Where are those "military experts" to explain the almost unbelievable phenomenon of the Soviets holding Nazi troops dead in their tracks for the first time since the European War?

LOUIS BARNABA.
Washington, July 7.

Wheeler Vs. Knox

Senator Wheeler has asked for the impeachment of Secretary of the Navy Knox because the Secretary, in his address before the Conference of Governors in Boston last month recommended that the United States clear the Atlantic from the menace of German U-boats and surface raiders. The reality of the menace is evidenced by the sinking of the Robin Moor. The Secretary's recommendation was intended to protect the Americas and prevent the recurrence of further sinkings of American ships.

In view of Senator Wheeler's recent action in making public information about strategic movements of United States naval vessels—an action which might have resulted in the loss of many lives—would it not be appropriate, if impeachment proceeding are instituted, that they should be directed, not against the Secretary of the Navy, but against a garrulous Senator who leaks like a sieve whenever he secures any confidential official data that would be of use to hostile powers?

E. McLEAN.
Washington, July 10.

Mock Raid

A dispatch in The Post from Anderson, S. C., states "Fifth Column to Seize City in Mock Raid." It explains that "Fifth Columnists" who look like any other "happy-go-lucky young men from 14 Southern colleges" will enter the city and drift to assigned posts, where tomorrow night they will seize the key public offices and establishments in preparation for the entry of 800 motorized, armed and uniformed cadets.

What is the object of such maneuvers? If it is to prove to Americans that troops disguised as civilians can betray a country, we do not need such a demonstration, for we surely have sense enough to realize the possibility, after the living examples of this sort of strategy furnished by the small countries of Europe.

To me there is nothing but danger in such a game. If there is any gain it is so neglible as to be of little or no value. Why make it easy for the Nazis to take over the country by showing them the way?

LAURA K. POLLOCK.

The "Yoo-Hoos" Take Another Ride

I'm having fun sitting back laughing at this stir over the "Yoo-Hoo" troops. The mothers ("Mothers Voice Ire," Post July 11) who ran to teacher to keep her from disciplining little Johnny are still at it. There's sabotage for you from the cradle up. If the United States goes under, the blame can be finally placed with "molly-coddling" mothers who protect their darlings so that they never give them time to think. Let's hope we have enough of the "fine young men" we read about to save us. As I understand it, the soldiers rode awhile and walked awhile. What's all the squawk about? If it had been maneuvers, they might have had to walk the 15 miles in one stretch.

MRS. G. O. RUSSELL.
Washington, July 11.

Accusations of yielding its delegated authority and surrendering constitutional functions to the Executive increase against Congress with the days. But if the Congressional caliber may be determined by recent and absurd attacks made by Congressmen in the House of Representatives on a lieutenant general of the Army for effecting severe but due punishment of troops in his command, for forgetting while passing through Memphis, Tenn., in formation, that any and every individual in the United States Army is traditionally and objectively a soldier and a gentleman, then the sooner the President takes over Congress fully, the better.

Called to the colors ostensibly for all-out defense preparation, our youngsters are actually being got ready for all-in war. "Hell" in Gen. Sherman's day, war is twin hells now. It must be fought by trained soldiers; and no amount of due provision for trainees' recreation in and out of military cantonments can discount the axiom that it is as impossible to coddle soldiers in the making and make soldiers in the coddling as it would be to make effective explosive bombs, shells and cartridges with sawdust and excelsior. We are in for war! None of our leaders in Government is responsible. It is inevitable; and readiness for it is the inescapable duty of the Nation—individually and collectively.

It cannot possibly make the least difference in principle that the offending troops failed to recognize in the protesting gentleman upon the Memphis golf course their humiliated commanding general in civilian attire. Soldiers in formation passing through a community are, essentially, a "sourpuss" army, and in no case entitled to "heehaw" any citizen who might object to their catcalls to unknown young women traversing a golf course.

RIENZI B. LEMUS.
Washington, July 11.

They should certainly discipline that mean general who sentenced those poor soldiers to a 15-mile march without providing them with umbrellas to protect them from the burning sun. I am sure the enemy would not take advantage of our soldiers if they were ever called upon to walk so far or fight under such conditions. Perish the thought.

The Post Impressionist

Balladmonger

Late in January, 1906, Miss Alice Roosevelt, soon to be married to Representative Nicholas Longworth, was in New York on a shopping expedition. The President's daughter and her fiance went down the bay to Quarantine on the revenue cutter Manhattan to meet the Countess de Chambrun on January 30. The American-born countess was aboard the Kaiser Wilhelm der Grosse. So eager was Miss Roosevelt to greet her future sister-in-law that she clambered up a swaying rope ladder from the cutter to the ocean liner.

The New York Times the next day devoted a front-page column to the story, relating that as the bride-to-be waited to grasp the ladder for her 25-foot climb, "Congressman Longworth stood beside her, protesting, but not persuading." The article was carried over from the right-hand column of page 1 to page 2, where about two-thirds of a column completed the account of Alice's adventure. That issue of the Times contained no obituary of Paul Dresser, one of the men who made America sing. He had died the day before.

The New York Herald carried a dispatch from Providence, R. I., on January 31, under a two-column headline: "Mme. Bernhardt Mourns for Spot; Actress Weeps Over Loss of Pet Collie Killed by Trolley Car in Portland." The story of the canine casualty and its effect on the star of "Camille" took 63 lines. A one-column head in the same issue of the Herald, topping a 30-line obit, read: "Paul Dresser Dies, Ill Three Days."

Mark Sullivan states that "among the song writers themselves, Paul Dresser was frequently appraised as being, in the 90's, nearest to Stephen Foster, as the father of the American ballad," while Edward B. Marks, music publisher and Tin Pan Alley historian, asserts that Dresser, with about 200 pieces, of which two dozen were hits, was the world's most popular song writer. The composer endeared himself to his fellow Hoosiers for all time with "On the Banks of the Wabash," and in "My Gal Sal" he gave us a torch song of perennial appeal.

Theodore Dreiser suggested the Wabash when his brother, who Americanized their surname, asked the novelist in 1896: "What do you suppose would make a good song these days?" Paul idly fingered a piano. Looking up from his writing, Theodore mentioned the Wabash, "as good as any other river, and you were raised beside it." At Dresser's urging, Dreiser dashed off verse and chorus. "The song," editorialized the Indianapolis News, January 31, 1906, "breathes the very spirit of our people—their love of home, their feeling of exile when they are away, their longing to return, and their affection for the very soil of Indiana."

Born in Terre Haute (in 1857, according to E. B. Marks; in 1852, according to Dreiser), Paul was intended by his family for the priesthood, but he ran away with a medicine show, later becoming a roving minstrel and monologist and costarring in farce and melodrama, including "A Green Goods Man," which he wrote; "The Two Johns" and "A Tin Soldier." Gravitating to New York, Dresser was prominent in inaugurating the sob-ballad cycle in the emotional eighties. Among his early numbers were "The Lone Grave," "Here Lies an Actor" and "The Old Stage Door." "The Blue and the Gray" was copyrighted in 1890 but attained popularity during the Spanish-American War, after the author brought the lyric up to date: the younger brother of two men buried at Appomattox and Chickamauga had been slain in Santiago. In the mother section of the Dresser catalog were "I Wonder Where She Is Tonight," "Calling to Her Boy Just Once Again" and "Every Night There's a Light."

Accompanied by Harry Kennedy, who wrote "Say Au Revoir, But Not Goodby" and "A Flower from Mother's Grave," Dresser ran into a vaudeville headliner in New York. That very day, the sad-faced star related, her brother had passed away in prison—one hour before his pardon arrived. Perhaps fearing that Kennedy would beat him to it, Dresser dashed to his room and produced "The Pardon Came Too Late." Usually he composed on an organ in his room in a Broadway hotel; the Gilsey House or the Marlborough was his home for 15 years. Dick Jose, tenor, or his protegee, Louise Dresser, introduced his output to the public.

"Listen to this, will you, Thee?" he invited his brother, on a November Sunday afternoon. As he played and sang "Just Tell Them that You Saw Me," Paul's voice broke and the audition ended. Six months later the title was on America's lips, as a parting phrase. "Just Tell Them" was copyrighted in 1895 by Howley, Haviland & Co. Paul was in the firm in Twentieth Street, just east of Fifth Avenue. After Fred Haviland quit, Howley and Dresser moved up to Broadway, but without success. Paul opened his own two-room office at 51 West Twenty-eighth Street, to plug his compositions, "The Town Where I Was Born" and "My Gal Sal." Referring to the latter, he told friends: "It's the best song I have ever written. It's a million-copy hit, but I can't push it because I am broke."

His songs had earned him a half-million dollars. In prosperous days he didn't save. Stout and jolly, he was everybody's friend, handing out money to the less fortunate. Undaunted now, the corpulent composer, in frock coat and silk hat, visited nightly various rendezvous, to tell Broadway he had a hit, to plead that it be played. Mr. Marks points out that Paul Dresser was the last of the group active in the 80's to turn out a hit. But it was not until after his death from heart failure induced by dropsy, at his sister's home, 203 West 106th Street, January 30, 1906, that "Sal" joined "Sweet Marie," "Kathleen," "Margie" and the other deathless, lyrical ladies.

Danger Of Inflation

By Ernest K. Lindley

The Importance Of Its Prevention

LINDLEY

LEON HENDERSON, head of OPACS, has warned again of the "grave danger" of inflation. This danger is now generally recognized by economists, in and outside the Government: not a super-inflation of the German or French type but one comparable with the inflation which occurred in the United States during World War I. An increase of 50 per cent or more in the cost of living during the coming 12 months or so is considered possible unless strong counter measures are taken.

The situation, in Henderson's words, is simply that "there will be more purchasing power running around hunting something to buy than there are goods available."

AN INFLATION on the scale of World War I would play havoc with the living standards of people dependent on fixed incomes: whether they are salaries or incomes from bonds. It is bound to mean continual demands for higher wages, with resulting unsettlement in industry and still higher prices. It will increase the cost of national defense to the Federal Treasury. And, judging from past experience, shortly after the war there will be a deflation, which will be still harder to bear than the inflation.

Henderson promises that OPACS will "barge ahead" in its efforts to keep prices within reason. Henderson has been "barging ahead" for nine months and has been remarkably successful in holding back price rises. But he has done it chiefly by persuasion and strong words. He has very little power.

Democratic Congressional leaders are bearish about the prospects for getting Henderson the price-fixing powers which he needs. They are disposed to wait until rising living costs create consumer pressure for action. By then, however, Henderson's job will be more difficult than it already is.

PRICE-FIXING authority is, moreover, only one of the powerful instruments needed to avoid a disruptive inflation. The two other most important weapons are taxation and increased production.

Henderson has been clamoring for months for increased production, especially of the metals needed for defense, so that some may be left for civilian use. The big shortages for civilian use are coming in the durable goods containing metals. There will be shortages, too, in articles containing imported materials, for lack of shipping space means that very little except defense necessities can be brought in, even when plentiful supplies can be bought abroad.

If civilians cannot buy all the automobiles and refrigerators and radios they want, they will turn to other articles. In World War I, silk shirts became a popular luxury item. This time it may be 50 other things.

THE PRODUCTION of many articles, especially nonmetallic items and those which do not have to be imported, can be expanded up to a certain point. But not enough, certainly, to absorb the purchasing power which will be poured out during the coming months and which will not be allowed to flow into channels which compete with defense output.

Production can be increased by building new plants or working existing ones extra shifts. It can be increased by simplifying designs and reducing varieties. It can be increased by paying special subsidies to high-cost producers and by careful spreading, instead of bunching, of Government orders for such articles as shoes, clothing and lumber. All of these methods are being applied or advocated by Henderson and Donald Nelson, chief of the Purchasing Division of OPM.

But with taxation Henderson and other officials who are anxious about inflation have made little progress so far. The tax bill worked out by the House Ways and Means Committee was a hodge-podge of political compromises.

THE TAX BILL hits the middle-income brackets, which is proper. But it fails to spread the tax base, does not close the loopholes in the excess profits tax, and is especially weak in the use of excise taxes to restrict and allocate civilian consumption. The output of civilian articles can be restricted by denying the raw materials to the manufacturers. But the simplest and, for the Government the most profitable, way of deciding who gets what is made for civilian use is by clamping on heavy excise taxes.

The middle-income people, many of whom are on salaries, can stand heavier taxes. But what they are confronted with now is both higher taxes and the prospect of a sharp rise in living costs. The combination may be devastating.

While war and defense production make more exciting news now, the danger of inflation is real and imminent, in the opinion of well-informed economists and officials, and its prevention is as essential to a sound defense as are more tank factories, more airplanes and more armored divisions.

Iceland Garrison Repays Visit of Lief Ericson

"Leif Ericson, we are here!" could be the motto of the United States Naval forces recently landed in Iceland.

"The far-north island of Iceland on the boundary line between hemispheres was the birthplace of Leif Ericson," recalls a bulletin from the National Geographic Society. "It was the almost forgotten base which indirectly launched the Icelandic navigator upon his traditional discovery of America nearly 500 years before Columbus.

"The United States Congress in 1930 presented Iceland with a statue of Leif Ericson, which stands in the island's capital, Reykjavik. The United States in 1935 designated October 9 as Leif Ericson Day, after a resolution passed by Congress, as a 'fitting tribute to a man by a country which was the field of his explorations.'

"Leif's hot-tempered father, Eric the Red, was one of the Norwegians who had colonized Iceland after 870 A. D. in such numbers that Norway's king feared the homeland would be depopulated. There Eric married and Leif was born. Banished from Iceland in 981 for feuding with his neighbors, Eric ventured westward and discovered a larger, icier island, which he promptly began to promote as a pioneer 'real estate development' under the attractive name, Greenland.

"Eric's three sons, of whom Leif was the most celebrated, became outstanding navigators through the necessity of obtaining supplies from Iceland and Norway. It was customary to split the hazardous sea journey to Norway into two voyages of nearly a thousand miles each, by stopping over at Iceland. Leif achieved the renown of being the first man to make a nonstop Atlantic crossing, by skipping Iceland on his unprecedented voyage to Norway in the year 999. On the return trip, however, again trying to do without the usual Iceland stopover, he lost his course and beached his little ship by mistake on an unknown shore which he named Vinland. Writers have attempted to identify Leif's fertile Vinland the Good, where he was impressed by the abundance of trees and wild grapes, with various spots along the coast of northeastern North America, as far south as Cape Cod."

Ex-Rep. Archie Sanders Dies in New York at 84

Rochester, N. Y., July 15 (AP).—Archie D. Sanders, 84, who served 16 years as Representative in Congress (1917-32) from western New York's Thirty-ninth District after brief terms in the New York Legislature, died today.

President McKinley appointed him a director of Internal Revenue in 1898, which office he held 14 years. He was a Republican.

Philip Murray to Stay Few Weeks in Hospital

Pittsburgh, July 15 (AP).—Philip Murray, C. I. O. president, who collapsed Sunday during a game of badminton at a family outing, will be confined to Mercy Hospital for a few weeks, his physician said today.

Dr. W. L. Mullins reported he had suffered a slight heart attack.

Picking The Winner

Shanghai, July 15.—Japan and Japanese-occupied China are at present marking time, awaiting the outcome of the European hostilities, especially the Russo-German war, although speculations about what action Japan will take are increasing daily.

It is well known that Japan is waiting the outcome anxiously so as to be able to ally herself with the winning side, thereby achieving the greatest advantages, yet reports reaching Shanghai describe Japan as facing an internal crisis over the course most profitable to pursue.

Foreign Minister Matsuoka and his party believe they will be able to induce Russia to sell oil from the Caspian and iron ore from the Urals to Japan, besides winning considerable lumber and fishing concessions. They hope also to conclude a binding nonaggression pact with Russia, thereby freeing Japan's northern borders of any threat from the Soviets while providing sinews for a southward advance.

SOME QUARTERS believe that the return to Japan of Mamoru Shigemitsu from London brings the possibility that he will assume Matsuoka's position as foreign minister and institute a new policy whereby Japan will withdraw from south China, open the Pearl and the Yangtze Rivers unconditionally to foreign trade with Japan maintaining only small garrisons at Shanghai, Nanking and Hankow. Under this policy Japan would keep a dominant position in the northern Chinese provinces of Hopei, Shantung, Charhar, Sui-yaun and northern Honan.

Shigmitsu's adherents believe they will be able to interest Great Britain in this scheme and then turn their attention northwards, especially to the maritime Siberian provinces with their greatest attention being paid to the year-round ice-free Soviet port of Petropavlovsk and the possible blockade of the entire Soviet Asiatic coast line as a measure to persuade the Soviets to agree to Japanese demands.

Meanwhile, Japanese people are insistent about calling for an extra meeting of the Diet at which it is expected many searching questions would be asked concerning the government's, the army's and the navy's exact plans and their policies for the future.

HOWEVER, THE United States at the moment is holding all the cards in decisions as to war or peace in Far Eastern waters. Should the Soviet Union agree to Matsuoka's plans for extensive shipments of war materials from Russia to Japan for a possible southward push, it would be sure to bring American censure and the stoppage of United States supplies to the Soviet Union and this is something the Russians are most anxious to avoid.

Also any assistance from the Soviets to Japan which can possibly be used against British Malaya and the Dutch East Indies would bring repressions of the recently concluded Anglo-Soviet pact against Germany. The Shigemitsu group's plans for a northward advance would be equally coldly received by the United States because the acquisition of the Soviet naval base at Petropavlovsk would permit the Japanese navy to concentrate in North Pacific waters. This move would become a definite threat to United States bases.

It is believed here that Soviet submarines, estimated to total 100, could render a blockade rather ineffective.

Furthermore, foreign observers believe that should Japan attempt to blockade the Soviet North Pacific coasts the Soviets would regard the action as unfriendly, whether declared or undeclared, and possibly retaliate against Japan.

War Reporter Finds No Love For Fat Man

By Eddy Gilmore

Associated Press Staff Writer

London, July 15.—The cruel lash of war has driven even the ever-bowing, ever-smiling British tailor into the ranks of those who do not love a fat man.

"You see, sir," said the tailor, after encircling my girth (Eddy weighs 220 pounds) with his tape measure, "this clothes rationing has not taken into consideration you gentlemen who are, let us say, robust."

"You mean we don't get clothes?"

"Oh, yes, you get them, but we don't get any extra coupons for you."

You see, under rationing, a man must hand over 26 coupons in buying a suit. But—

"For a gentleman your size," apologized the tailor, "we must hand over 30 coupons to the cloth-dealer. We lose six coupons' worth of goods on, let us say, robust gentlemen, sir."

"But how could the government forget the fat man?" we protested.

"Well," the tailor reflected, "there are not so many about, you know, sir, with food rationing and all that."

But the tailor agreed that something should be done.

"I understand a Birmingham tailor has complained to the Master Tailors Association. He's really in difficulty.

"He has a customer who weighs 280 pounds. It costs the tailor 16 coupons extra every time this man comes in for a suit."

"Well, that's one problem you don't have to worry about," I suggested.

"Yes, sir," sighed the tailor. "But I hear this gentleman's moving to London."

State Of The Army

By Mark Sullivan

Its Shortcomings And Its Needs

CONGRESS this week starts to deal with mistakes made about the Army a year ago. "Deal with" them—but not necessarily correct them. One at least is the sort of mistake that goes on to almost inevitable confusion.

When the draft law was before Congress last August, there was an immense outpouring of testimony before committees—it must have included all the expert wisdom that was possible. From that testimony there was a deduction, impressive by the number and authority of those who put it forward, and by its common-sense.

SULLIVAN

In the existing state of the world, America needs, as respects an army, two separate things. One is a permanent Regular Army. The important thing about this permanent Army is its permanence. This permanent Army need not be huge. The judgments of witnesses before Congressional committees a year ago ran from three-quarters of a million to a million and a quarter—the average judgment was a million.

THIS PERMANENT Regular Army, just for the sake of its permanence, needs to be made up of men who make a career of the Army—the same kind of men who have always made up our Regular Army; men who voluntarily enlist because they like the Army as a career, or because the Army is a better career than others open to them, and who reenlist for the same reason. Only by men serving year after year can a good modern army be made up.

A modern army must be technical as no army ever was before. A great requisite is familiarity with tanks and other intricate machines. A soldier should be a highly skilled mechanic, having more experience with machines than he can acquire in a single one-year enlistment. Another requisite is quick mobility—the mobility of an army using tanks and trucks and moving at a pace sometimes of 30 miles per hour, a faster pace per hour than old time armies could go in a day. This mobility on fast moving wheels, in fast moving trucks and tanks, with airplanes accompanying, can only be acquired by long cooperation of relatively the same men. A modern army of tens of thousands of men or more should have the speed and quick cooperation of a football eleven. This modern kind of mobility, likewise, requires more training in units than can be acquired in a single one-year enlistment.

We need such an army, of about a million men, as a permanent Regular Army, year in and year out, without much change of personnel.

THEN WE NEED a second thing, for emergency. We need a system of universal compulsory military training for every youth. (Bear in mind the distinction between military training and service in the army.) We need a system of universal military training to be given every youth, at 18 to 22 or so, during the year following school or college, and to last for one year only. This system, after a few years, would give the country a reserve of millions, having one year of training, available to supplement and build up the permanent Army in case of emergency.

Now the mistake we made was to mix up these two objectives. We did neither thing and tried to do both in one.

WE COULD have built up the permanent Regular Army by voluntary enlistments of the sort of men who have always made up our Regular Army. Some denied that we could get as many as a million men by this process. But at that time we could have. We already had some 200,000 men, and enlistments were increasing in a volume never before equaled. Perhaps it would have helped to make the pay and other conditions more attractive. At that time, a period of much unemployment, there were more than a million young men who could have found the Army a good career—as indeed it is at any time, for any type of young man who fits. There were half a million young men in the CCC camps alone—the Government, while needing men for the Army, was offering more attractive pay and other conditions in CCC.

So, we did not build up a permanent Regular Army. Neither did we do the other thing—adopt a system of compulsory universal military training for youths leaving school and college. Instead, we attempted two things in one. We put under draft every man in the country up to the age of 35. We did not take them for military training merely; we inducted them into the Army. At the same time we fixed the period of enlistment at one year—far too short a period to make an army.

IN THIS CONDITION the Army, the high-rank officials, did the best they could—they always do. They already had a good permanent Army made up of regulars, some 200,000 of them experienced in cooperation as units. These units the Army now broke up, so as to spread the Regulars out thin among the draftees, in order to train the latter. The result is, today, we have neither a good small Army nor a good large Army. If the draftees were retired at the end of their one year of service, leaving only scattered and fragmentary bodies of Regulars, these Regulars would need to be regrounded before we could say we had a real Army. If the one-year period for draftees is not extended, the system of spreading the Regulars out among successive instalments of draftees would continue indefinitely.

The Gallup Poll

93% Haven't Slightest Idea of What Last War Cost U. S. in Men and Money

By Dr. George Gallup

Director, American Institute of Public Opinion

Princeton, N. J., July 15.—If all the Nation's 50,000,000 voters could be assembled on one radio quiz program and asked how much money the last World War cost the United States and how many American soldiers were killed, more than 93 people in every 100 would flunk each question, even allowing for the maximum leniency in scoring their answers.

However, even if the general public cannot say exactly how much the World War did cost in men and money, the majority have the distinct impression that the present war would cost the United States a great deal more if she gets into it.

Those facts are revealed in a Nation-wide "quiz poll" by the American Institute of Public Opinion from coast to coast. It was conducted among a representative cross-section numbering 3,072 persons, so selected as to represent correctly every group in the voting population.

The results establish the fact that a good many people confuse millions and billions. Of all who ventured a guess on the cost of the last war, a surprising number thought it was less than $100,000,000 dollars, while an equally large group thought it was more than $75,000,000,000. A few actually said the war cost "hundreds of billions" or "several trillions."

The quiz began with this question:

"Do you happen to have any idea how much money the United States spent in the first World War?"

The results are:

Yes..........15%
No..........85

According ot Treasury estimates, the total cost of the World War to the United States, including uncollected foreign debts, was more than $41,000,000,000 up to 1934. Actual War and Navy Department costs for the conflict itself were approximately $19,000,000,000. Hence, on the most lenient scoring basis, any answer in the quiz between $18,000,000,000 and $45,000,000,000 could be grudgingly accurate, depending on what items are included.

Only 5 per cent in the quiz named a figure in that range.

The next question in the survey was:

"Do you happen to have any idea how many Americans were killed as a result of the first World War?"

Yes..........21%
No..........79

Army and Navy records show 37,568 killed in action and 12,942 deaths from wounds received in action, or a total of 50,510 dead.

In the quiz, however, only 6 per cent named a figure between 40,000 and 60,000.

Many thought the figure was between 100,000 and 500,000, while some said more than a million American soldiers were killed as a result of the war.

"If we go into the war, would you say that it will cost our country more money, or less money than the first World War?"

More..........87%
Less..........1
About the same..........5
No opinion..........7

Next, the survey sought to discover what the country thinks about the possible cost of another war.

"If we go into the war, would you say that we will have more soldiers and sailors killed, or fewer, than in the first World War?"

More..........45%
Fewer..........31
About the same..........9
No opinion..........15

Run Of The Mine

OFFHAND, it may be hard to imagine a more dreary item for summer reading than an official circular of the United States Bureau of Mines of the Department of Interior, but as today's offset against the propaganda of the Communist conspiracy against American industry I cite from such a document issued last January. The Communist in American journalism is most deceptive and effective when he gets a job with a paper purporting to be an American publication, for he then has an opportunity to distort and falsify for a larger and more trusting circulation than he could reach through the columns of, say, the Daily Worker.

Why publishers who purport to be Americans, as distinguished from Muscovites, employ as reporters and writers men and women known to them to be Communists or consistent fellow-travelers, and why they do not fire such individuals and be damned to the Labor Relations Board, considering that the Government itself claims the right to do so in the interest of national safety, one may ask but never learn.

THE PUBLISHERS have free access to the public mind and could go to the people with their case with a certainty of being upheld. Instead, however, they seem to regard as a private, household fight the attempt of the Communists to control and class-angle the news, forgetting that the free press is not only theirs but everybody's.

Within the past year a considerable stir was created by propaganda purporting to show that mine disasters were due to the greed and inhuman indifference of soulless corporations which operate mines and to the lack of legislation to make them guard better the lives of men engaged in an occupation which is extremely dangerous at best.

The needs of laws to protect mines from risks which can be reduced by compulsory safety measures will be generally acknowledged, but the fact that miners themselves have been responsible for many of their own disasters has not received appropriate emphasis in this obscure mimeographed document of the Bureau of Mines, which, being a political principality of the empire of Harold F. Ickes, certainly cannot be suspected of partiality to American free industry.

THIS PAPER says that "men engaged in the hazardous occupation of mining indulge with the utmost indifference" in the habit of smoking "under circumstances that may jeopardize not only their own lives but those of scores—even of hundreds—of their fellow-workers as well. The old adage that stolen sweets are the best . . . when applied to the practice of smoking surreptitiously in a coal mine, especially in a gassy mine, is without even remote foundation."

"Smoking," says the circular, "has been the cause or the suspected cause of many gas explosions and black powder ignitions and has resulted in numerous instances of injury, loss fo life and destruction of property. Many fires in both coal and metal mines, causing loss of life, have been caused by smoking."

The circular then says that in the first seven months of 1940 there were at least three ignitions, "possibly as a result of smoking," and adds that between 1839 and 1939 ignition from either open lights or smoking was responsible for 23.7 per cent of the mine explosions of which records were available. Of 130 explosions in the Alabama mines 76.9 per cent are attributed to open lights and smoking. The bureau admits its inability to determine positively how many disasters were caused by smoking and how many by open lights, but says that for more than 100 years these have been the important causes of disastrous mine explosions.

THE CIRCULAR says the conclusion definitely is supported that smoking caused an explosion in Bartley, W. Va., on January 10, 1940, in which 91 men were killed. Although the men were searched daily for matches and smokers' articles, cigarettes were found in a miner's jacket, and the bureau holds this to indicate strongly that this man and probably others smoked in the mine that day.

Enforcement of laws and rules against smoking is difficult, the circular grants. Miners hide smoking materials in their lunch buckets, between slices of bread, in their thermos bottles, in their shoes or socks or in hidden pockets in their underwear, and the responsibility of miners for disasters is bluntly summed up in an official finding of the Bureau of Mines that "the laws and regulations against smoking are being violated with impunity, causing much needless loss of life."

Hitler's Bad Guess

By Barnet Nover

The Anglo-Russian Alliance

NOVER

THE "agreement for joint action" concluded on July 12 by Great Britain and Soviet Russia is the inevitable corollary to the state of affairs that came into being on June 22. On that day Hitler launched his assault on the Soviet Union. Russia resisted. In so doing she became Britain's ally in fact, a circumstance which the profoundly realistic Winston Churchill was quick to recognize and acclaim. The two nations have now agreed to be allies in name as well.

Fighting a common foe, it is obviously to the interests both of Russia and Great Britain "to render each other assistance and support of all kinds." It is equally to their interest to "undertake that during this war they will neither negotiate nor conclude an armistice or treaty of peace except by mutual agreement." The pact of July 12 is thus the diplomatic recognition of a partnership created on the field of battle.

THE IMMEDIATE importance of the Anglo-Russian alliance, however, is neither military nor diplomatic but psychological. The principal aid which Great Britain can render her partner is to remain an active combatant, and that she was determined to do whether or not Russia joined the fray. Russia, for her part, can best help Great Britain by making Hitler's latest venture in warmaking as costly as possible. And that is to her own interest as well.

However, by making it clear to the Russians that they have powerful supporters abroad, the alliance helps bolster Russian morale at a time when the Germans are claiming smashing victories. And so long as Russian morale does not crack under the impact of the German drive, Hitler's victories may prove tentative rather than conclusive. For if the Russian army remains an army in being, even though driven back many miles beyond its present lines, the acquisition of large stretches of Russian territory will not help Hitler win the war. On the contrary, he may be choked by his seeming victories.

THE ANGLO-RUSSIAN alliance is proof that Hitler lost a major battle the very moment the guns began to pop on the eastern front. That battle was fought in the psychological sphere in which the Nazis have hitherto proved themselves masters. It was psychological weapons that won Austria for Hitler, enabled him to conquer Czechoslovakia without firing a shot, helped him achieve the spectacular triumph over France, helped him to acquire satellite nations in the Balkans.

In attacking Soviet Russia, Hitler undoubtedly hoped to make capital of the very strong anti-Communist sentiment that exists in Great Britain and the United States and elsewhere. Writing in the Christian Science Monitor under date of May 3, when the present Russo-German war appeared to be only a faint possibility, Joseph C. Harsh, until recently that newspaper's Berlin correspondent, told of conversations he had with German foreign office officials who had discussed with him the probable benefits of a German attack on Russia. Among these were a truce with Britain and an easing of the "tendency to intervention, and even to rearmament, in the United States."

IN AN ADDRESS to Latin American educators in New York, Mayor Fiorella LaGuardia declared that Hitler agents have been attempting to promote peace feelers in this country. This the Acting Secretary of State, Mr. Sumner Welles, has corroborated.

In view of the fact that the German-Russian war is only in its fourth week, the assumption must be that the Third Reich has been preparing to capitalize on the attack on Russia to weaken the anti-Hitler coalition in the west.

HITLER gambled and lost. Since June 22 Great Britain has manifested no desire to come to terms with Germany. On the contrary, the R. A. F. has been making use of the golden opportunity created by the shift of a large part of the Luftwaffe to the east to intensify its bombing of German and German-held cities. And on Monday Winston Churchill declared that this activity will increase rather than diminish with each passing month. "It is time," he said, "the Germans should be made to suffer in their own homeland and cities something of the torments they have twice in our lifetime let loose upon their neighbors and upon the world . . . There can be no truce or parley with Hitler or the grisly gang who did Hitler's worst."

Nor has American public opinion fallen into the trap which the Nazis baited for them by raising anew the banner of an anti-Communist crusade. There have been those who have allowed themselves to be taken in by that clap-trap. But they are definitely in a minority in this country. Certainly, so far as the Nation as a whole is concerned, the spread of the war to Russia has resulted in no weakening in the official policy of all-out-aid to Britain and other enemies of the Axis. Indeed, the occupation of Iceland constitutes a long step forward in the direction of implementing that policy.

HITLER'S "CRUSADE" has thus fallen flat. It has won over those who were already converted—the defeatists, the appeasers, the Naziphiles. Great Britain would have none of it. Nor the United States. Nor the exiled governments allied to Great Britain.

In attacking Russia, the Nazis hoped to achieve a psychological victory which, coupled with the military triumph they expected and may indeed secure, would enable them to win the war. The psychological battle was lost at the very outset. The military victories are being achieved but at a great price. The final triumph is further off than ever.

Canada Adopts 'Ickes' Plan To Conserve Oil

Ottawa, July 15 (AP).—Canada adopted an Ickes oil conservation measure today in an order banning the sale, delivery and distribution of gasoline and lubricants to motorists from 7 p. m. to 7 a. m. weekdays and throughout Sunday for all Canada.

Coupled with the order was a prediction by Canada's oil controller, G. R. Cottrelle, that similar restrictions certainly would follow in the United States.

Cottrelle recently conferred with the United States oil coordinator, Harold L. Ickes, who has called for decreased gasoline consumption in the United States by such voluntary means as the elimination of fuel-wasting "jackrabbit" starting, carburetor adjustment and reduced speed.

'Mel' Hazen Met Death With His 'Boots On'

About three weeks ago, Commissioner Melvin C. Hazen sat at his desk chatting with a Post reporter.

"When I die," he said, "it probably will be right here in this office."

His prophesy came tragically true yesterday when he collapsed over the same desk and died while friends and District Building associates worked frantically to save him.

But the end came just as he said he wanted it to come—with his "boots on."

One of the city's most beloved characters, "Mel" Hazen—even in his last hours—had the welfare of Washington and its citizens always uppermost in his mind.

His application for retirement, announced by the White House soon after word of his death was made public—came as a surprise to even his closest friends.

"The Boss" knew death was near. He intimated that strongly while discussing his health and position as president of the Board of Commissioners with this reporter that day in his office.

But he said he didn't want to give up—he didn't want to retire to private life and await the inevitable. That's why he kept coming down to work.

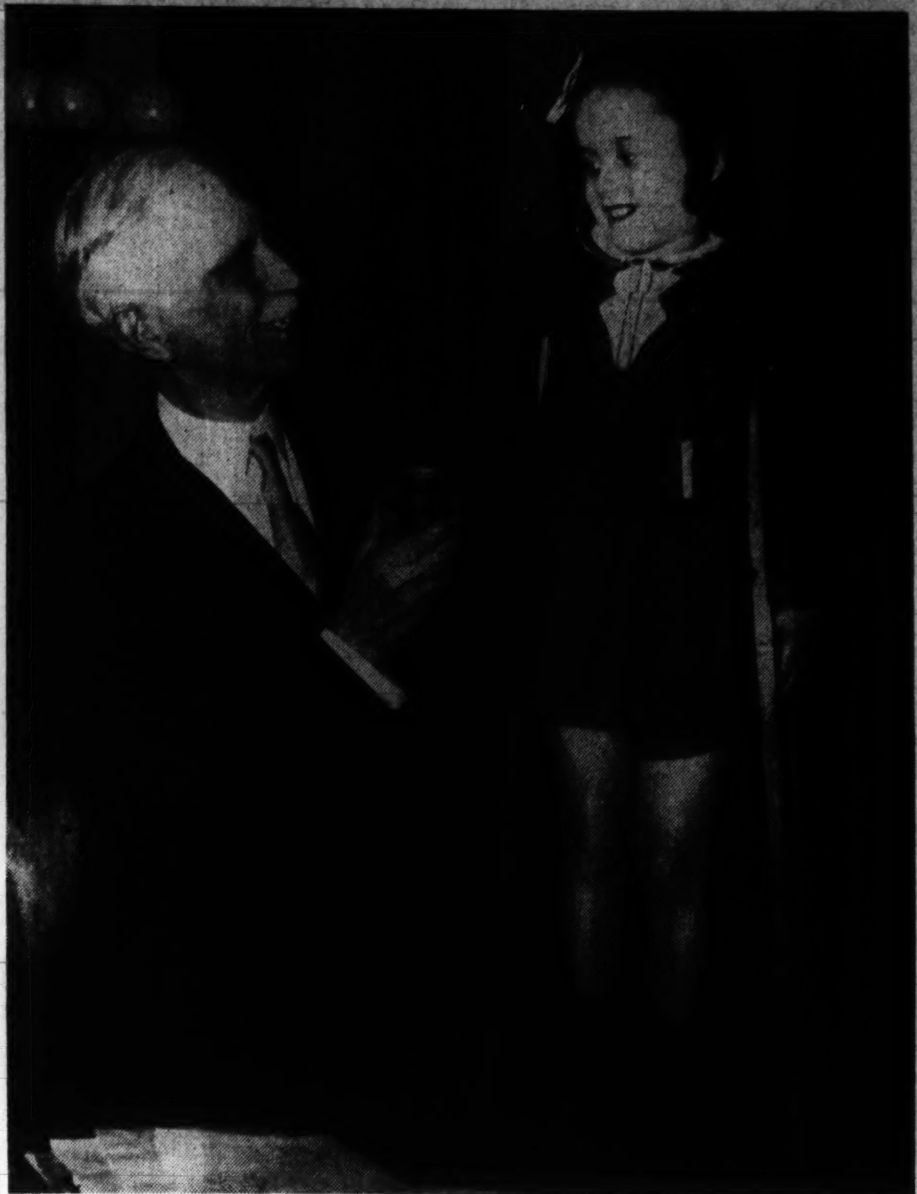
"I want to keep occupied—I'm lonely and think too much when I stick around home," he said.

That's why his application for retirement was such a surprise, and that's why he didn't want his retirement request noised around. He knew better than anyone else what his condition was—but he kept it to himself and continued to do his job.

"I feel fine," he'd say—but you knew he didn't and he, was just grimly trying to hang on.

That was part of "Mel" Hazen's character. Another part was revealed recently when he appeared before the Congressional committee investigating the Police Department and revealed he had been offered $10,000 to "get rid" of Lieut. George Little, head of the police vice squad.

"I'm still a poor man," grinned the Commissioner.



'City Father'—Commissioner Hazen, who was very fond of children, took a leading part in the campaign to fight infantile paralysis. Here, he is shown with Hazel Reigle at Georgetown Children's Home. She gave him her bank full of pennies for the campaign

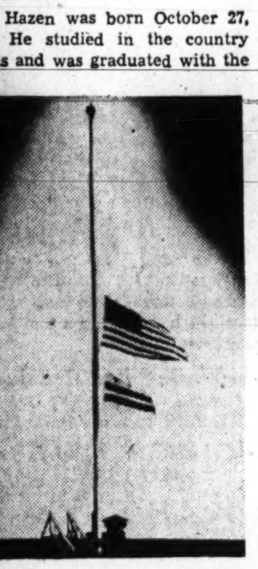
Born in 1867

Mr. Hazen was born October 27, 1867. He studied in the country schools and was graduated with the degree of B. A. from the University of Maryland, in 1888. In 1913 he was given the degree of civil engineer by that university.



FLAGS over District Building are at half-staff

An Izaak Waltonian, member of the Oldest Inhabitants, and director, Columbia Permanent Building Association, Mr. Hazen was a suave, easy-going Virginia gentleman.

Just after the death of Mrs. Hazen, in September, 1939 the Commissioner confided in his friends that he would not seek a third term as Commissioner. But he had not reckoned with his loneliness.

"I want to retire now to my farm and do nothing but breed horses and whittle on a fence," he had said.

Farm Too Lonely

Not long after his conversation with his friends he made a trip to his country place. Wherever he walked, he later said, he kept thinking of Mrs. Hazen and how much she had loved the farm.

"I knew then that I had best remain in the District and occupy my time with District affairs," he said.

A staunch believer in the democratic form of government, Commissioner Hazen, had for many years been an advocate of self-government for the District.

Horses Made Him Friends

He first thought he would like to be a school teacher. He did teach for a short while in Prince William County, but not for long. He came to the District and entered the local government service July 1, 1889.

His interest in riding and breeding horses extended through his life. It was through his interest in horses that he came into such close contact with the late Rear Admiral Cary T. Grayson. Like Hazen, Admiral Grayson was a Virginian. Both were Democrats.

When President Roosevelt was elected for his first term, John F. Costello, District National Committeeman, named Admiral Grayson chairman of the inaugural committee. During his service in that post, Admiral Grayson's acquaintance with Mr. Roosevelt ripened, and although the President was said to have offered him the Commissionership, he refused and successfully pleaded the cause of Mr. Hazen.

Hazen and Washington

Mr. Hazen's favorite story was describing "the things I have in common with George Washington." He would often relate:

"To begin with, George Washington and I were born in Virginia. Then we both liked horses. We were both surveyors and very much interested in Washington. But here our similarity ends. Washington went on to become President and very wealthy and I didn't."

Probably no other Commissioner held and actually carried out his policy of "let the public have its say." Hazen always prided himself with "keeping his door open," so that disgruntled citizens could have their say.

Cranks and professional busybodies always came to see Mr. Hazen, the reason being that Mr. Hazen was willing to hear them.

A Good Greeter

"You know, some of these people really have a lot of sense in what they say," he would comment.

He nearly always tried to do his best for them. He was a good greeter. And he greeted many of the celebrities. He loved it, too.

Whether she be a cherry blossom queen, an azalea queen or a Hollywood star, Mr. Hazen would get up bright and early, if necessary, and be on hand at Union Station with an armful of flowers. After-dinner speeches were also one of his duties. As president of the Board of Commissioners, it usually fell to his lot to be toastmaster or main speaker. He "opened" neighborhood movies, cut the ribbon for the dedication of a bridge, highway, underpass or what not. But he enjoyed it.

Older than the other Commissioners and well acquainted with the needs of the District, Mr. Hazen's word in the board meetings was practically always the sentiment of the body. He was the first to offer the suggestion that if Washington could not get a vote, then it should at least have an advisory council from among the citizens. He was a strong believer in the "will of the people."

A Man of Little Fuss

On June 28, 1939, Mr. Hazen celebrated his fiftieth year in the District service. A testimonial dinner was tendered him at the Mayflower Hotel and more than 800 persons turned out to honor him.

Tall, slim, gray-haired, dark complexioned, Mr. Hazen wore a close-cropped mustache. He was gallant astride his charger and administered his office with little fuss. He was a quiet man, and spoke with a slow drawl and friendly accent.

Mrs. Hazen told one on her husband. It was his seventy-first birthday and someone had sent him a beautiful cake. But he was sick in bed. This did not stop her illustrious husband, for, like "a little boy," Mr. Hazen got up from his sick bed to cut and eat a piece of the cake.

Ideas Got in Print

To newspapermen, Mr. Hazen was always "good copy" and "good for a story." He had a lot of ideas, which usually found themselves printed in the paper. If it was traffic problem, crime wave, Health Department squabble, or practically anything in the public eye, Mr. Hazen would have his piece to say and it usually was the beginning of a solution. One of his hobbies was collecting pictures of famous horses. He would dicker and promise anything but a job for a good one.

Congressmen continually called upon Mr. Hazen "in behalf" of constituents. Mr. Hazen was always polite but reminded the Congressman about the civil service.

Although very fond of children, the couple remained childless. Any District problem involving children always received his first attention. It was during his administration that the District built the Glenn Dale Sanatoria, including a building for children.

Bill Cunningham's Column:

All-Star Game May Be Dropped as Headache . . .

By Bill Cunningham

It's not inconceivable that the All-Star baseball game might be dropped. Everybody connected with it considers it a headache. It's a promotional nuisance and a heavy expense to the host club. Magnates and managers are terrified lest accidents happen to their most valuable players. Regular schedules are interrupted for three days. The players get nothing but the honor and a minor gift from their leagues. The fund it supports has ample funds to carry on. It wouldn't take much to call it off so far as the baseball leagues go. Advertising value and fan interest, are its sole props at the moment . . . Two of life's major afflictions are a sweating waiter and a hiccoughing caddy . . . A national magazine featured a powerful article by Billy Evans "of the Boston Red Sox." What Billy Evans of what Boston Red Sox?

Al Schacht at the All-Star game was still bemoaning the fact that he can't dovetail his dates into a smoothly consecutive pattern. "I have to burn too much gas to make any dough," he ululated.. "The minors don't want me weekends, holidays or bank nights. They want me only on the bum ones, usually the first of the week.. Last year I took in $29,000 and my expenses were better than $16,000, mostly for gas, oil and tires. If I could string 'em along in succession, I'd make a fortune, but I have too much jumping and back-tracking to do."

It's funny how little things hit you big wallops in memorable moments. My principal memory of young Ted Williams sitting on that locker room stool accepting the congratulations and the plaudits of the general constituency after slugging the home run that broke up the big midsummer carnival, is not of Williams at all, but of Jimmy Foxx's face. Foxx, dressing near Williams, was caught in the general whirlpool, and couldn't escape, although nobody was interested in him. That was just the point. He was smiling automatically, while the Kid took all the bows, but it was a reflected smile and not exactly the original article. Of course, he had failed, where the Kid came through. In other years and other even more important, because World Series, scenes, the milling throng had been around him. There was nothing grudging in the look, but there was something sad about it just the same. Old age . . . the realization of passing on, maybe, or did I just imagine such things?

Samuel Jackson whaled that agate real elegantly in the Denver P. G. A., apparently well over the back and stomach trouble that had him hog-tied at Fort Worth. Nobody can understand why he has trouble with his stomach, since he neither smokes nor drinks nor gorges himself. Furthermore he was an all-around athlete as a kid, and is, even today, something of a muscular marvel . . . One of his fellow pros advanced a theory. "The trouble with Sam," this gentleman said, "is that his innards just can't get used to regular meals.. He ate only now and then in those West Virginia hills, and then mostly sow-belly and blackstrap molasses. His system just naturally rebels at sissier victuals. He ought to go back to the grub of his raisin'."

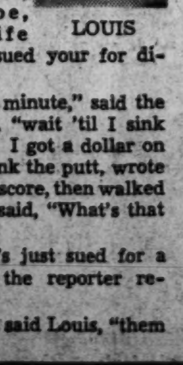
Joe Louis was playing golf when a reporter drove out from Detroit to advise him that his wife had filed suit for divorce. Joe was just walking up on the tee putting the squint on a six-footer when the minion of the press yelled, "Hey, Joe, your wife has just sued your for divorce."



LOUIS

"Just a minute," said the champion, "wait 'til I sink this putt. I got a dollar on it." He sank the putt, wrote down the score, then walked over and said, "What's that you say?"

"Marva's just sued for a divorce," the reporter repeated.

"Nuts," said Louis, "them stories is around all the time."

"But she has," insisted the scribe, "she's gone into the courthouse on you. She says you hit her twice and walked on her ankle once."

"Hit her?" Louis asked incredulously. "What would I want to hit her for? I got all the hittin' I can do against sparring partners. We pay 'em $25 a day just to stand up there and get hit. What for would I ever want to hit her?"

"I don't know," said the knight of the typewriter, "but that's what she says. What are you going to do?"

"Nothing, I guess," said Joe. "If she don't want to be my wife no mo', what can I do? I can't make her."

Then he turned on back to the golf game.

Magic of Color in Women's Apparel Emphasized by 'Best Dressed' Singer

Jessica Dragonette Says Vibrations From Hues Are Fashion Factor

By Jane Driscoll
The Post Fashion Editor

AT A TIME when the world-wide formula for the best dressed woman seems to be the "simple little black dress," it is refreshing to find one who admits she leans heavily on color. Jessica Dragonette loves color so well that when she was in Washington last week, singing with the National Symphony Orchestra, she could scarcely wait to leave for Cheyenne where, in her own words, she was going to "become an Indian princess."

It was difficult to visualize one who says she likes to appear to float out of her clothes" becoming an Indian princess, but petite, vivacious Miss Dragonette had just such a title conferred upon her yesterday. She w'" be free now to wear all the colorful Indian garb she loves. As she talked, the radio soprano was wearing a real Persian fez made of gold embroidery. It was given to her by a Persian admirer of her singing.

Realizes Magic of Color

Much of the secret of Miss Dragonette's success in dressing well, and possibly the reason the Fashion Academy of New York City selected her as the best dressed radio singer for 1940, lies in the fact that she realizes the magic of color. "Colors have wonderful vibration," she said. "For example, I never sing in black because it has a negative effect. But blue has a wonderful influence."

"The most emphasis in a gown should be placed on color and lines," Miss Dragonette explained. "A gown should enhance by blending into the personality—not submerging it or detracting from one's beauty," she said. And just as Miss Dragonette "dresses her songs" (wears the dress that fits into the setting of the song), so she believes a woman should wear the dress that will fit in harmoniously with the occasion.

Miss Dragonette places great stress on the harmonious effect of a dress. "Whatever makes me feel and appear most harmonious, is more apt to have a harmonious effect on everyone around me," she said. By day she suggests very simple clothes, and by night for the stage and evening wear, she advises the picturesque.

Clothes Should Not "Intrude"

Although Miss Dragonette is petite, she makes no attempt to look taller by the clothes she wears. "But," she said, "I am happier in simple lines. I like clothes that are rich and beautiful, yet not complicated. Most important," she added, "clothes should not intrude. If someone remarks that you looked lovely, but cannot remember exactly what you wore, then your clothes and you are a success."

When asked how anyone with such a busy life ever found time to shop, she explained she doesn't shop herself. She depends on personal shoppers in whom she has confidence, to do all her shopping. For the woman with little free time to shop about in stores, she suggests personal shoppers as the solution. "She should plan her wardrobe carefully around a few good costumes and the shoppers will do the rest," she concluded.

Too Much Sun Bad for Linens

When we get sentimental over the good old days when grandma spread her sheets, pillowcases, towels and best table linens on the grass to dry and bleach in the sun, it might be well to remember that in those days there was no scientific equipment for checking what did happen to washing dried in the sun.

According to the American Institute of Laundering, the average curtain material exposed to the sun for the equivalent of a nine-month period loses 90 per cent of its original strength. Even fast colored fabrics lose some of their color when dried in the sun, others become completely bleached out after being dried in the sun 40 times, allowing 20 minutes for each drying period.

Stuffed Green Peppers Attractive and Nutritious

GLISTENING green peppers, so beautiful that artists might paint them, are plentiful in the markets now. This vegetable has many affinities, but one especially fine way to use it is by stuffing it. Stuffed peppers can also be a thrifty food, as leftover, chopped meat can be utilized in pepper cups to make an attractive service as well as a nutritious food. Make them this way:

Stuffed Green Peppers

Cut a slice off top of 4 medium sized peppers and remove seeds and sections. Place in boiling water for 5 minutes, then allow them to drain. Fill the shells with mixture, topping with bread crumbs and dots of butter or grated cheese. Place in baking pan, casserole or muffin tin with enough water or stock in pan to keep them from scorching. Bake in moderate oven, 350 to 375 degrees, basting occasionally. Yield, 4 servings.

Stuffing—Combine 1½ cups cooked chopped meat with 1 small minced onion, 1 chopped hard-cooked egg, 1 tablespoon chopped parsley, salt and pepper.

Variations—Chopped mushrooms may be added to mixture; rice may be mixed with meat; a strip of bacon may be placed over pepper the last 10 minutes of baking.

Father Is Stricken With Incurable Illness Just As Son, 16, Is Ready for College; Should Boy Go Into Father's Business or Continue Studies?

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I am a boy aged 16, just out of high school. I have the choice put before me of either a college education (tuition free) or a junior partnership in a grocery firm. I had definitely decided on college. And then my father was stricken with an illness (said to be incurable) that takes the form of recurrent attacks of suffering. He has been ordered to bed, where he will be for weeks, until some of his strength returns.

If I went to college, the brunt of the store work would fall on my mother's shoulders. And I do not dislike the grocery business. The hours are long but the financial prospects are excellent. On the other hand, I like school very much; and inasmuch as I got good marks in school and finished in the upper bracket of my class, I had wanted to continue my education. I had planned to work for a master's degree and then get a teaching position.

I wish to make it clear that my father,—weak and sick as he is,—has given me the right to choose. He would rather hire a stranger to help with the store than have me "take over," while regretting my loss of a college degree and teaching job. If I choose college, I will feel in my heart that I have been selfish; that I deserted my parents in their hour of need. .And if I choose the store, I may regret the long hours, the little recreation and the loss of a college education. Any constructive advice from you will be greatly appreciated. Sincerely,

UNCERTAIN.

Take Abe Lincoln As Your Pattern

DEAR UNCERTAIN: It has been said that the story of every man's life is the story of his quest for happiness. And happiness, in the last analysis, comes of being at peace with one's self,—as a result of knowing that one has "fought a good fight," and "kept the faith" with his own conscience. In this case, your conscience is strongly opposed to the idea of "choosing college" at the expense of turning your back on your parents "in their hour of need."

Supposing you went off to college, even with your parents' blessing (which they would give), you know you would be going with a troubled mind and heart, —in a state of conflict that would constitute a considerable handicap to student progress. You would be weighed down, too, with a sense of having welched before life's first challenge to you "to be a man" in emergency—valiantly serving and protecting others with no thought of self, as men of heroic proportions invariably do in critical times. So, I think you would do well to listen attentively to your conscience in this decisive hour.

Fortunately, this counsel is not so stern as it may seem. For I actually believe you may become quite as successful, as well rounded, a "man of affairs," by stepping into your father's shoes in the store, as you might become by giving all your time, these next four years, to the pursuit of a college degree. A college education, acquired chiefly for the purpose of being known as "a college man," is a dubious advantage in this tough new world the twentieth century is bringing to pass.

What and where a man may have studied are of less importance than what he knows, or what he can do, that society has need of. Moreover, there is a vast difference between being an educated man and the holder of college degrees. Brains, initiative, vitality, self confidence, trustworthiness, perseverence, human sympathy and democratic ways are the assets a man needs to make an honored and useful place for himself in the world. And if he owns and exercises these qualities, he will become an educated man without special benefit of "alma mammy." Too many college men are like too many so-called "finishing school girls"—of whom a brilliant woman once remarked, "When they come out of finishing school, they're finished, all right." Which is to say, "finished" so far as any possibility of—or even desire for —continuing intellectual growth is concerned.

Rightly viewed, the function of education is not so much to feed regulated doses of assorted information to youth, as it is to stimulate a spirit of tireless inquiry in his mind,—so that he will be always pushing back the horizons of his knowledge and understanding, learning from every experience and situation, as well as from books, magazines, conversations, the theater, the newspapers, etc. This "spirit of inquiry," this thirst for knowledge, has already been stimulated in your mind,—and you can (if you must) nurture it as well while serving as junior partner in your father's business as you could in the foyer-of-life atmosphere of the college campus.

To want to be a teacher—without knowing specifically what one feels inspired to teach—is a pretty foggy ambition at best. It sounds like a rationalization of a desire to spend four years getting a sheepskin in order to be known as an "educated" man. Thus, it may be that, through working in your father's store—while pursuing a self-directed program of study on the side—you will "find yourself," in relation to your talents and opportunities, as you never could in the "education-for-education's sake" world of self-conscious scholarship.

In conclusion. I suggest that you talk over your situation with Mr. Walter E. Myer, director of Civic Education Service at 744 Jackson Place, Northwest (telephone NAtional 0322),—if you would like friendly guidance in planning an ambitious course of reading and study to follow "on your own." Mr. Myer is co-author of "The Promise of Tomorrow," the best vocational guidance volume ever offered teen-age youth.

Incidentally, the fact that one can keep shop and at the same time prepare one's self a place among the immortals is proved in the case of Abraham Lincoln. He was a storekeeper, too, you know. If you want an example of how to keep your feet on the ground and your head in the clouds, while working your way to manhood, read Sandburg's "Abraham Lincoln, the Prairie Years," as the first assignment on your list.

Make a Coffee Table From Box

A charming little coffee table from a packing box? It sounds unbelievable, yet you can quickly work the transformation yourself!

Your table's "spill-proof," too, if you cover it with leatherette, a leather-like fabric that's conveniently washable.

You start by removing the two long sides from a packing box. Then, as insurance against wobbles later, screw angle irons at inside corners as shown in our illustration in booklet.

For the table top, fasten two boards together with cleats (thin strips of wood which you nail from one board to another). Place boards under bottom of box, cleat side next to box, and screw together from inside the box, using short screws that won't pierce table top.

Now turn the table upright and with thin nails, fasten 1½-inch wooden finishing strips around edge of top. Give legs a coat of varnish stain and cover top with leatherette.

For a snug job, pull leatherette smoothly and tack to under-edge of table. Then finish edges with a row of ornamental tacks.

Complete directions for the coffee table and for other furnishings you can make from odds and ends are given in our 40-page booklet, "How to Make Furnishings for Your Home." Includes matching dressing table and bedspread sets, window shutter screen, packing box ottoman, decorative wall cupboard, Victorian whatnot, "barrel" chair.

Working Girl Needs Steak Instead of Mink

By Ida Jean Kain

WHICH would you rather be—well fed, or well dressed? Without exception, nine young women who were asked that question by an inquiring reporter declared that they would prefer to be in the height of fashion.

As one of them succinctly put it: If she were well dressed, she could be well fed. Another went so far as to say she would rather be beautifully dressed from tip to toes, even though she was so hungry she couldn't stand up. There seems to be no doubt that fashion means more than food to some of you.

But a working gal must eat. To be efficient and get ahead and be able to buy more clothes, she must eat the right foods. And the less money she has to spend, the more carefully she must have a casual acquaintance with nutrition. She must buy the most protection for the least money.

Use Fruit or Juice

Since most business girls are not anxious to take on extra pounds, it is fairly easy to weed out the foods which furnish more calories than anything else and choose the ones which contribute the vital elements. Once you get the knack, you won't think twice before making the right choice.

Let's start with breakfast—that is the meal the business girl is apt to slight. You can get a pretty good breakfast over the counter for a quarter, and for a bit less when you prepare it yourself. You need an egg each day so it may well be at breakfast, with whole wheat or enriched toast, and with coffee for an eye-opener. Or, you can choose the combination of fruit, whole grain cereal and coffee. Just be sure you get whole-grain cereal or toast, or the enriched variety. That's so your menus won't be lacking in vitamin B1, which is the vitamin needed for a smoothly functioning nervous system.

Lunch is too often a quick sandwich and a soda, with a few hats tried on for dessert. That is inadequate. Your best bet is to order a 30 or 35 cent luncheon, which is cheaper than a la carte; take buttermilk for the beverage and fruit for the dessert. If the fruit substitution is refused and you're trying to cut calories, skip dessert. Again, make sure you get whole wheat or enriched bread.

Meat For Dinner

Dinner must furnish lean meat, two vegetables, a salad, milk again for the beverage, fruit for dessert, and whole-grain or enriched bread.

Health is your stock in trade and it depends on your following good menus. You can't afford to follow a hit-or-miss plan of eating. If you do, your looks and career suffer.

The Gentler Sex

By Malvina Lindsay

In Defense of Shorts

WATERSPOUT, IOWA, July 15.—Women who want to wear shorts—on the golf links or elsewhere—have found a champion in Mrs. Henrietta DeGoofey, noted reformer.

Mrs. DeGoofey

The aggressive president of the Do Something About It League, here on a speaking tour for defense, came out militantly yesterday at her press conference for the "Constitutional right of every American woman to exhibit as much of her anatomy as possible."

Mrs. DeGoofey's stand was occasioned by the recent controversy over the disciplining of a battalion of service men for "yoo-hooing" at shorts-clad girls on a Memphis golf course.

Feminine Rights At Stake

"I understand some prudes are saying that the girls made themselves liable to the soldiers' 'yo-hoos' by appearing in shorts on a golf course," said Mrs. DeGoofey. "Now why on earth, I ask you, should women not have the right to appear scantily clad on a golf course as well as on the beach, at picnics, at dances, and for that matter, on the street?"

"But Mrs. DeGoofey," protested a sports scribe, "don't girls wear shorts on golf courses merely because it aids their golf form?"

"I don't think the wearing of shorts ever aided the golf—or any other kind of form—of 99 per cent of women," replied Mrs. DeGoofey. "But my point is not based on that. In fact, I seriously doubt if a woman can play golf in shorts—and combat insects, brambles, stray balls, wild shots and other hazards—as well as in some more practical outfit. The point I am making is that a fundamental right of womanhod is at stake."

Shorter Skirts On Program

"You mean the right to attract attention?" asked a cynical city room hack.

"Yes and hold it," was the reply. "Women from Eve down have jealously guarded this right. Cleopatra, Salome, and all the great fascinators practiced it with finesse. Because women of today have a different and more obvious approach to the art, is no reason it should be denied them.

"I have always been a champion of women's rights in this respect," continued Mrs. DeGoofey. As you know, I worked for years in behalf of shorter skirts. Look at the results of my campaign—that is, look the next time you go out on the street, or even to a club woman's convention. And, I understand, skirts are to be even shorter this fall. That I attribute largely to my efforts.

"I have vigorously also opposed trousers—even slacks—for women, I do not think we should be made to cover up in that fashion. But shorts are a different thing, and I intend to start at once a campaign for the more general wearing of them."

Willl Aid Dancing; Attract Stags

"But where are they NOT worn?" asked a rotogravure photographer.

"Well they are not worn to any extent yet for evening—except possibly in Hollywood," was the reply. "Now I intend designing an evening ensemble, with decollete top, and with little ruffled lace or chiffon shorts. I think women will find they can dance with greater ease—and will be asked much oftener—at balls in such an outfit. Then for the more mature woman, what designers call the woman of importance, I shall have some shorts of lame or sequins with possibly a little more bodice to permit the wearing of several corsages.

"I also expect to induce club women to wear shorts at their conventions and public receptions and for speaking purposes. And above all, I hope to popularize shorts for office wear. As it is, the debutantes and playgirls are stealing a march on the working girl as they can wear shorts virtually around the clock all summer at the beaches and resorts where they hang out. But, the poor working girl must go to office, factory or store in nothing more eye-catching than a short dress that goes not quite meet her rolled stocking."

"What about yourself, Mrs. DeGoofey?" asked a case hardened police reporter. "Will you wear shorts?"

"That of course will depend," was the reply, "on how well I get along with my Ida Jean Kain exercises. After all, young man, I am not quite as big a fool as I sometimes sound."

Two Former Diplomats Here Pay Return Visits

Sir Henry Chilton, British Minister 1918 to 1928, and Ex-Ambassador Sze Of China, Are Stopping in Capital

By Patricia Grady

Though Washington always bids sad farewells to popular foreign diplomats when they leave their posts in America, the sadness is tempered by the knowledge that sooner or later they will return. Well-remembered former diplomats to this country, now in Washington, include Sir Henry and Lady Chilton—he was first counselor of the British Embassy, then Minister, from 1918 to 1928, and Dr. Sao-Ke Alfred Sze, former Chinese Ambassador.

Sir Henry and Lady Chilton are really just passing through Washington after an extended good-will economic tour through the Latin-American countries as members of Lord Willington's mission. Sir Henry and his wife were traveling over familiar territory when they were South of the Border, for, in the past, he has been Ambassador to both Chile and Argentina.

The Chiltons, who are now staying at the Sulgrave Club, ars making plans to leave Washington in several weeks, though they have not been informed exactly when they will go or how they will go. As Lady Chilton says, "No one ever tells you anything in time of war." However, they have been away from England since October and Lady Chilton is anxious to get back to Hampshire to see her daughters and her grandchildren. They are in the country for safekeeping.

Lady Chilton in her own right has a diplomatic background. An American, she is the daughter of Thomas O'Brien, former United States Ambassador to Japan and Italy. In the course of his career, Sir Henry has also been Ambassador to Spain and Britain's envoy to the Vatican. As far as he knows, London has not yet decided on his next post.

Dr. Sze Is Here On Special Mission

Dr. Sze, who has his office at Hotel 2400, is here on a "special mission." His wife, who has not been well, has been advised by her doctors to remain in Shanghai until she is stronger, but if Dr. Sze's "special mission" lasts long enough, she will join him here.

Dr. Sze, who was in Shanghai when hostilities broke out, remained there as head of the Shanghai International Red Cross. During that time he organized the Anti-Tuberculosis Association, with financial aid from the American Red Cross and other organizations, and established two hospitals to check and cure the disease. With the stream of refugees coming into Shanghai, the problem of checking disease has been a difficult one, and the association has had its hands full arranging for segregation and hospitalization.

Others in the Family Also Doing Their Bit

Others in the Sze family are also doing their bit in the heroic war effort. Daughter Mai-Mai has forsaken her artistic and theatrical career—she read the prologue a few years ago in the Broadway production of "Lady Precious Stream"—and is lecturing and working for Chinese relief in New York. Second daughter, Betty, who created quite a social stir a few years ago when she was presented at court to King Edward VIII during his brief reign, graduated last month from Oxford University. She has solved the problem of how to get back from England by deciding to stay there and take a bachelor of literature degree. While the student body of Oxford is greatly reduced, Betty reports that classes are going on as usual. Youngest daughter, Alice, who graduated from Friends School last month, will start her college career in the fall at Wellesley—alma mater of another famous Chinese, Mme. Chiang Kai-shek.

Dr. Sze's older son, Szening, who is a doctor in Shanghai, is general secretary of the Chinese Medical Association. His younger son, Geson, is in New York as assistant manager of the Bank of China. The international Sze family would seem to be giving a very good account of itself.

Many Capitalites At Eagles Mere

Many Washingtonians are recent arrivals at Eagles Mere, Pa., and are planning to attend the annual Eagles Mere Flower Show July 24 at the Lakeside. The event will take place in the game room and on the terrace overlooking a lake, with prizes awarded for the best miniature rock garden arrangements, jewel and shadow box designs, flower pictures, mantel and table decorations, and dry bouquets of pods and barks.

Among those from Washington at the Lakeside and at the Forest Inn are Mrs. S. F. Gardner, Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Mehl, Mrs. H. P. Huddleson, Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Thornton, Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Hough, Miss Jane Hough, Mr. and Mrs. Bon Gaeslin, Mrs. Mary Gillilan, R. J. Dillon, Mr. and Mrs. R. L. Jones and Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Marshall.

Wedding Bells to Ring for Trio

Hessler Underwood & Underwood Harris & Ewing

Miss Marjorie Olsen (upper left), whose engagement to Max Lee Muller has been announced, will be married next month. Miss Julia Louise (at left) plans an October wedding to Ralph Earle DeMent. Miss Adelaide Dunsmore Smith (at right), whose engagement to John Hobart Earle has been announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Harold Smith

Miss Olsen To Wed Soon

Mr. and Mrs. Ingwald C. Olsen, of 3615 Kanawha Street Northwest, announce the approaching marriage of their daughter, Miss Marjorie Olsen, to Max Lee Muller, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles P. Muller, of Wichita, Kans.

Miss Olsen will leave July 24 on the Evangeline for Trinidad, where she will be married shortly after her arrival. After the marriage, which probably will take place the first week in August, the newlyweds will fly to the Barbados from where they will leave by ship for Rio de Janeiro.

Following a honeymoon in Rio they will go on to Caripito, Venezuela, where they will make their home. Mr. Muller, who was graduated from the United States Naval Academy in 1938, is connected with the Standard Oil Co. of Venezuela.

Julia L. Jenkins Will Be Bride Of Ralph DeMent

Mrs. Mildred MacKinnon Jenkins, of Alexandria, announces the engagement of her daughter, Julia Louise, to Ralph Earle DeMent, of this city and Detroit.

Mr. DeMent, who is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard H. DeMent, of Indianhead, Md., is a graduate of the University of Pennsylvania. Miss Jenkins is the granddaughter of Gen. and Mrs. John M. Jenkins, of Washington.

The wedding will take place the latter part of October.

Miss Szechenyi To Make Debut At Reception

Because of the war, young Nandine Szechenyi, debutante of Newport and Washington, will not be honored at a dance this season. Instead, her mother, Countess Szechenyi, is expected to give a reception in her honor later in the summer at Newport.

The colony at the Rhode Island resort had wondered whether The Breakers, the magnificent Newport estate which Countess Szechenyi inherited from her Vanderbilt mother, would be opened for a dance similar to that given several summers ago for Miss Sylvia Szechenyi. But the debutante has relatives in war-torn countries—she is a sister of Viscountess Maidstone, of England, and Countess Bela Hadik, of Budapest—hence no ball will be held. The dinner which Countess Szechenyi gave over the weekend for her daughter numbered 50 guests and with the reception will serve as her introduction to Newport society.

Mrs. Woods Fetes Concert Artists

Mrs. Arthur Woods entertained at a supper party last evening, following the Starlight Chamber Music concert in Meridian Hill Park. The party was in honor of the artists.

Many of the artists will be present at the tea which is being given at the Arts Club this afternoon for members of the Salzedo Concert Ensemble, including Carlos Salzedo, and his lovely wife, who are both harpists; Rene Le Roy, French lutist, and Janos Scholz, cellist.

Adelaide Smith Plights Troth

Mr. and Mrs. William Harold Smith, of Washington, announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Adelaide Dunsmore Smith, to John Hobart Earle, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Edward Hobart Earle, of London, England, and New York.

The prospective bride, whose family has been identified with Washington for many years, is a graduate of Hollins College in Virginia. Mr. Earle is an alumnus of American University and is now doing graduate work at George Washington University.

The wedding is planned to take place in Washington in September.

Daughter Born To Livingstons

Mr. and Mrs. William Livingston announce the birth of a daughter on July 4. Mother and child returned earlier in the week to their home on Seminary Hill near Alexandria from the hospital.

The baby is a niece of Representative and Mrs. Jerry Voorhis, of California. Mrs. Livingston is the former Miss Mary Walton McCandlish, of Fairfax, Va. She has named her daughter after the baby's great-great-aunt, Miss Helen Stuyvesant Moore, of Fairfax, sister of the late Judge Walton Moore, who was for several years before his death Counselor of the State Department.

Returns to Capital

Mrs. John R. Williams has returned to her home here after a stay in New York, where she registered at the St. Regis.

Hulls Spending Quiet Vacation At W. Va. Spa

Our roving correspondent sends in a bulletin from White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., where many from Washington, including the Secretary of State and Mrs. Cordell Hull, are vacationing.

She writes that Mr. and Mrs. Hull, who in previous seasons have stayed in the smart Casino Cottage on the front grounds of the Greenbrier Hotel, are now in a much more secluded cottage in Florida Row. For the last few days, Secretary and Mrs. Hull have had with them Dr. and Mrs. Mathew White Perry, of Washington. The Hulls expect to linger on at the resort for a week or two longer and are getting a real rest with as little publicity as possible. The Secretary has stayed inside most of the time since he arrived, with only one or two visits to the croquet grounds near the golf course.

Senator and Mrs. A. B. (Happy) Chandler have just left the Greenbrier for Lexington, Ky., after a vacation trip. They gave a series of dinners during their stay and over the weekend were guests of Mr. and Mrs. James Moffett at a cocktail party. Also in the company were Mr. and Mrs. John J. Pelley, of Washington, and their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Van Schalwyk; Mrs. James Donahue, Mrs. Aileen Allen and Mrs. Martha Hyde, of New York. Mr. and Mrs. Moffett are spending the summer at the Colonnades Cottage at the Greenbrier.

Also at White Sulphur are Mr. and Mrs. Robert L. Patchin, of Westbury, Long Island, and Washington. Others are Mr. and Mrs. John F. Sweeney, of Charleston, W. Va.—he's the son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Bell Sweeney, of Washington—and Aldace Walker, who spent the weekend there.

Folke Wennerberg, Swedish Aide, Back From Trip

Folke Wennerberg, Counselor of the Swedish Legation, has just returned to Washington, following a brief vacation at Salters Point, Mass., where his family are staying for the summer.

He will be Charge d'Affaires of the Swedish Legation for a month during the absence of the Minister of Sweden Wollmar Bostrom, who, with Mme. Bostrom, is visiting on Long Island and in New England.

Seays Go to Beach

Mr. and Mrs. William Mitchell Seay have arrived in Virginia Beach, Va., where they are planning to spend several weeks before returning to their home in Washington.

The Hunt Country

By Nina Carter Tabb

AN IMPORTANT summer event in the hunt country will be the wedding of Miss Mary Elizabeth Lee Rust to Robert Victor Brundage. Mrs. William Fitzhugh Rust has issued invitations to the marriage of her daughter to Mr. Brundage on Saturday evening, August 2, at 8 o'clock at St. James' Church, Leesburg. A reception will follow.

Miss Jane Rust will be maid of honor for her sister and the bridesmaids will be the Misses Jacqueline Brundage, sister of Mr. Brundage; Mary Rust, Rita Laughlin, Carol Murray, Evelyn Henry and Nellie Christian.

Huntington Harris, of Leesburg, will be best man, and the ushers will include Edward J. Brundage, brother of the prospective bridegroom; James Symington and Winslow Williams, all of Leesburg.

LANCE DORE, of South Africa, who is with the British navy, will arrive in Middleburg this week to visit his cousins, Capt and Mrs. William E. JJones. They received a cable from Mr. Dore's family in England telling them of their son's arrival in America after several weeks at sea. Miss Dorothy Jones is planning horseback and tennis parties for the 21-year-old visitor, whom all the young ladies of the neighborhood are looking forward to meeting.

MR. AND MRS. Jack Barrett, of Iyakota Farm, gave a picnic supper at Bull Run the other evening. Hot dogs were cooked over a fire built in one of the stone chimneys and a spread was laid out on nearby tables. Among the guests were Dr. and Mrs. Stewart McBryde, Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Rice and their two daughters, Ruth Helen and Sue Peter; Mrs. Rice's mother, Mrs. J. B. Marshall, Oklahoma; Mrs. Lee Jacobson, Mrs. Mary L. Jamison and Billy Jamison.

Miss Ann Faison, of Washington, and Richard Dulany Tayloe, of Baltimore, whose engagement was recently announced, spent the weekend with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. Gwynne Tayloe, at their home, Windover, near Middleburg. Miss Louise Sharp motored down from Washington to weekend with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Sharp, and brought with her Miss Kristi Putnam, of the Capital.

Miss Jane Davis and Thad H. Brown, jr., of Washington, spent Sunday with friends in the hunt country.

THE MISSES Nancy and Barbara Iselin gave a luncheon and swimming party on Sunday at their Middleburg home for the Misses Eleanor Flood and Margaret Byrd, of Winchester.

Col. Benjamin L. Jacobson, of the staff of Lieut. Gen. Hugh A. Drum at Governors Island, left for New York yesterday after weekending with his wife at their home in Manassas. Col. and Mrs. Jacobson have recently returned from a two-year tour of duty in Panama and Mrs. Jacobson came directly to Virginia to see her mother, Mrs. L. H. Hough.

Mrs. Jacobson and Mrs. Mary L. Jamison motored to Rappahannock Academy on Saturday afternoon to see the Virginia Eighty-eighth Brigade, stationed at the A. P. Hill Reservation in Caroline County, pass in review before Gov. Price of Virginia and other notables. The brigade caused great interest last week as 8,000 men moved from Fort Meade to the A. P. Hill Reservation. They traveled through Leesburg, Middleburg, Warrenton and Fredericksburg en route and were "Yoo-Hoo'd" by everyone along the way.

Mrs. Robert McConnell and the Misses Mildred and Betty McConnell went to Virginia Beach on Monday for a visit.

The Richardsons Are Honor Guests At Luncheon

Mr. and Mrs. Edmund Richardson were honor guests at a luncheon given yesterday by Clarence Hewes at his home on Massachusetts avenue. Mr. and Mrs. Richardson, whose home is in New Orleans, have taken a cottage at White Sulphur Springs and will go there for the remainder of the summer after about a week in Washington.

Mrs. Richardson is the sister of Mrs. J. Butler Wright, of Washington, and she and her husband are staying with her in her apartment at 2029 Connecticut Avenue. Mrs. Wright gave a small cocktail party for them earlier in the week.

Langhorne Bonds Parents of Son Born Saturday

Mr. and Mrs. Langhorne Bond announce the birth of a son last Saturday in Garfield Hospital. Mrs. Bond is the former Miss Katherine Dunlop, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. Thomas Dunlop, of Chevy Chase, Md.

Mr. and Mrs. Bond spent several years in China, where the former was in business. When she returned to the Capital from there, Mrs. Bond and her other child, then an infant, made the entire trip by plane. The baby was one of the youngest passengers ever to make the journey by air. Mr. Bond is now in Washington with his family.

Notes of Society

Official and Residential

Mrs. Roosevelt has been joined at her summer home in Maine by Mrs. Henry Morgenthau, wife of the Secretary of Treasury. The latter arrived by plane from New York.

Mrs. William M. L. Fiske 3d, who is staying at the Waldorf-Astoria in New York, will leave tomorrow by Clipper plane for Lisbon and London. Widow of the first American killed fighting for Britain in the war, Mrs. Fiske spent the winter and spring at Peach House on the Middleburg estate of Mrs. Mary Elizabeth Whitney.

Miss Natalie H. Hammond has arrived in New York from Saint Briavel, her home in Gloucester, Mass., and is at the Carlyle.

Mrs. John McMullen and Miss Margaret McMullen have gone to the Crestmont Inn, Eaglesmere, Pa., to spend several weeks. Lieut. John McMullen, who is now stationed at the Ordnance Training Center, Aberdeen Proving Grounds, will join them at the inn for weekends.

Lieut. and Mrs. E. Chester Beck, of Washington, are at the St. Regis Hotel in New York.

Miss Dorothy Glaves has returned from a weekend in Bristol, Tenn., where she visited Mr. and Mrs. James Daugherty and attended the wedding of a former schoolmate.

Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Harmon are receiving congratulations on the birth of a son, Neil Leslie, on July 8 at George Washington Hospital. Mrs. Harmon is the former Miss Marion B. Snyder. Mr. Harmon is a graduate of George Washington University Law School. His mother, Mrs. F. L. Harmon, of Brockton, Mass., has arrived here to visit him.

Miss Julia Culbertson has gone to New York, where she is stopping at the Hotel Weylin.

Col. and Mrs. A. H. Huguet, of Washington, are at the Beekman Tower Hotel in New York.

The Misses Helen J. Fisher and Helen T. Moxx, of Washington, are at the Elbow Beach Hotel in Bermuda.

Mr. and Mrs. Simon Eichberg are spending a week at Bedford Springs, Pa., and from there will motor to Atlantic City for a week.

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Rich are traveling through the Candian Rockies and will be gone several weeks.

Play Tonight At Sylvan Theater

Mrs. Rhodes Scherer will head the committee for the reception of special guests at the Summer Festival performance of "After Wimpole Street," by the Players Club, this evening at the Sylvan Theater. The event is the premiere in Washington of this story based on the life of Robert Browning and Elizabeth Barrett Browning in Florence.

Mrs. Scherer's aides on the committee will be Miss Patricia Potter, Miss Lenora Tatum, Miss Joanne Latta and Miss Jeanne Channon. Kent Dyer, Chester Ring and Charles M. Hunter 3d will also assist the Summer Festival committee.

Special guests will include officials of the Recreation Department and the Board of Education, as well as other officials of the District government. There will be a party of guests from Baltimore, including Mr. and Mrs. A. T. Jones and Mr. and Mrs. Walter Jones. Harry Baker will bring a party of guests, as will Miss Jean Williams.

Important Federation Of Clubs' Posts Filled

Mrs. Josephus Trimble Is Chairman Of New Division; Mrs. R. C. Hibben Heads Committee on Nursing

By Lucia Giddens

Two important new posts in the District Federation of Women's Clubs were filled yesterday, with the appointment of Mrs. Josephus C. Trimble as chairman of the new division on State Department policies and Mrs. R. C. Hibben as head of the committee on housing.

Mrs. Arthur C. Watkins, president of the Federation, announced these and other new appointments, after they had been approved by the advisory council, composed of officers, past presidents and chairmen of departments.

The division on State Department policies, in the department of international relations, will gather and disseminate information on foreign policies of the Government.

The new committee on nursing was formed under the mothercraft division, in the department of the American home.

Mrs. Watkins pointed out that these were among the expansions of activities planned by the federation in line with the defense program proposed by Mrs. John L. Whitehurst, president of the national federation.

"Instead of creating new defense departments, we are fitting the activities into the existing framework and thereby, we think, making them an immediate integral part of our program," Mrs. Watkins said.

On the new list of appointees Mrs. Custis Perry became vice chairman of the Department of International Relations.

Mrs. Charles P. Keyser was appointed chairman of budget and finance, among the standing committees, and Mrs. Frank M. Shortall, resolutions chairman.

Other heads of standing committees were named as follows: Yearbook, Mrs. Charles H. Pierce; historian, Mrs. Eugene Pitcher; hospitality, Mrs. Ivan H. Sims, parliamentarian and chairman of revisions committee, Mrs. James A. Robertson; place of meeting, Mrs. William M. Collins; spiritual guidance, Mrs. Ellis Logan.

In the department of American citizenship, Mrs. John Lucker was appointed chairman of the committee on war veterans.

Mrs. Lloyd Miller was named head of the committee on adult education in the department of education.

In the fine arts department, Mrs. Samuel A. Swiggett was appointed chairman of the poetry division; Mrs. H. A. Matson, literature, and Mrs. Edward C. Magdeburger, music.

Plans Complete For 'Let's Win' Radio Series

A series of "Let's Win" radio broadcasts this week has been arranged by the District League of Women Voters in its civilian morale-building campaign, it was announced by Mrs. Wallace Donald Brock, radio chairman of the campaign committee.

A high point in the campaign will be the public rally at 8 o'clock tonight in Palisades Park Auditorium, with a panel discussion on the United States' "Battle of Production." Miss Marguerite M. Wells, president of the National League of Women Voters, will make the keynote speech.

Brig. Gen. Albert L. Cox, director of selective service in the District, will deliver the final address in the radio series at 9:45 p. m. next Wednesday over Station WINX. William Batt, of the Office for Emergency Management, will speak on the same station at 9:45 p. m. Monday.

Other speakers in the series will be: P. Y. K. Howatt, chairman, industrialist committee, Board of Trade, 7:15 tonight, WINX; Mrs. Raymond Clapper, 4:30 p. m. tomorrow, WWDC; Fred J. Walker, labor member of the D. C. Minimum Wage Board, 9:15 p. m. Friday; Mrs. L. V. Van Zandt, lecturer and member of the Society of Women Geographers, 9:45 p. m. Saturday, WJSV; Mrs. M. O. Lorenz, former president, District League of Women Voters, 3 p. m. Tuesday, WWDC; Mrs. Henry Grattan Doyle, president Board of Education, 9:45 p. m. Tuesday, WINX.

Plans Discussed For Fall P.-T.A. Health Institute

Tentative plans for a social hygiene institute next fall were made by the health department of the District Congress of Parents and Teachers at its meeting yesterday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Lucian Jordan, fifth vice president of the congress, who is in charge of the department.

Improvement in nutrition will be one of the main objectives of the department's work in the coming school year, it was decided.

The department will disseminate to local Parent-Teacher Associations information about low-cost menus and about nutritive values of various foods, Mrs. Jordan said. The group will cooperate closely with the nutrition unit of the District Health Department.

Present at the meeting at Mrs. Jordan's home, 3380 Runnymede Place Northwest, were Mrs. P. C. Ellett, president of the Congress; Mrs. Evelyn Bright Buckley, chairman of social hygiene; Mrs. E. A. Seamans, associate chairman of the summer roundup; Mrs. Edward R. Seal, director of the department of publicity. Mrs. Mabel Hubbell, chairman of child hygiene, is also a member of the health department.

Aluminum Piece To Admit Women To Press Club Tea

A clatter of aluminum pans next Monday afternoon will herald the Newspaper Women's Club's participation in the Nationwide scrap aluminum collection campaign under the Office of Civilian Defense.

The club will hold "open house" tea from 5 to 8 p. m. at its headquarters, 1604 Twentieth Street Northwest, with a piece of discarded aluminum serving as an admittance ticket for each visitor.

Mrs. Marie McNair, president of the club, will be assisted in receiving by representatives of women's civic organizations and by a group of associate members of the club.

Flag Motif to Mark Zonta Program Today

A Latin American program, centering around the flags of the various countries, will be featured today at the weekly luncheon of the Zonta Club at the Y. W. C. A. Miss Mabel Strider, who is in charge of the program, will explain the history and insignia of each flag.

Miss Lucy Farnsworth, chief of the section of music and club work at the Pan American Union, will be guest of honor.

The Pan American Union is lending the flags and also excerpts from South American national anthems, to be played by Mrs. Frances Gutelius Smith, pianist.

Madame Chairman

By Suzanne

Helen Miller, director of public relations at American University, will start in September to prepare herself for a career as a dean of women. She has been awarded a fellowship to Syracuse University, where she will take a two-year course.

Being already a citizen of Washington, she missed dormitory life during her student days at American University where she was graduated in 1940. At Syracuse, she will make up for the earlier lack, not only by living in a dormitory but by having the 30 girls under her wing, in line with her title of student-dean- assistant.

WAR RELIEF FUND—Mrs. John Wilson Houser, of Washington, presented a defense plan at the recent national convention of Alpha Chi Omega Sorority in Pasadena, Calif. The sorority voted to raise $2,000 for the support of a hostel for bomb-shocked children in England, by voluntary subscriptions through its chapters.

A defense chairman will be appointed for each of the sorority's active and alumnae chapters. They will organize cooperation with the United Service Organizations, Red Cross and Office of Civilian Defense.

JUNIORS ACTIVE—Activities of junior members of the American Legion Auxiliary are being stressed during their summer vacation from school work, Mrs. Rae R. Zaontz, publicity and radio chairman for the District department, said in a summing-up of recent work.

Phi Delta Delta Urged to Do Its Bit for Nation

Members of the four Washington chapters of Phi Delta Delta International Legal Fraternity were challenged last night to consider what they as women lawyers can do to aid the Nation in the present emergency.

The challenge was offered in an address by Miss Margaret McGurnaghan, of Topeka, Kans., international treasurer of the fraternity and honor guest at the banquet at the Kennedy-Warren.

Before the banquet, the Alpha Lamba chapter at National University Law School conducted a candlelight initiation for Mrs. Florence Richardson, Miss Dorothy Nicholson, Miss Frances Algy and Miss Dorothea Leatherbury. Others to be initiated later are Mrs. Dollie Smith and Miss Verlie Maloy.

Miss Catherine Edmonson, president of the alumnae chapter, presided and was toastmistress at the banquet.

Presidents of the local chapters who with Miss Edmonson planned the event were Mrs. Kathryn Schwarz, Alpha Lambda; Miss Marion Goshorn, Beta, and Miss Eileen O'Connor, Zeta. The local chapters presented a gardenia corsage to Miss McGurnaghan.

Guests included Mrs. Vashti Burr Whittington, former national president; Miss Katherine Vaux, national vice president, and Miss Louisa Wilson, director of the Eleventh Province.

College Chapter Plans Dance

Members of the Washington Chapter of Immaculata College, Immaculata, Pa., will be hostesses at a dinner dance at the Shoreham Hotel at 8 p. m. tomorrow, it was announced by Mary Joan Onishick, acting chairman.

Chevy Chase Clubs Plans New Classes

Classes in typing and public speaking will be formed by the Woman's Club of Chevy Chase next week, in its defense program, it was decided yesterday by the coordinating committee called to a meeting by Mrs. Edgar Fowler, defense chairman.

More than 200 members of the club have signed questionnaires, indicating that they wish to do some type of community service in this program beginning this summer.

Mrs. Raymond L. Sanford, a member of the club, will conduct the short course in public speaking. Mrs. Helen Herbert Peck will teach several typing classes.

A course in story-telling to prepare women to help entertain in recreation centers, for service men or other citizens, will be conducted by Mrs. H. Lyle Campbell, a member of the club and an officer of the National Story Telling League.

The committee decided yesterday to help provide furniture for the recreation hall at Camp Meade and acknowledged gifts of several pieces from members.

A course in home nursing is being planned in further expansion of the defense activities.

Mrs. Frank Hoadley, former president of the Maryland Federation of Women's Clubs and past president of the Woman's Club of Chevy Chase, was named editor of "The Defense Bulletin," which will be issued twice a month to members of the latter club, with news of its defense program.

Mrs. Miles Trowbridge, head of the art section, will be asked to design insignia for members who work in the program.

The committee meeting yesterday at the clubhouse included Mrs. Henry DeC. Adams, president of the club; Mrs. Edwin Helmuth, Mrs. James W. Bennett, Mrs. Alan Maphis and Mrs. Charles G. Lueck.

Mrs. Hoffman to Speak On Housing in District

Mrs. Helen Duey Moffman, executive director of the Washington Housing Association and member of the Business and Professional Women's Clubs, will discuss the housing situation in Washington in relation to the influx of Government workers, as guest speaker on the club's radio program at 3:15 p. m. today over WINX.

Miss Ethel Clein and Miss Margaret Rauber will be hostesses today from 5 to 9 p. m. at the club's "at-home" at the Silver Bowl.

D. C. Mourns Hazen's Death; 'Great Loss to City, Says Roosevelt; Leaders to Pay Tribute Friday death remarked to reporters that he "felt fine."

But unknown to some of his closest associates, Mr. Hazen was apparently convinced in his own mind that his physical condition would not permit him to complete his third term as Commissioner.

Hardly had word of his death spread around the District Building when the White House announced that his letter of resignation—effective October 1—was on the President's desk.

Was Talking to Friends

As death struck the lank "first citizen" of Washington, he was chatting in his office with two friends—C. W. Donaldson and an attorney, Max Tendler. They were discussing a zoning matter.

Mr. Hazen reached for a telephone to dial the Zoning Commission in the same building. He had difficulty with the new interoffice dial system and buzzed for his police aide, Private John Boccina.

The aide got the Zoning Commission and handed him the telephone. Mr. Hazen had hardly put the receiver to his ear before he fell forward across his desk. For a moment, the witnesses said, he tried to sit back up, but slumped down in his chair and then slid to the floor.

Donaldson, Boccina and Tendler jumped to his assistance. Donaldson grabbed the phone and tried to dial the Health Department. The new telephone system, however, failed to work and he was forced to run down three flights of stairs to get Dr. George C. Ruhland, District health officer.

Dr. Ruhland gave first aid and a few minutes later—at 11:02 a. m.—Mr. Hazen was pronounced dead by Dr. Stuart O. Foster, his personal physician.

Said He "Felt Fine"

When Donaldson and Tendler first entered the Commissioner's office they said they asked him how he felt. Mr. Hazen, they reported, replied:

"I'm feeling fine. I wasn't feeling so good when I went to Florida last winter, but now I never felt better in my life."

Mr. Hazen spent several weeks in a Florida hospital when he took his vacation in January.

Soon after he reached the District Building yesterday morning, Mr. Hazen admitted reporters to his office for nearly 20 minutes, talked, joked and exchanged quips with them about the recent police investigation.

During the interview. his telephone rang and he leaned across his desk to answer. As he picked up the receiver, Mr. Hazen suddenly straightened up and a peculiar look crossed his face. He immediately hung up and appeared greatly concerned about something.

In response to questions, however, he said "everything is all right" and a moment later was again laughing and joking. Word of his death reached reporters soon after they returned to the District Building press room a few steps down the hall from Mr. Hazen's office.

Only recently had the Commissioner been appearing regularly at his office. Not long ago he spent several days in Doctors Hospital and for a time did not come downtown unless it was absolutely necessary.

After serving more than 50 years in the service of the District government, Mr. Hazen had apparently made up his mind to retire to private life. He started as a clerk, worked his way to city surveyor and was made Commissioner November 16, 1933.

In his letter of resignation to President Roosevelt, Mr. Hazen explained that a heart ailment and failing health generally forced him to the decision to relinquish his beloved post.

There had been no official White House action on the resignation which was submitted June 21. There had been several previous exchanges of letters between Mr. Hazen and the President in which the aging Commissioner's health was the major topic of discussion.

One letter to Mr. Hazen was prefaced "Dear Melvin" and Mr. Roosevelt went on to say he was "very sorry to learn" of his failing health and hoped "rest and relaxation" would restore the Commissioner's strength.

Flags at Half-Staff

Mr. Hazen long had been reluctant to step out. He frequently spoke of the loneliness he felt since the death of his wife and said his job "gave him something to live for."

Immediately following announcement of Mr. Hazen's death the District Building was ordered closed by Commissioner John Russell Young, now acting chairman of the board, and flags on all District buildings were lowered to half-staff.

First persons summoned to the dead Commissioner's office were Engineer Commissioner Charles W. Kutz, Police Superintendent Ernest W. Brown, who happened to be in the building; Assistant Engineer Commissioner Beverly C. Snow and Capt. H. C. Whitehurst, director of highways.

Commissioner Young was on Capitol Hill helping to complete the report of the Congressional subcommittee investigating the Police Department. He was notified by telephone, informed Chairman Schulte (Democrat), of Indiana, and the conference was immediately adjourned.

Mr. Hazen had spent many hours at the Capitol attending the police inquiry. His last public appearance was Sunday when he dedicated the new National Guard Armory.

Decision to accept a third term as Commissioner was prompted by his wife's death. Mr. Hazen had repeatedly said he wanted to retire to his Virginia farm, but the loss of Mrs. Hazen and the resultant loneliness decided him to continue on. He was sworn in for his third term in office on February 27, 1940.

Mr. Hazen is survived by two nieces—Miss Margaret Davis, an employe of the Alcoholic Beverage Control Board, and Mrs. Hazel Morrison; two grandnieces, Miss Mary and Miss Katherine Morrison, and a grandnephew, Roy Herring.

Tributes by Colleagues

Mr. Roosevelt's comments were among hundreds which reached the District Building soon after word of Mr. Hazen's death was announced. In behalf of the District government, Commissioners Young and Kutz issued a joint statement. It read:

"The sudden death today of Melvin C. Hazen was not only a distinct shock to ourselves but to all this beloved gentleman's associates in the District Building and to his many, many friends in Washington. Mr. Hazen was the type who was loved by all. His kindness, his courtesy and his consideration endeared him to those who knew him. . . . Mr. Hazen's passing is not only the loss of a friend but will be a distinct loss to the city itself.

"For 52 years he has been in the service of the District government, throughout which time he served devotedly. . . . Throughout his years he has given an unselfish devotion to his duties and through his tireless energy, his intelligence and wide experience, he has been a contributing factor in the development of the National Capital.

"As a mark of respect and esteem, the Commissioners have ordered the closing of the District Building at noon today, as well as the lowering of the flags on all District buildings to half-staff."

Trade Board's Statement

Fred Smith, president of the Washington Board of Trade, who was in Mr. Hazen's office soon after he collapsed, spoke for the entire trade board, saying:

"We are deeply shocked to hear of the sudden death of Melvin C. Hazen. His interest in and love for this city were characterized by the depth and sincerity which only come to one who, like him, has spent a lifetime in its service. His record of achievement on behalf of local residents may well serve as a model for all who follow him.

"We also mourn the passing of one of our most beloved members. For 28 years Melvin Hazen held membership in the Washington Board of Trade and through his work on a number of our committees, previous to his being appointed Commissioner, proved himself to be one of our foremost citizens. We have lost a real Washingtonian."

Maj. Ernest W. Brown, superintendent of police, who was in the District Building at the time, was deeply affected. He had tears in his eyes as he spoke to reporters.

"Mr. Hazen's passing," he said, "is a personal loss to me. I have known him for many years and we have been closely associated since he became Commissioner. I considered him one of the finest gentlemen ever to fill the post."

Frank R. Jelleff, chairman of the District Parole Board, sent a telegram to Commissioner Young. It read:

"I am sorry indeed to hear the distressing news of the death of Commissioner Hazen, who has so long and so ably served the people of the District of Columbia. The Board of Parole particularly will miss his ever stanch support."

Lost Friend—Lanham

Clifford Lanham, superintendent of parks, trees and parkings and a close friend of the dead Commissioner, said:

"A finer man never lived. He was a friend of mine for half a century. He always was a gentleman. I feel as if I've lost one of my best friends—and I have."

Corporation Counsel Richmond B. Keech described Mr. Hazen's death as a "tremendous loss" to the city. He paid high tribute to the elderly city father, adding: "He will be hard to replace."

There were similar sentiments from citizens and persons in public life all over the city.

The Montgomery County board of commissioners adopted a resolution unanimously expressing its "profound sorrow" at Commissioner Hazen's death.

The resolution remarked on the District head's "splendid and sterling qualities of citizenship and leadership . . . as well as his many years of honest and faithful service in the employ of the government of the District of Columbia, his genial personality and his love of his fellowmen."

Both Houses Get Bills for Glider Training in NYA

Copyright by New York Times

Legislation creating a glider division within the National Youth Administration to carry out a program of training in the construction, handling and maintenance of gliders and sailplanes, was introduced in both houses of Congress yesterday. Sponsors were Senator Pat McCarran (Democrat), of Nevada, and Representative William H. Suthpin (Democrat), of New Jersey.

The measure would authorize the NYA to sponsor the formation of glider clubs and educational and other groups of young people; to furnish these clubs with plans, specifications and directions for construction of gliders and sailplanes; to train members in flying and handling gliders and sailplanes, and to do "everything within its (the glider division's) power to promote the art of gliding and soaring in the United States and its possessions, both as a national defense measure and as a sport, including the sponsoring of glider and sailplane trials and competition."

Lower 'Phone Charges Urged for Soldiers

Harrisburg, Pa., July 15 (AP).—Lower telephone rates throughout the Nation for soldiers calling their homes from military camps was urged by a Pennsylvania public utility commissioner today as a "morale builder" for the growing Army.

"Lower rates—rates that the boys in camp could pay—would be the biggest possible morale builder," Richard J. Beamish declared in a letter to James L. Fly, chairman of the Federal Communications Commission.

Our share in the Ford defense job is right here at home

THE Ford Motor Company has been called upon to do a big job for National Defense. On the River Rouge, a $35,000,000 military airplane engine plant has been erected. At Willow Run, near Ypsilanti, Michigan, Ford will soon be building big bombers and bomber assemblies by mass production methods. Special Ford assembly lines have already produced Army trucks, reconnaissance cars, and bomb-service trucks for the Air Corps.

The Ford national defense production program is in high gear, setting records for getting things done fast. As Ford dealers we're mighty proud of these records. And we're glad to report to you that Ford is working an extra day a week to keep National Defense activity at full speed ahead, while producing the finest Ford Car ever built. And for you, our customers, we dealers are making every effort to see that you get deliveries as fast as possible.

Our share in the Ford defense job is right here at home. The country's need for good transportation has never been more vital than now. We are here to serve you—now as always—with modern, reliable, economical transportation. That's where Ford-built products excel. And we are still in a position to make you a real deal on your present car.

And . . . Now Is The Time To Buy!

GAO Recommends 2,800 For Civil Service

General Accounting Office has recommended to the Civil Service Commission that 2,800 of its 3,400 employes who had been paid from emergency funds be brought under the merit system as of July 1. More than 500 others will be brought under civil service on January 1 through the Ramspeck Act. These 500 employes failed to qualify for status on July 1 because they hadn't been in their jobs for at least six months. Less than 100 others have unsatisfac- records and they will either be fired or, if they improve, be brought under merit after June 30, 1942.

It will be interesting to see what types of noncompetitive tests will be given the GAO employes, as similar exams are to be given the 182,000 employes who will be brought under merit by the Ramspeck Act on January 1. More employes fail the physical test than the mental exams, but the commission has just let down the bars somewhat on the tests. Hereafter, an employe up for civil service needn't be examined by a Public health doctor. A certificate of physical fitness from a family doctor will be accepted.

It's also probable that few GAO employes will be given extensive mental tests. Most employes earning more than $2,000 will be graded on experience and education. It is even doubted now if junior auditors who are paid $1,620 will be given mental tests as they are trained and promoted, on commission approval, to their present jobs. Machine operators are likely to be graded on the production records.

Smithsonian Institution has been added to the list of defense agencies. On what ground, no one seems to know. Other new defense agencies, so designated by the Civil Service Commission, are Federal Housing Administration, Interstate Commerce Commission, Labor Department, Postoffice Department and the Bureau of Narcotics and the foreign-owned property section of the Treasury Department. More than 100 departments and agencies now have been placed on the list of defense agencies. It is a distinction now to work for a nondefense agency, there are so few of them.

Bernard Ades Resigns

Federal Works Boss John Carmody has referred the Government cafeteria case to the Justice Department for appropriate action. Justice may take the case to court to determine the right of the Welfare and Recreational Association to operate cafeterials in Government buildings . . . Bernard Ades, who was accused of running for Governor of Maryland on the Communist Party ticket, has resigned his position as auditor at United States Housing Authority in the midst of an FBI investigation.

The House Civil Service Committee has favorably reported three bills that will be considered through Monday. A Senate-approved bill would permit Federal agencies to pay draftees for their accrued annual leave. Another Senate bill would allow the Federal Bureau of Investigation to re-hire some of its retired G-Men. The third bill, requested by Secretary Ickes, would place the deputy commissioners of Indian affairs and deputy land commissioners under the Civil Service system.

The House-approved bill that would raise the inadequate salaries of building guards has an excellent chance of Senate approval . . . Bert Gross, president of UFWA's local at UHA, asked the House Public Buildings and Grounds Committee to authorize the construction of 10,000 housing units here for single Federal employes . . . Thirteen of the 15 lawyers hired and then fired at Public Works have been officially hired again and have been put to work under Alan Johnstone, Federal Works general counsel.

Farm Credit Administration is reliably reported to have recommended to the Budget Bureau that its credit union section was the only division that could possibly be moved out of Washington. Agriculture officials are understood to be working on a plan to place FCA in one of its two main buildings and to give up its quarters at 1300 E Street to a defense agency.

She Looks Pretty; She Plays the Same

MARJORIE SALZEDO
Chamber's Harp Soloist

Postlude

By Ray C. B. Brown.

C. C. Cappel and National Capital Parks Service present the third Starlight Chamber Music Concert in Meridian Hill Park on Tuesday night. Artists: The Salzedo Ensemble (Carlos Salzedo and Marjorie Call Salzedo, harps; Rene Le Roy, flute; Janos Scholz, violoncello). Program of compositions by Bach, Handel, Locatelli, Rameau, Mozart, Martini, Eccles, Mendelssohn, Popper, Debussy and Ravel.

BROWN

When the sponsors chose "Starlight" to designate the adventurous chamber music concerts in Meridian Hill Park, it was probably with the hope that every evening would be as benign and balmy as the one that witnessed the third in the series. Not only was the sky so clear that astronomers could have picked out the constellations and possibly discovered a new planetoid, but there was not even a wandering wisp of cloud to hint that a thunderstorm might be in the offing. The air had a suavity condusive to the enjoyment of sweet concords of sound, and a stillness that preserved every vibration of tone.

Stendhal was the first critic of music and art to point out at the beginning of the last century that expressive art demands its appropriate decor, and that the wrong setting will immediately awaken in the mind of the spectator some association destructive to the illusion of beauty. His observing eye could find no fault in the surroundings which constitute part of the charm of these concerts in the open air. Chamber music had its origin in villas and palaces set in just such formal pleasances as Meridian Hill Park, and in the revolution of time the common people are enjoying what was once the privilege of the aristocrats.

The hedged walks, the playing fountains, the leafy bowers and the central pool set the scene for the enchantment of musical imagination. The sense of confinement which one feels in a concert hall has disappeared, and one is scarcely conscious of one's neighbors. Yet one is aware that beyond the visible auditors are other listeners esconced in pathways and upon convenient steps. Audiences of this size demonstrate the democracy of chamber music.

Last evening's artists gave the kind of program which is democratic in its appeal, for the majority of the compositions were familiar. Carlos Salzedo, the premier harpist of our day, was the guiding spirit of the instrumental ensemble which included his charming wife, Marjorie Call Salzedo; the French (and soon to be American) flautist, Rene Le Roy, and Janos Scholz, violoncellist. Each took turn as a soloist, and in that capacity, as well as in cooperation with the others, displayed an adept artistry.

The program opened with a comparative novelty, a foursome arrangement of a two-movement sonata by Pietro Locatelli, an Italian contemporary of Bach. Arranged for two harps were a harpsichord piece by Rameau, "La Joyeuse;" a gavotte by Padre Martini, and Mendelssohn's flowing lyric, "On Wings of Song."

Janos Scholz was heard in the slow movement from a sonata by Henry Eccles and in David Popper's virtuosic Tarentella. Mr. Salzedo and his wife contributed Ravel's ingratiating and brilliant Introduction and Allegro for piano and harp. Rene Le Roy selected for his solos the polonaise from Bach's B minor Overture and the opening allegro from Mozart's D major flute concerto.

Mr. Salzedo, who was responsible for the excellent transcriptions on the program, played Handel's "Harmonious Blacksmith" variations, the Londonderry Air, and his own scintillant "Whirlwind." The concert closed with a transcription of Debussy's fanciful, poetic and humorous piano suite, "Children's Corner." Extra numbers were plentifully granted in response to the enthusiastic applause.

House Probe Of Dupont 'Affair' Due

U. S. Acquisition Of Hotel, Ousting Of Tenants to Be Aired, Lanham Says

Puzzling aspects of the leasing of the Dupont Circle Hotel to the Government for office space will be looked into on Capitol Hill next week.

Chairman Fritz Lanham, of the House Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds, declared yesterday that "l'affaire Dupont" will be sifted thoroughly at hearings on the Sabath plan to decentralize the Government's executive branch.

The apartment hotel was a place of conflicting statements and upset tenants yesterday, the day which was supposed to have been the deadline for vacating.

The 12-story building, which has 345 dwelling units, was half empty, three-fourths empty, 90 per cent empty, depending upon your source of information. The lobby was stripped of carpeting, chairs, pictures, spittoons and other furnishings but the manager couldn't say why, or where the objects had been taken.

Clay J. Guthridge, chief of the division of planning and space control in the Public Buildings Administration, which leases rented space for the cramped Federal Government, said it was his understanding the building was half-vacated.

He reckoned that moving of desks, files, etc., into the building would be started "in a few days." The fact that some tenants, most of them leaseholders, do not choose to get out will not prevent Government offices being established around them, said Guthridge.

The space made available is to be occupied by the Federal Bureau of Investigation, which long since overflowed the Department of Justice Building.

The Lanham committee is expected to study all phases of the Dupont Circle Hotel deal: How it came to be offered to the Government, who are the stockholders of the apartment hotel corporation, tactics used in attempting to get tenants to leave, and other angles.

Stork Wins Race In Car at Bethesda Postoffice

While the Pioneer Mother looked on with understanding, Mrs. Lawrence G. Stoddard, 27, of Rockville, Md., gave birth to an 8-pound girl yesterday in front of the Bethesda, Md., Postoffice.

The frantic father had parked his car in front of the Pioneer Mother Statue while he ran to the Bethesda police station across the street to call help. Desk Clerk Calvin Johnson called the Bethesda Rescue Squad about 5:30 a. m. but before they hurried to the scene the baby was born.

Firemen James O. Breeden and S. C. Robertson removed the mother and child to Doctor's Hospital. Mr. and Mrs. Stoddard also have a 2½-year-old son. The father is a junior astronomer at the Naval Observatory.

Call to Court on Hit-Run, Speeding Charges Upsets Schedule of Army and Cupid

FIRST AID is administered to Mrs. Grace Hill, 63, of the Gordon Hotel, who was struck by a streetcar yesterday at Fourteenth Street and New York Avenue Northwest. Mrs. Hill, a Red Cross volunteer worker, suffered abrasions to the right knee and shock

Due to be inducted into the Army this morning, Carl L. Hoyle, 23, of Hillside, Md., will report at Police Court instead, summoned to answer charges of hit-and-run, speeding and driving without a permit.

And his dilemma is no less reduced by the fact his fiancee, Laura Moore, 20, of 1115 K Street Northwest, who would have been his bride had not the police intervened, also will be in court—charged with disorderly conduct.

The couple, police said, were driving to Forestville, Md., to be married yesterday afternoon, when their automobile, operated by Hoyle, was involved in a collision with another machine driven by Presley Bennett, 31, of 1710 B Street Northeast, at Ninth and E Streets Southeast.

Hoyle, it was charged, failed to stop. D. A. Hildebrand, president of the National Trucking & Storage Co., a passenger in the other auto, commandeered an auto and gave chase.

Policeman Joins Pursuit

The fleeing machine sped along Pennsylvania Avenue Southeast, toward the District Line, it was said. Near Branch Avenue, Hildebrand stopped and picked up Patrolman C. H. Hagerty, Eleventh Precinct, who was patrolling and who saw Hoyle's machine speed past.

Hagerty hung to the running board of the pursuing car and said the machine traveled at times between 60 and 80 miles an hour. At Bowen Road and the District Line, Hoyle was slowed up by traffic and was forced to stop.

Miss Moore, an employe of the Postal Telegrph Co., used profanity toward the arresting officer, it was said, which brought about her charge.

Hoyle was released under $500 bail. Miss Moore posted $10 collateral.

Mrs. Grace Hill, 63, of the Gordon Hotel, 916 Sixteenth Street Northwest, suffered abrasions to the right knee and arm when struck by a the avenue, while the streetcar and New York Avenue Northwest intersection at 4:50 p. m. yesterday. Mrs. Hill, a Red Cross volunteer worker, was walking south across streetcar at the Fourteenth Street was making a right-hand turn from Fourteenth Street. At Emergency Hospital, Mrs. Hill's condition was reported as fair.

Earlier in the day one driver was held for grand jury action and another was exonerated by a coroner's jury after inquests into two recent traffic deaths.

Wallace Washington, 35, Negro, of 1906 New Hampshire Avenue Northwest, was charged with manslaughter in the death of Mrs. Althea Seebode, 37, of 1327 North Carolina Avenue Northeast.

Hit on Bladensburg Road

Mrs. Seebode was fatally injured as she walked across Bladensburg Road Northeast, in the 2300 block, last Saturday night. She was carrying ice cream cones to her husband, Adolph, and her son, who were waiting in the family car.

It was testified Washington was driving at a high rate of speed on the wrong side of the street and that he was intoxicated. He was charged with driving while drunk before Mrs. Seebode died at Casualty Hospital early Sunday.

Washington's attorney at the Morgue yesterday—Robert I. Miller—informed Coroner A. Magruder McDonald that a prima facie case was established and he had no desire to continue after only 3 witnesses were heard.

In the second case, the jury absolved from blame Albert S. Williams, 21, Negro, of 1628 Sixth Street Northwest, driver of the automobile which struck and killed Elsie Malloy, 6, Negro, of 1808 Sixth Street Northwest, last Friday.

Lieut. William J. Liverman testified that the child ran from between parked cars at Sixth and S Streets Northwest, directly into the path of Williams' machine.

Second Suspect Hunted in Fatal Slugging Case

No trace had been found last night of a second suspect sought by police in connection with the murder of Leslie K. Mann, 45, of 1318 Fourteenth Street Northwest.

One man was seized Monday by homicide squad detectives, immediately after Mann succumbed in Emergency Hospital from the effects of head injuries. He was still held last night.

A civilian auditor employed by the Coast Guard, Mann was severely beaten in his apartment July 9 by two men. He was found unconscious by his roommate, Charles J. Bolton.

The apartment had literally been wrecked, police said. Furniture was overturned and clothing and personal effects strewn over the floor. Nothing of value was taken from the flat, detectives learned.

Mann died of a fractured skull. Neighbors reported Mann was talking and laughing in his rooms with two men "until a terrific battle" began. None of the apartment house residents called the police.

Police said the man had been identified and said "it's just a question of time" before he is apprehended.

Picket Is Fined As Disorderly

Charged with being disorderly at the Arcade-Sunshine Laundry Co., Ann Ward, 27, Negro, of 1208 Sixth Street Northwest, was fined $10 by Police Court Judge Hobart Newman yesterday.

Police testified the woman, a striker, was making "a loud and boisterous noise." The woman said she was picketing the plant when she was taken into custody.

The strike has been on for two weeks with all efforts at conciliation at an impasse.

Baby Is Reported Coming Along Fine After 22-Foot Fall

Walter Rupprecht, 18-month-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Phillip Rupprecht, 904 M Street Northwest, was reported "coming along fine" at Children's Hospital last night after he fell 22 feet from a second-story window of his home to the pavement.

His father said Walter had been playing in the room where his mother was ill and had climbed to a window sill. He pushed against the screen and toppled out. An Emergency Hospital ambulance took him to Children's Hospital.

Diamond, Club, Spade Soothes Heartache of Draftee's Girl

The Post is offering $25 for the best idea on what to do about the wives and girls the selectees have left at home.

More ideas continued to pour in to the puzzle editor yesterday.

Post Puzzle Editor:

This is a heart problem, but I think that clubs, spades and diamonds are the answer to it.

Clubs? Let the girls left behind form clubs and comfort each other. Misery loves company, especially when the miserable lovers are in companies.

Spades? Let the girls forget their loneliness in digging gardens. They'll have to deal with men when their sweethearts get their honorable discharges; and they can't learn too much about the bees and the flowers in the meantime.

Diamonds? Let the girls organize softball teams. When they play in shorts they're sure to attract all the men they want. C. L.

Dear Mr. Editor:

The women left at home who are green with envy at seeing their favorite man prominently displayed enjoying a night with his favorite movie actress have only one course to follow, that is to fight fire with fire. In other words, the women must organize an S. S. T. A. (Selective Service Trainees' Auxiliary) which would be comprised of wives and sweethearts of selectees. The organization would admit only those women who are certified by a draftee himself.

As the Power's models and movie actresses are doing so much for their own publicity, it is reasonable to assume that the male movie stars would be entirely receptive to such free publicity as attendance at an S. S. T. A. meeting would bring them. R. E. C.

To the Editor:

Why not organize the unmarried and unattached men between the ages of 28 and 50 into a Relief Force or Home Occupation Army? These men would undergo a rigid test both in morals and manners before becoming active members of the organization. Having once passed the test, they could be given some distinctive badge which would permit them to act as companions to the Nation's damsels in distress. All lonesome ladies could register their names, ages, likes and dislikes with a local bureau which would see to it that the correct type of man was sent out on relief duty. C. F. H.

LaGuardia Opens Drive Here Tonight

Will Explain Urgent Need of Country For Aluminum At Press Club

Unofficially opening the District Council of Defense Scrap Aluminum Collection Campaign, Mayor Fiorello H. LaGuardia will explain the country's urgent need of aluminum this afternoon at 5:30 in an address at the National Press Club Auditorium.

The aluminum drive in Washington will include a "pick-up" day on July 23 when 23 trucks will tour the city. They will be accompanied by Boy Scouts and Legionnaires who will go from door-to-door.

To take care of the residents who may not be home that day, large bins will be built in front of the District Building and near the various police and fire stations where scrap aluminum may be left. Plans for collection of the needed metal were completed yesterday at a committee meeting.

In a letter to the Washington aluminum collection comittee, which was read by Mrs. Harry S. Bernton at a meeting Monday night, Mayor LaGuardia declared, "The Nation needs aluminum for planes and for other vital items in its defense program more rapidly than existing facilities can produce it. The people of the Nation can help by donating all used aluminum that can be spared from their households."

Defense Bonds Called 'Safest' Investment

Maj. Gen. James A. Drain, past national commander of the American Legion, last night told nearly 1,000 persons at Treasury House that "no other dollar put into deso secure as the dollar put into defense bonds."

His address was delivered at the conclusion of "Legion Day" activities at the house, Fourteenth Street and Pennsylvania Avenue Northwest.

Eighty-four members of the District Legion Guard of Honor received certificates of award for their services in the National Selective Service lottery from Brig. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, deputy director of Selective Service.

Gen. Drain commended the American Legion for its aid in Selective Service, the USO and in purchasing Defense Bonds and Savings Stamps. He declared that "the legion can be depended upon" to help the country.

Army Band Plays

Preceding the ceremonies a concert was presented by the United States Army Band. The Sons of the Legion Drum and Bugle Corps and the Fort Stevens Drum and Bugle Corps also presented a concert and paraded in review with the Legion of Honor.

The Navy Band will present a concert from 2 to 2:30 p. m. and the Marine Corps Band Orchestra will play at Treasury House from 6:30 to 7 p. m. today.

Steve Vassilakos, who has sold peanuts from his stand near the White House since President Theodore Roosevelt's day, will trundle his cart down to Treasury House today at 11:30 a. m. to sell peanuts for defense.

With the proceeds of his day's business at Treasury House he will buy Defense Savings Stamps. Part of the stamps he says he will keep. Others he will try to sell from his stand by the White House to stimulate the interest of others in buying stamps.

Those receiving awards were:

Woman Robbed At Pistol Point

JANE WINSHIP
Faced Masked Bandit

Robbers held up two laundries in different sections of the city yesterday.

At pistol point a young Negro forced Mrs. Jane Winship, 26, of 923 South Twentieth Street, Arlington, to hand over approximately $35 from the till of the Vogue Laundry, 1744 Columbia Road Northwest.

As the man entered the store where Mrs. Winship was alone, he drew a handkerchief over the lower part of his face and ordered her to empty the cash register, she said.

The man was described as being about 6 feet tall and weighing 200 pounds. He fled on foot.

I. W. Adams, manager of the Vogue laundry chain, said the store was held up about a year ago.

At Smith's Laundry, Eighth and B Streets Southeast, a youth who was "so handsome I wouldn't have believed it if he hadn't had a gun in his hand" held up Miss Ida Lee, 514 Ninth Street Southeast. He fled with $15.

She described him as about 19, 5 feet 4 inches tall, of slight build, and "very nervous."

Wayne Carden, 22, of 237 Eighth Street Northeast, was treated at Casualty Hospital last night for a head injury received; he said, when he was struck over the head and robbed of $9 as he alighted from a streetcar at Eighth Street and Maryland Avenue Northeast.

He said he did not see his assailant who crept up from behind and struck him with what may have been a bottle. Carden works in the kitchen of a drive-in eating place.

Liquid Asphalt Explodes, Man Severely Injured

Charles Ryer, 29, of 1647 Jackson Street, Baltimore, was severely injured early yesterday morning when a large tank containing liquid asphalt exploded at the Broken Gravel Pit near Bradbury Heights, Md.

According to John Bond, of Brandywine, an employe of the gravel pit, Ryer had been unloading asphalt from a truck to a storage tank. The explosion occurred when Ryer climbed on top of the tank with a lighted lantern.

Members of the Bladensburg Rescue Squad, who took Ryer to Casualty Hospital, said he was hurled approximately 35 feet by the explosion. Ryer's clothes were blown from his body, and he was badly burned about the face, back and chest.

Hospital officials said last night that his condition was serious but not critical.

HOLC Man Urges Poll On Moving

Canvass of Federal Employes Suggested Before Agencies Leave Washington

A poll of Federal employes as to their willingness to work in some other city, should their offices be transferred elsewhere, was advocated yesterday as a means of avoiding another HOLC debacle.

The plan was proposed by an official of the Home Owners Loan Corporation which, along with other units of the Federal Home Loan Bank Board, is to be moved to New York City in the near future.

The official, whose name must be withheld, said the FHLBB Building is utterly downcast since the announcement on July 3 that its 1,100 employes—or those who chose to make the switch—were to be shifted to New York as soon as practicable.

Half Expected to Refuse

Since further decentralization in the executive branch of government is being discussed, the humane thing to do would be to canvass all departments and bureaus in order to determine which employes have no objection to working, say in New York, Chicago, Nashville or Denver.

It is believed that at least half of the FHLBB staff, many of whose members have been with the organization since its beginnings nearly eight years ago, will refuse to go to New York.

In cases where an employe's spouse works in another bureau, the home would have to be broken up, unless one or the other gave up his job. Among other complicating factors are aged dependents who cannot be adjusted readily in another environment and moving costs involved in the transfer.

Utah Lures Applicants

In contrast is the situation of the Interior Department's Grazing Service, which is being besieged by job applicants who would like to move with it to Salt Lake City, Utah.

The small bureau will pull up stakes for the West this month, leaving only two employes here to do liaison work and route mail, and scores of Federal clerks are seeking transfers because they relish the idea of working in Utah.

Director R. H. Rutledge said yesterday that about 40 of the 60 employes will make the move, the remainder being unable to leave Washington for one reason or another. These will be fitted into other Government jobs in the same department.

Class in Nutrition Will Begin on Friday

A class in nutrition will be held Friday at 1 p. m. at the American Women's Volunteer Services, 1640 Connecticut Avenue Northwest, with Mrs. D. K. Greenwald, dietitian, as instructor. The class will continue through the summer every Tuesday and Friday afternoon.

Mrs. Raymond Lee, wife of the United States Military Attache in London, is chairman of the Washington Chapter of the Services.

The Navy Tells Mr. Montgomery and Columbia; Picture Exhibitors Study Their Arithmetic; Amusement Items on the Spot and Off

IT IS REPORTED from the West Coast that the motion picture industry is becoming acutely aware that once a screen actor joins any branch of the armed forces of the United States he pretty definitely belongs to the armed forces of the United States, let the clippings fall where they may on the cutting room floor. Take the case of Robert Montgomery and Columbia Pictures, for example.

Robert Montgomery

The debonair Mr. Montgomery—with an ambulance-driving trick in France already to his credit—on July 1 signed up for a hitch in the Navy. He had ostensibly completed a picture for Columbia just prior to his enlistment. After a preview of the film, studio executives agreed that one added scene would serve as a needed vitamin pill for it. So off went a request to the Navy Department, asking to "borrow" Montgomery for the sequence. The reply was received promptly.

It was to the effect that Montgomery is on a training cruise, "present whereabouts unknown," and the general implication was that Hollywood has no further claim to his services. But the scene will be shot—with a double for Montgomery, acting with his back to the camera.

Uncle Sam isn't fooling.

While to some this device of substituting a double for the star in one scene may sound destructive of the picture's integrity, there is past evidence to the contrary. When something more tragically final than a Navy edict removed the late Jean Harlow from the cast of "Saratoga" before completion of the film, Mary Dees assumed a comparable responsibility and when the Clark Gable costarrer reached the screen nobody was aware of the substitution, so cleverly was it handled. If M-G-M could do it, so can Columbia.

The Exhibitors Seem to Have a Case

If the Government has any sense of give-and-take, the motion picture operators may get somewhere with their latest contention. That is that reduced admissions to all service men in uniform be relieved of all Federal tax. Failing this, the theater owners, led by Loew's, Paramount, Warner Brothers, RKO-Radio and a passel of independent circuits, feel that, at most, the reduced admissions should be taxed only on actual cost, instead of on the full price of the tickets reduced. The most a service man can pay for a ticket is 25 cents. Those tickets are taxed up to 6 cents. The picture people seem unable to locate an arithmetic in which 10 per cent of 25 cents is 6 cents. The Treasury Department probably will be able to show them one.

Now that "Wave That Flag, America," is rapping at the door of the big time, I wonder if Composer Howard Acton remembers that other Press Club chanty, "My Dream of the U. S. A.," that enjoyed a similar success 'way back yonder, when the Press Club occupied a cubicle on an F Street second floor, between Eleventh and Twelfth Streets? It was Harry Cooper and his Empire City Quartet that put that one over, as I remember it. No matter, since it only happens about once every 30 years!

Wings With "I Wanted Wings"

To promote air-mindedness in the consciousness of Washington youth, the Apex Theater, Massachusetts Avenue and Forty-eighth Street Northwest, will give away 1,000 miniature United States Army bomber glider planes in conjunction with the showing of the film, "I Wanted Wings," featuring Ray Milland, Wayne Morris, Bridegroom William Holden, Brian Donlevy and Veronica Lake . . . The first 1,000 boys and girls attending the opening matinee performance, July 23, will be the lucky ones . . . "The Bride Came C. O. D.," costarring Bette Davis with James Cagney in the first comedy she has had since goodness knows when, is being screened today by the Earle high command to pep up the press . . . Once a press agent, always a press agent . . . The Terrellble Terrell, supposedly on a vacation from the Loew offices, postcards from Bethany Beach, Del.: "This is the finest beach I've seen since 'Moon Over Miami'—except for that 'rainshine' you mentioned" . . . Well, there is always "moonshine" in a pinch—and I didn't say bottle . . . "Father" has cracked another one . . . In Detroit, on Monday, the Dorothy Gish-Louis Calhern "Life With Father" company opened its seventh week at the Cass Theater, breaking the record of the last 13 years, set by "The Man Who Came to Dinner" with six . . . But if you want the real long-run champ, you'll have to go out to the Theater Mart in Los Angeles, where "The Drunkard" began its ninth year on July 6 . . . That's a plenty long jag.

Cold-Gray-Dawn Note

If that hangover keeps up, they'll have to change the name of the house to the Theater Martyr.

A Match for Mickey

Hollywood, Calif., July 15. Mickey Rooney won't be the only one doing imitations in "Babes On Broadway." Judy Garland will come through with three—Sarah Bernhardt, Blanche Ring, singing "I've Got Rings On My Fingers," and Fay Templeton, worbling "Mary's A Grand Old Name."

Ish Kabibble's comedy, which matches his name, has the soldier boys in the various camps in such a dither that Kay Kyser has put him on last, 'cause nobody can follow him. (Note to Director Dave Butler: How about teaming Ish with Tizzy Lish and letting them blend their routines, also their names, as to which billing would come first? Would it be Ish-Lish or Tizzy-Kabibble? Oh, let's skip it!)....

Joan Crawford has more than a dozen eye-filling costumes which Adrian has whipped up for "When Ladies Meet," but no jewels to go with 'em, so she'll wear her own, including her aquamarine act which hasn't yet been aired.

Arrived on the set of "One Foot in Heaven" just after Martha Scott's home burned down. She was relaxing in the only bit of shade on the back lot, just after the fire trucks, pulled by sturdy horses, had passed by and left their calling cards. And there she was—one foot in heaven, the other foot in trouble!

But having a ranch in the Valley, she didn't mind, because Red Ember, horse her husband won in a raffle, now plays dead for Hubert, the goat. He not only plays dead, but rolls over, and they go on like a couple of kittens. Beside two goats, they have a Great Dane, Scottie, 52 chickens, and colored maid Marguerite wants to add pigs and turkeys. Says she should be allowed some fun, too.

Ray Bolger has arrived at last in "Four Jacks and a Queen." He gets the gal for the first time in pictures . . . Ned Griffith didn't need a diet, but the location of Salt Cay trimmed him down to skeleton size. Now he's gorging on malted milks, ice creams, and planning a vacation in Alaska where a man can work up a thirst and an appetite and keep it.

Edward Everett Horton, our staunchest bachelor, has to act in "Weekend for Three." He plays a man who's been wed five times and talks about it throughout the picture. . . . Director Irving Reis won't accuse his actors of mugging but says, "Easy on the facial calisthenics."

New York, July 15.

A FRANTIC WIRE from a young newspaper editor, apologizing for rushing back home to the West. I had introduced him to Peggy Joyce, whom he tried to interest in writing a column to be called "My Night." He took her to dinner to discuss this deal . . . At 3 a. m., in El Morocco, he whispered to me: "This really is an exciting city. Here I am, a small-town boy—out with Peggy Joyce." That's when I left them—and the wire came the next morning, after he had entrained for the West. New York had been too exciting, for at 3:30 a. m. in that cafe, Peggy denounced a Latin customer. And when she insisted that his ancestry was African, the aggrieved gentleman sought to heal his honor by delivering to Miss Joyce's escort his personal card, and the card of his second—a challenge to a duel.

At least one of them should be willing to change seats with you, so that we can be together" . . . The usher led me to my seat. It was on the aisle. My single neighbor there was a columnist. A BRONZE BADGE, which admitted me to the Republican National Convention last year. On the train coming back to New York, long after midnight, was Grace Moore and her husband, Valentine Parera. Miss Moore had just performed at a concert in Philadelphia . . . "It was most disconcerting, so much noise," Mr. Parera lamented. "There was so much noise from across the street. What was that noise?" . . . "That noise," he was told, "was Wendell Willkie's nomination."

A MANUSCRIPT of the Hecht-MacArthur play, "The Front Page" . . . Leonard Sillman had planned to present a revival on Broadway and invited me to play one of the reporter roles . . . Heywood Broun and Sinclair Lewis had agreed to appear in it. The production date never was settled; neither Broun nor Lewis could agree upon which roles they'd perform . . . A few weeks later, when I saw Broun at the Stork Club, he said: "Well, Red Lewis and I now are speaking again. He was in here tonight" . . . "What happened?" I asked . . . "We just shook hands," said Broun, "—and broke clean."

A DRIVER'S LICENSE of the $1 learners' class, which never blossomed into a full permit. It was issued in the spring of 1936, when Ted Husing insisted: "I won't let you spend $10 for driving lessons. I'll teach you myself" . . . He drove to 116th St., on the safety lanes inside Columbia University, and there began his instructions . . . "Well, I've saved you $10," he insisted—and then headed the car uptown. "As long as we're up this far," he explained, "we might as well take a look at the dice tables." We drove a few miles to the cafe where Ted began to roll the dice . . . The expense-saving driving lessons never were resumed. For that night Husing lost $525.

Quintet of New Films Enters Midsummer Amusement Lists

"THEY MET IN BOMBAY." Clark Gable and Rosalind Russell costar in this new adventure comedy opening tomorrow morning at the Palace. The two play jewel thieves following the same path to a fabulous gem. Gable lifts Miss Russell's stolen property, but comes a cropper when he has to join the Royal troops in India. Peter Lorre, Jessie Ralph, Reginald Owen and Edward Ciannelli are featured in the supporting company.

RKO-Keith's

Earle

"THE BRIDE CAME C. O. D." Bette Davis and James Cagney desert their dramatic metier for a fling at comedy, their vehicle telling of a spoiled debutante with more dollars than sense and an aviator with the opposite combination. She wants to marry a bandleader and her father hires the flier to kidnap the girl. Eugene Pallette, Jack Carson, Stuart Erwin and George Tobias are the other players. Lani McIntire, his orchestra and the Aloha Islanders headline the stage revue, with Buster West and Lucille Page in the other top spots. Opens Friday morning.

Capitol

"MOON OVER MIAMI." Betty Grable, Don Ameche and Robert Cummings have the leads in this Technicolor musical film of the fabulous winter resort, several sequences of which were filmed in Florida. The score is by Robin and Rainger; the company includes Charlotte Greenwood, Jack Haley, Carole Landis and Cobina Wright, jr. On the stage, Gene Ford will present his second "Pan Americana" revue, with Senor Wences, ventriloquist-juggler; Singer Rosita Rios; Les Ghezzis, Byrnes and Swanson. Opens tomorrow morning.

Metropolitan

"THE PLAINSMAN." This Gary Cooper-Jean Arthur revival depicts the romance of "Wild Bill" Hickok and "Calamity Jane" in the post-Civil War Indian country. Cecil B. DeMille directed the cast which includes James Ellison, Helen Burgess, Porter Hall and Frank McGlynn, sr. Opens Friday morning.

Columbia

"BILLY THE KID." This Robert Taylor picturization in Technicolor of the career of the young killer returns to F Street after a week at the Capitol. Brian Donlevy, Gene Lockhart and Mary Howard are featured. Opens tomorrow morning.

Little

"THE MUTINY OF THE ELSINORE." Jack London's story, filmed in England, comes to the screen with Paul Lukas playing the writer who gets a thrilling story and becomes a courageous hero when the crew of a three-masted schooner rises in revolt. Lyn Harding, Kathleen Kelly and Michael Martin-Harvey are featured. Opens this morning.

Trans-Lux

"THE RED ARMY" is the timely short subject of the newsreel theater's incoming bill, picturing the beginnings and growth of the huge Russian army. South American fighters, the Chilean Cavalry School, appear in "Caballero College" and "Dumb Like a Fox" is the cartoon. Opens Friday morning.

Glen Echo

PAUL KAIN'S ORCHESTRA this week chalks up its fourteenth stanza in the Spanish Garden ballroom of the amusement park, with Adele Van voicing the vocals.

Potomac Line

CLYDE LUCAS and his orchestra will play on both of Saturday evening's cruises of the S. S. Potomac. The steamer sails from Seventh and Water Streets at 8:45 p. m. and 12:30 a. m. Sunday morning. The S. S. Potomac also offers Wednesday and Friday trips to Colonial Beach, sailing at 9 a. m.

Wilson Line

SUNSET CRUISES, sailing from its Seventh Street wharf, are offered daily except Mondays and Tuesdays by the S. S. Mount Vernon of the Wilson Line. The cruise is a 40-mile round trip sail to Marshall Hall Amusement Park. The vessel also cruises to Mount Vernon at 10 a. m. and 2 p. m.

Open Air

"THANKS A MILLION," the Dick Powell-Fred Allen musical, and "The Man I Married," the anti-Nazi melodrama with Joan Bennett and Francis Lederer, share the large screen of the auto theater on the Richmond Highway for a three-night run commencing tomorrow evening.

Sylvan

"AFTER WIMPOLE STREET." New to Washington, this play on the married life of Elizabeth Barrett and Robert Browning, is the fifth of the summer's Sylvan Theater Festivals on the Monument Grounds. The players Club of the Central Community Center is the production group, with Marian Leigh, Lucile Dickson, Roberta Kells, Hope Isherwood and Philip Ramirez in the leading roles. Performance tonight only at 8:15.

Cross Roads' New Menu Lists 'Room Service'

By Richard L. Coe

Now farce shatters the still of the Virginia night. "Room Service," that brash tale of the Broadway hillbillies, opened a six-night run at the Cross Roads Theater last evening.

Even though its speed is that of the Super-Super-Chief hauling an impatient movie magnate to a story conference and even though this rackety-rax pace encounters spasms of bronchial trouble accompanied by amnesia, "Room Service" is a more hilarious and happy production than the Cross Roaders' last two entries. Gordon Gray, whose facility at playing bumpkins with more wit than their physical shell indicates is all but a local legend, tops an aggressive cast "full of sound and fury."

"Room Service" is, of course, a perfect representative of the ecole George Abbott, that profitable comic tradition which plumps ordinary people into extraordinary situations and lets the devil do his devious best, which that witty master usually does. In their three-act farce Authors John Murray and Allen Boretz are concerned with a youthful Oswego (N. Y.) dramatist and what befalls him when his play, solemn, of course, is promised production by three resourceful experts with no resources. With all their cast, they're about to be evicted from the White Way Hotel, a Times Square inn whose twisted finances are being investigated by one of those efficiency experts. Illness and sudden death enter into their scheme of life encompassed by the accommodating four walls of their hotel room.

Edmund Evans Scores

Such legerdemain of the ecole Abbott is always accompanied by violent dashing about of folk who look determinedly normal, but who always turn out to be odder and odder. The Cross Roaders are absolutely right in adopting a slam-bang technique for such frivolity and were well rewarded last night with honest laughter. Still, in all this melange of energy, a smidget of light restraint wouldn't be a bad idea.

Of the first night performances, Edmund J. Evans' underspoken Harry Binion, one of the producing trio, was outstanding. His off-hand delivery of the Abbottesque wisecracks drew much of its effect from contrast. Gray scrambled about to evident amusement as the playwright, while William Draper and Robert Coren were more than efficient as the balance of the trio. Suzanne Carrier and Ruth May have the lone feminine roles.

Victor Sach, Gene Murphy, Sidney Bassler, Francis X. Nolan, Leroy Gaintner, Doyle Tripp, Robert Kirby and Forney Reese complete the cast. Howard Wentworth directed.

Civic Orchestra Plays at Fifth Festival Tonight

Fifth in the series of Summer Festivals joinly sponsored by the Community Center and Playgrounds Department and the Office of National Capital Parks will be held tonight at 7:30 in the Sylvan Theater on the Washington Monument Grounds.

The Washington Civic Orchestra, directed by Jean Manganaro will play compositions by Dvorak, Coates, Verdi and Victor Herbert. The second half of the performance will be devoted to modern comedy-drama entitled "After Wimpole Street," based on the married life of Robert and Elizabeth Barrett Browning in Florence.

Performers in the play will include Marian Leigh, Roberta Kells, Hope Isherwood, Dorothy Mannion, Clarador Oliker, Phyllis Warner, Jack Rollins, Remo Rubino, Philip Ramirez, William Sheaffer. It is directed by E. Parker Dupler.

There will be three other subsequent summer festivals at the Sylvan Theater this season, each on Wednesday night through August 6, it was announced.

Bill for Pipeline From East Texas Passed by Senate

The Senate yesterday passed legislation designated to facilitate early construction of a pipe line from the east Texas oil fields to the East Coast to forestall a shortage in the latter area.

The measure, previously passed by the House in slightly different form, would permit the President, when necessary for national defense, to let private companies use the Government's right of eminent domain in obtaining necessary land for pipe line construction. Government loans to private companies would be authorized.

The legislation also would empower the Government to engage directly in construction and operation of a pipe line when it was found to be "impracticable" for private interests.

Iceland Coup Attempt to Involve U. S., Taft Says

Senator Taft (Republican), of Ohio, said last night that occupation of Iceland by United States naval forces indicated "a deliberate policy to involve the United States in war without Congressional action."

"Iceland is a part of Europe, and we are therefore now intervening in Europe," he said in a speech prepared for radio delivery. "For the first time we are sending American soldiers and sailors into the midst of the war zone. . . . We are relieving 80,000 British soldiers for action at the front, and therefore for the first time taking an active military part in the war beween England and Germany."

The people, Taft went on, had shown through various public opinion polls that they were opposed to the "policy of the war party."

The "most authoritative of these polls," he said was one undertaken by President Robert M. Hutchins of the University of Chicago and a group of educators and clerics. Of those questioned in this poll, he said, 79.7 per cent voted "No" and 20.3 per cent "Yes" on the question "Do you believe that the United States should enter the war as an active belligerent at this time?"

Ferguson Returns to FTC

The Senate confirmed yesterday the nomination of Garland S. Ferguson, jr., to a new term as a member of the Federal Trade Commission.

Washington USO Drive Leads Many Big Cities

The United States Organization campaign in Washington is ahead of drives in New York, Chicago and many other large cities, campaign headquarters here reported yesterday.

With more than 80 per cent of its goal of $250,000 collected, workers last night hoped they would be over the top by the time the final report luncheon is held tomorrow at 12:30 p. m., at the Mayflower Hotel.

Republic Steel Agrees to Sign With CIO Union

Republic Steel Corporation, perhaps the most vehement and adamant opponent of the C. I. O. and the National Labor Relations Board, laid down its arms yesterday after a four-year battle and agreed to sign contracts with the Steel Workers Organizing Committee if the union can show a majority of members among the workers.

The action of the company, principal target of the bloody "Little Steel" strike in 1937, was announced by the NLRB after the board, the SWOC and the company signed an agreement, subject to approval of the Third Circuit Court of Appeals, settling all unfair labor practice cases outstanding against the corporation.

The stipulation, which the C. I. O. said would involve 41,630 workers, provides for the reinstatement, with back pay, of hundreds of workers, many of them displaced since 1937.

Reversal for Girdler

The agreement dispenses with the cumbersome procedure of a Labor Board election to determine majority representation and substitutes an NLRB check of 15 company plants' pay roll records against SWOC membership lists. On the result of this check, the board may issue certifications. If the SWOC has a majority, the company agrees to bargain and reduce any agreements to writing.

The agreement represents a sensational reversal of the position of Republic's chairman, Tom Girdler, who once said he would go back to his farm and dig potatoes before he would sign with the C. I. O.

Company Unions Barred

Other stipulations include the disestablishment of three allegedly company-dominated employe representation plans, and compliance with all outstanding court decrees and board reports covering complaints of unfair labor practices.

The Third Circuit Court of Appeals, to whose approval the agreement is subject, previously ruled in favor of the SWOC, requiring reinstatement with back pay of about 6,500 unionists involved in the 1937 strike. All those who have not already received their old jobs must be reinstated under the agreement.

The agreement, which C. I. O. spokesmen said would flower into written contracts, represents a victory four years delayed. At the time of the 1937 strike, the SWOC failed to obtain its major objectives but took its fight instead to the NLRB.

Roosevelt Calls On Brother Elks To Aid Defense

Philadelphia, July 15 (AP).—President Roosevelt, a member of Poughkeepsie Lodge, No. 275, B. P. O. E., called on his brother Elks today to aid in national defense.

"I know this grand organization will not fail in this time of national emergency," the President said in a message read to the Elks' annual convention by retiring Grand Exalted Ruler Joseph G. Buch, of Trenton, N. J.

Another distinguished Elk, James A. Farley, of the Haverstraw (N. Y.) Lodge, No. 877, urged the members to "give support, encouragement and assistance to our Commander in Chief during this world emergency." Judge John S. McClelland, of Atlanta, Ga., succeeded Buch as grand exalted ruler.

Russian Planes Halt German Broadcast

New York, July 15 (UP).—A German radio broadcast this afternoon from "somewhere on the Russian front" was interrupted by several waves of Russian planes which drove the Nazi radio reporter and a lieutenant whom he was about to interview, to air raid shelters.

The short-wave broadcast had been underway only a few seconds when the Russian planes arrived, according to the account heard here.

The reporter later came back on the air, explaining he had been compelled to dive into a shelter.

After another interruption the German lieutenant came on the air and, in a trembling voice, explained that the Russian planes had caused no important damage.

Wheeler Favors Sending Critics Back to England

Senator Wheeler (Democrat), of Montana, said in the Senate yesterday that Englishmen who "come over here and ridicule" Congress should be told to "go home and mind their own business."

He expressed this view after reading to the Senate an interview with Josiah Wedgewood, a member of the British Parliament, in which the Englisman was quoted as saying, "Tell Wheeler to go soak his head."

"Think of the gall, think of the insolence, of a member of the British Parliament coming over here and ridiculing the Congress of the United States," Wheeler remarked.

In the House, Represetative Bender (Republican), of Ohio, expressed resentment over what he said were statements by Wedgewood that "'the trouble with you Americans is that you are afraid to assume responsibility; your President has assumed a large share of responsibility, it's true, but why haven't you got a sensible Congress?'"

Bender said Wedgewood "seems to think we've already become a British colony."

"Maybe he knows more tbout it than the Congress, but I don't think Congress thinks so," Bender added.

2 Army Fliers Killed In Georgia Crash

Macon, Ga., July 15 (INS).—An Army Air Corps instructor and a flying cadet were killed today when their plane crashed near here. The plane fell away from a formation of ships and plunged into the ground.

Those killed were Lieut. Fred H. Garrett, of Warren, Me., and Cadet Frank E. During, of Hollywood, Calif.

Ship Control Law Signed By Roosevelt

President Roosevelt yesterday signed the Ship Warrants Act, giving the Maritime Commission "persuasive authority of the most compeling nature to enforce reasonable freight rates and to effect priorities in transportation of vital defense cargoes.

The powers vested in the commission by the new law are applicable to both domestic and foreign ships. They include authority for the commission to issue warrants entitling vessels to preferential claim for fuel, lighterage, harbor, docking, repair and other terminal facilities, in return for agreement by the ships' operators to engage in the services and follow the routes desired by the commission.

The commission is expected to take a leaf from the books of the British, who have used similar authority with great success not only to insure the carrying of necessary defense materials and food to ports specified, but also to prevent traffic to Axis-supporting countries.

Thus, it has been reported, vessels known to be landing cargoes which eventually reach Germany, or to have been engaged in any dealing with the Axis, have been held up indefinitely at British coaling ports through denial of fuel until the owners "saw the light."

Commission officials declined to discuss this possible weapon in a plan of economic warfare and emphasized, instead, the law's importance in controlling freight rates, and including foreign flag vessels in the United States' defense program.

Officials of the Office of Price Administration, who have frequently pointed to the significance of freight rates on domestic prices, said they believed the act was of utmost importance in keeping rates from skyrocketing, particularly because Maritime Commission jurisdiction is thus extended to foreign ships.

They pointed out that in certain imports, particularly drugs, freight rates had risen in the past months by several hundred per cent, and explained that in many of these items the transportation charges were the major factor in the ultimate price.

Jones Pays Tribute to Late Fred Fisher

Jesse Jones, Secretary of Commerce, yesterday paid the following tribute to Fred Fisher, who died Sunday. Fisher was one of a famous family which founded the Fisher Body Co.:

"Fred Fisher exemplified thrift, energy and application. As a mechanic he took off his hat to no one and as an industrialist he had no superior. He foresaw the desirability of the closed car. He wanted the automobile to be as comfortable as the home and proceeded to make it so with the Fisher body. Notwithstanding his great success, he never got out of character. He never made a speech except in a director's room. His business code was complete honesty and he enjoyed the confidence of everyone. He accepted no favor but granted many. Fred Fisher climbed the ladder of success from the bottom to the top rung. He was an outstanding man in our generation. I shall miss his companionship. We never discussed business or politics."

Tunney Directs Entire Navy In Physical Fitness Program

GENE TUNNEY (right), now instructor in athletics at the Naval Training Station, Norfolk, Va., puts a group of Navy fliers through their paces

This is the third of several articles by John O'Reilly, a staff correspondent, who is touring United States naval training bases. In this article Mr. O'Reilly tells how the Navy keeps its men fit.

By John O'Reilly

Norfolk, Va., July 15.—Lieut. Comdr. James J. ("Gene") Tunney, the man who conquered Dempsey and went swimming with George Bernard Shaw, is now the Navy's apostle of firm muscles and clean living. As director of the physical fitness program for the entire Navy he moves from station to station administering simple health truths and bringing into vogue a set of physical exercises which he invented and which he says are based on the principle of corrective suction.

Commander Tunney is in favor of steam baths. He says two miles at a jog trot is better than ten miles of walking. He is against cigarette smoking, especially before breakfast, and is so outspoken about it that some of the officers at the Naval Operating Base here refrain from lighting up in his presence and others have sworn off altogether.

Like Shaw, this correspondent swam in the sea with Tunney. After a good workout on Shakespeare the 205-pound physical director explained his exercises which are being incorporated in the training of recruits at the naval training station here. He also is putting them into effect at other naval stations.

The old system, he said, was to bend over and touch the toes with the fingertips. His invention is to draw or suck the contents of the abdominal cavity up beneath the ribs as far as possible. Then the hips are tightened and the exerciser bends forward, not from the hips, but from the region of the lower ribs. In effect, Tunney said, a new hinge is created. You don't bend over nearly so far this way but the inventor of this exercise said it was far more effective than the old system.

Instructs Navy's "Weak Squad"

Tunney also is charged with building up the "weak squad." The Navy has found that numbers of the young men who enlist cannot be termed fine physical specimens. In the expansion program it has been necessary to reduce the enlistment requirements for its Naval Reserve somewhat and some recruits, although there is nothing specifically wrong with them, are thin and frail. To meet the requirements of a mechanized fighting unit they must have physical endurance and alertness.

To this end recruits are given a strength test, including running, chinning and other exercises. They are graded and the lowest 20 per cent are put into the weak squad. Tunney's job is to work out a program of special exercises to build these boys up. Just the fact that they are under the supervision of the world's former heavyweight boxing champion seems to inspire the 17 or 18-year-old boys. They pull in their diaphragms with a ing and abdominal exercises. There

To help bring these boys up to standard Commander Tunney is having 100 pairs of three-pound dumbbells delivered to the Naval Training Station here. He said if the Navy Department refuses to pay for them he will pay for them himself. He also is attempting to interest the Navy in steam baths. He said it would be most helpful in the case of flyers who have little time for exercise or protracted workouts.

"The ancients knew the value of steam baths," Tunney said. "Why in 1500 B. C., Aknaton, of course you know he was the father-in-law of King Tut-Ankh-Amen, had steam baths. They are simple to construct. I can build one for $300 or $400."

Tunney Still in Perfect Trim

The Navy's physical director is 43 years old and keeps himself in the pink. He weighs the same as he did when he started training for the Heeney bout. He rises each morning at six and immediately does 15 minutes of exercises, using the ones based on the principles of corrective suction. When he gets a chance he puts on heavy shoes and runs seven miles. He plays tennis in summer and squash in winter. One of his favorite exercises is pushups. He delights in stretching himself out on the floor and raising his body with his arms 25 times.

Tunney's exercises are to be worked in with the regular physical education of the Navy. At the operating base here it is apparent that the Navy stresses physical exercise. Everywhere about the base groups of men are seen going through setting up exercises. This correspondent arrived at the base soon after 5 a. m. one morning and saw column after column of recruits clad in shorts and shoes jogging along the streets of their training areas.

Besides such training activities there is one order from the Secretary of the Navy which requires the entire personnel of the United States Navy to take 30 minutes of exercises each day. Mr. Tunney says it deals particularly with bend-ing and abdominal exercises. There is a suspicion that officers of abundant girth are not adhering strictly to this order, although there was no evidence of this at the training station.

To operate the machines of modern naval warfare men must be alert, keen and supple. They must have endurance as well as flexibility. This is the type that the Navy is seeking to develop. Tunney stresses the importance of endurance.

"They call me the synthetic champion," he said. "I was synthetic in that I am the one fellow who found the key to indefatigability. I was never tired in a bout in my life."

Ringside Table

With Mary Harris

MEYER DAVIS, recognized as the king of society orchestra leaders and whose presence is indispensable at any topflight Park Avenue debut, will make a special appearance at the Rainbow Room's "Sixth Anniversary Party" to be celebrated next Thursday, July 24.

Meyer will act as master of ceremonies and generally circulate around and make himself agreeable at the Rainbow Room's biggest party of the year. His appearance is really rated by the Rainbow Room which has featured the same Meyer Davis orchestra headed by clever Milton Davis since its opening away away back in 1935. So polished and smart have been the Rainbow Room rhythms that there's never been a whisper of a change.

A flock of vaudeville acts will be presented at the Rainbow anniversary party and, undoubtedly, there'll be oodles of celebrities around. This event belongs on your "must list."

Troika's head lady, Helen Hamilton, blew into town Monday with the refreshing news that she plans to open Troika on September 4 with even more distinguished Russian revues than ever before. Hollywood talent is also on the Troika's 1941-42 agenda.

ROVING CAMERA. Mayflower Lounge. Mrs. Edward Beale McLean—Hope diamond, dark glasses and all—asking Dick Koons to play "The Reluctant Dragon" . . . King Cole Room. Findlay Howard, former Minister to Paraguay, recommending the 50-year-old "Mexico" to Eve Knight. (She finally located it through the Congressional Library) . . . Olney Inn. A "governors' holiday," with Gov. and Mrs. Walter Woodal, of Texas and Gov. and Mrs. Dwight Griswold, of Nebraska . . . Casino Royal. Representative and Mrs. Harry R. Sheppard, of California, enjoying the floor show. Those favorite Washington entertainers, Gene Archer and Bernie Simon. And Songstress "Tiny" Lee (former Romany Room) dining with her mother . . . Plymouth. Roy Harmon, the Chaliapin, of Mayfair's Chordsmen, with a verra chic young missy.

BALLET-LENGTH SKIRTS are always worn by Dolores Corboda, who dances with Maurice on the Shoreham Terrace. All of her gowns were 'esigned by leading New York and Hollywood stylists, but she insisted on the briefer-skirted ballroom gowns as more effective for floor-show dancing. Maurice and Cordoba will be held over again on the Terrace for a fifth week.

"ME AND MY SHADOW" are Don Baker, leader of the Neptune Room's Musicomics, and his star comedian, Frank (Joe Botchy) Porter. For 12 years they kept meeting accidentally, whether it was a vaudeville date in Kalamazoo or a Broadway broadcast. It happened dozens of times until when Don was organizing his Musicomics, he said. "B'gosh, it ain't going to be an accident this time"—and telephoned for "Joe Botchy." Here it seems inevitable to say that the roaring hit registered by Don and Joe every night is no accident.

That delight of amateur piano players, "Chopsticks," assumes the stature of a swing sonata as vibraphoned by Harry Mitchell in Mayfair. It's "Chopsticks" with complications and a touch of St. Vitus' dance

LITTLE FOLKS' DEPARTMENT.

GEORGE STEIN, maestro of "jolly jive" at River Bend

The cute, black-eyed 8-year-old you'll often see at Madrillon is Beatrice Nakkashian, daughter of Greeter Martin. Beatrice has loved Madrillon since she was old enough to walk, but, s-sh! she prefers hot dogs to Chef Chinto's complicated creations . . . Lotus luncheons are much favored by Washington moppets. Recently we saw no less than seven youngsters, all under 7, enjoying the clowning of Joe Arena and his dog while they lunched with their momsies . . . Joe Fitzpatrick, the big "Irishman from Boston" who plays sax at Glen Echo with Paul Kain's band, has two favorite subjects of conversation—baseball and his little daughter. We're so sold on his tales of this remarkable chee-ild that we think we ought to put her picture in the paper.

NIGHT CLUB GARDENERS. If Oscar, of the Hi Hat, gets a faraway look in his eye, he's probably brooding over reasons why his geraniums don't bloom and his petunias do. But in general, he vows that he possesses the garden beautiful . . . Fred Johansen, owner of the Silver Fox and the Red Fox, is another gardening addict. He enjoys digging around flower beds so much that he doesn't worry especially about whether anything comes up or not—so all his plants grow like mad.

INVEIGLING INTERLUDES. Ida Clarke organing in the lighter manner in the Lounge Riviera. And she's always so genuinely happy to play everyone's request numbers . . . The vocal combos of Eileen George and Matt Windsor in the Anchor Room. They positively susurrate! Yes, they do. . . . The luncheon carryings-on via violin and accordion by Jane Marlow and Eddie Whitesel in Restaurant "823." Nothing like a spot of pretty music to make folks linger a while before going back to their desks . . . Marty Rubin's singing with Bert Bernath's band in the Pall Mall Room. He gives that Romeo angle to every number.

Don Wilson and Bob Seidell, demon arrangers of Rodd Raffell's Nightingale band, have turned out three rare fix-ups on "Daddy," "Gypsy Sweetheart' and "It Had to Be You."

THREE IN A ROW. Fate gave three fast kicks in the teeth to Maestro Dick Wilson of the Starlight Roof right after he arrived in Washington. First, he couldn't find a house and had to live in a tourist camp for days. Second, he caught the measles. Third, a couple of his best bandsmen were messed up in a motor accident. But the Starlight and Dick's music are both flying along like a streamlined train now and he figures the ol' jinx is beaten.

PALATE TICKLERS. The homemade hot breads and deep-dish pies at O'Donnell's Farmhouse . . . The ocean-fresh seafood at Olmsted's Grill. Especially the nice fat crabs right up from Chesapeake Bay and the rich and steaming clam chowder . . . The nifty luncheons at the Harrington Tavern. Cleverly planned menus always feature interesting dishes that are the answers to "picky" summer appetites . . . The combination seafood au gratin served at Hogate's. Dainty enough to set before a queen and satisfying enough for a king's appetite.

Comes Twilight for Charley

POVICH

Detroit, Mich., July 15.—Charley Gehringer has announced that he is playing his last season of baseball. He wants to retire because (1) he knows he isn't earning all the money the Tigers are paying him, and (2) his current .219 batting average is offensive to himself. He says that after 15 years the time has come to take leave of the game.

The rigors of the game are proving too tough for Gehringer. For two seasons he has been playing with a lame back. Ground balls he used to get in front of with panther leaps have been whizzing past him, and he doesn't like it. The greatest second baseman of his time, who used to beat out many an infield hit with his speed on the baselines, is now a victim of double-plays on the same sort of hits. There are days when he swings a bat in pain.

Down South last spring he was hopeful that he would be able to play the full season, but his back still bothered him. "I don't feel it when I hit the ball," said Gehringer. "The impact checks my swing and there's no pain. But when I miss and go all the way around, it's hell."

Baseball has done all right by the man who came out of Fowlersville, Mich., 15 years ago as a semipro shortstop. For years he was one of the top-salaried men of the league, and three years ago when Detroit fans celebrated "Gehringer Day" in Briggs Stadium with ceremonies at the plate, one of the gifts was a simple-looking envelope whose contents were not announced. When Gehringer went back to the dugout he extracted from the envelope a check for $10,000 that was the gift of Owner Walter O. Briggs.

Buddy Holds No Grudge

The only person who might have felt bitter toward Gehringer during those years when he personified the pinnacle of the art of playing second base is Buddy Myer. For years, Gehringer's very perfection deprived Myer of All-Star honors. Even in 1935 when Myer won the American League batting championship, he was only the second-best second baseman in the league. Myers, himself, pays Gehringer high tribute.

"I'd have come close to batting .400 that year if it hadn"t been for Gehringer," Myer was saying. "He robbed me of at least 20 hits. I'm a pull hitter and that Gehriger would come up with impossible plays on balls I hit between first and second base. He's robbed more ball players of hits than any other infielder in baseball.

Similarly, Gehringer himself has been robbed of hits down through the years. "I managed the Tigers for five years," said Bucky Harris, "and nobody ever had more line drives caught off their bats than Gehringer. If he didn't have the tough luck to hit balls directly at infielders and outfielders, he's have batted .400 a couple of seasons. It was uncanny. The only thing I've ever seen like it is what is happening to Cecil Travis. There's another guy who is getting his hits caught by shortstops and second basemeh who are making jumping one-hand catches."

For a couple of years now, baseball men have been comparing the Yankees' Joe Gordon and Boston's Bobby Doerr with Gehringer, but Detroit fans ridicule any comparison based on the dozen years when Gehringer was tops. They don't concede that either Gordon or Doerr can do the things around second base that Gehringer used to perform with such effortless ease, and they seemingly win all arguments when they point to Gehringer's lifetime batting average.

They'll Go a Long Way

Here in Detroit, they'll go back even farther to prove that Gehringer was not only the finest second baseman of his day, but the greatest of all time. That includes such as Eddie Collins and Nap Lajoie, two superlative second basemen whose names are synonymous with excellence at the job. Collings played for 25 years and Lajoie for 21 compared to Gehringer's 15, but the fact is that the figures show that Gehringer excelled both.

He has a better fielding average than either Collins or Lajoie for his lifetime in baseball, and he has outhit them both. In point of getting runs across the plate, Gehringer's talents are in bold relief. Playing ten years fewer than Collins, he has driven in 1,374 runs to Collins' 1,318, and he has far surpassed them both in home runs. Collins and Lajoie, playing an aggregate of 46 years compared to Gehringer's 15, made only 126 home runs during their careers. Gehringer has already swatted 180 homers.

Of the pitchers he has seen, Gehringer doesn't think that Bobby Feller is the best. He doesn't even concede that Feller throws the fastest ball he has ever seen. "There's a man I batted against who always seemed to me to throw a ball harder than Feller when he really wanted to fog it in there. The best pitcher I ever saw, and the toughest to hit, was Lefty Grove."

Pity the Poor Starter—Minus His Gun

CONSIDINE

New York, July 15.—The Brooklyn constabulary gave a lot of track fans a nasty turn the other day when it sic'd a copper on a track coach just when the coach was in the act of hocking his blank-shooting starter's gun. The police have decided to make a test case out of this, in an effort to stamp out the boyish, prankish habit of carrying a gat.

They admit that the coach's gun probably couldn't break a pane of glass at one pace, but it's a menacing-looking tool and makes an imperative bang when triggered. The fact that the police caught the flabbergasted coach in a pawnshop, as their first step in stamping out the crime wave, was dismissed as irrelevant. After all, these are tough days for coaches. Things are getting so tough in the coaching business that many will be forced to use bona fide students next term.

Now that the first step has been taken it seems inevitable that the police dragnet will begin to crowd closer around that notorious possessor of race-starting firearms, Johnny McHugh. Johnny McHugh has started more races than the Almighty. He has been banging away at the old and new Gardens, and in the big stadiums around these parts, for three or four decades. Last winter some conscienceless promoter brought in an out-of-town starter. A two-gun man.

Old John Is A-1 Gun Man

The public would have none of him. They wanted old John and his versatile cap pistol. Johnny always was and—until the cops break in the door of his current hideaway—a one-gun man. He uses a six-shooter, one shot to send the field away and a quick bang from an adjacent shell if the start didn't suit him.

We hope he shoots it out, when they come after him. Tear gas wouldn't bring Johnny out. He has lived in smoke-filled armories and gardens so long that it will taste like fresh air to his lungs. Nope, they'll have to come-and-get old Johnny, if we know our favorfite guntoter. And we're not even sure they'll ever get him.

The A. A. U. has announced that it will send its best legal talent to Brooklyn to fight this disarmament program. McHugh is just one of the men the A. A. U. must worry about. It is afraid that the movement will sweep the country—and that untold thousands of runners will be left poised on starting lines, quivering for release by pistol shot. In the old days the Kentucky Derby used to be started by the roll of a drum. The A. A. U. will risk mass imprisonment of its officials, rather than submit to authorities who wish to impose such a strating system upon it. For a drum would cover up their A. A. U. badges, and its string would dislodge their black derbies. Death would be preferable to any seasoned A. A. U. man.

Speaking of sports officials, I ran into a pip on a plane ride recently. He was a golf official. He watched a porter put my golf sticks into the snout of the plane and it so happened that we shared the same double seat. After a while I pulled out a cigarette case which was given to me (and about a million others) at the Goodall Round Robin Tournament. It has the word Goodall stencilled on it.

The official took a quick gander at the Goodall and launched into an attack on sportswriters. Staring at me he concluded, "They never give you a break, but I think you're just about tops in this game, Ralph."

Meehan Deserves Admiration

P. S.—You've got to admire the way former Football Coach Chick Meehan is going about the job of trying to buck Mike Jacobs in the New York fight picture. It remains to be seen if Meehan can stop scalping, high ticket-prices and agreements with champions and prominent challengers, in the event he ever succeeds Mike as boss . . . understand there's some grumbling in the American Pro Football League. The football Yanks, who have John Kimbrough, want a 50-50 split of the gates on games out of New York, instead of the constitutional 60-40 split—the 60 per cent, of course, which now goes to home teams. . . . A recent guess of ours that Joe DiMaggio would bring $100,000 more than Ted Williams if the two were placed on the open market has brought a fine blast of scorn from Boston fans. Well, make it $75,000. . . . Frank Kovacs, the loose bolt of tennis, and Virginia Wolfenden, the tennis cutie, are this close. . . . We seem to have hurt Don Budge's feelings. He had that facial work done to repair a badly broken nose, not to make himself a matinee idol. . . . That's some race at Suffolk Downs tomorrow: Fenelon, Foxbrough, Market Wise, Attention and Maybe Tangled—after $50,000.

P. P. S.—A fair proportion of the rumors floating around the White House these days are horse tips. A good scratch sheet hustler could clean up, if he could get into the press room and beyond.

DiMaggio Hits in 55th as Yanks Trip Chisox, 5-4

2 Safeties Extend Long Game Streak

Single and Double Hit Off Smith, Who Started Clipper's String on May 15

By the Associated Press

Chicago, July 15.—The New York Yankees rolled over the Chicago White Sox again today, 5 to 4, as their powershouse slugger, Joe DiMaggio, ran his consecutive game hitting streak to 55 games.

Joe started his string last May 15 against Eddie Smith and he kept alive the amazing record today against the same chubby southpaw with a double and a single in five trips to the plate.

The Yankee star collected seven hits in four games against the Sox as the American League leaders took three contests. Consistent pitching and a balanced attack paced by DiMaggio now has given the New Yorkers 15 victories in their last 16 games, 19 out of their last 21 and 34 out of their last 39.

DiMag Singles

Smith forced DiMaggio to hit an easy double play ball to Luke Appling in the first inning but the Sox shortstop muffed the ball and Joe was safe. The next time up he singled sharply past Bill Knickerbocker. Later he grounded to Appling, drew an intentional walk and then doubled in the ninth.

The Yankees got away to a one-run lead in the first inning on Red Rolfe's walk, Tommy Henrich's single and Appling's error on DiMaggio's roller. The Sox overcame this in the second with two runs. Appling singled, went to third on Wright's single and scored on Moose Solters' single. Wright scored on an infield out.

The Yankees settled the outcome in the third with four runs. Rolfe opened the barrage with a single to right, Henrich walked and DiMaggio singled through second to score Rolfe. Joe Gordon walked to fill the bases and then Buddy Rosar smacked a triple to clear the sacks.

The Sox pecked away at Steve Peek, the Yankee rookie, until he was jerked in the fifth inning and replaced by Norman Branch. The Chicagoans hit both of them freely but were unable to bunch their blows effectively.

Solters lined a home run into the left field stands off Peek and Joe Kuhel hit another to almost the same spot in the right field stands off Peek in the fifth. This ended the scoring, Branch pitching airtight ball in the pinches the remainder of the game.

Illinois U. to Keep Zuppke, Fire Wilson

Sports Head Given One Year's Leave

Athletic Board's Resignation Accepted; Veteran Coach Wins Bitter Controversy

By the Associated Press

Chicago, July 15.—The University of Illinois board of trustees retained Bob Zuppke today as head football coach for one year and sent Athletic Director Wendell S. Wilson to the sidelines.

By a unanimous vote, the trustees voted Wilson a year's leave of absence with pay, directed the reappointment of the 62-year-old mentor for what will be his twenty-ninth season at Illinois and accepted the resignations of all members of the Illinois Athletic Board of Control.

At the same time the trustees made it clear Zuppke's reappointment was made with the understanding his future employment or retirement by the university will be decided no later than next March 1.

The board's session, climaxing months of bitter controversy between Zuppke and Wilson, was a surprisingly short and peaceful open session in which only two trustees, Park Livingston, Chicago, and Homer Mat Adams, Springfield, voiced disagreement with the recommendations of the board's athletic committee, headed by Chester Davis, Chicago.

"Weenie (Wilson's nickname) has been the goat in this whole issue," said Livingston. "Is there any reason why these two men can't work together?"

"We are still approaching this problem with an attitude of appeasement," said Adams. "It's a sandlot controversy and should be swept clean. The young people of Illinois have lost confidence in the university and we are not getting down to bed rock. This controversy will be continued."

Zuppke Happy

Davis, in his reply, said he did not think Zuppke's retention and Wilson's dismissal was a complete solution to the problem, adding "this thing goes much deeper." He said, however, that it was his hope that sometime in the future the situation would be straightened out.

Wilson, who declined to speak when invited by the trustees to address the board before the vote was taken, said with a grin after the session: "It's an ill wind that blows nobody good. I'm leaving tonight by plane for my ranch in Wyoming and I haven't any plans for the immediate future. It will depend on the type of athletic policy and the school whether I'll continue in the athletic coaching business."

Tribe Doubles Its Insurance on 'Mealticket' Feller

By the Associated Press

Cleveland, July 15.—The Cleveland Baseball Club has applied for an additional $100,000 life insurance on Bob Feller, bringing to $200,000 the amount of protection carried on the 22-year-old pitching star, a club spokesman said tonight.

Issuing of the new policy, will make Feller the highest insured player in Cleveland history. In 1937 the club carried $100,000 on Pitcher Johnny Allen, then in the midst of a 15-game winning streak.

Feller already has passed the physical examination for the straight life policy. He has won 18 games while losing four and Monday took the 100th victory of his major league career.

"We believe it is a good idea to insure all our players," the spokesman declared, but refused to reveal the amount carried on other Indian stars.

Feller has received his selective-service questionnaire, but reliable draft sources here indicated today there was little chance of his being called into the Army before the end of the season. He has not yet taken his physical examination for military service.

Jimmy Clark Wins Publinks Medal With 138

By the Associated Press

Spokane, July 15.—Likeable Jimmy Clark, a stockroom employe in an aircraft factory, won medal honors of the 1941 National Public Links championship today with a 36-hole total of 135.

From his two rounds the 20-year-old Long Beach (Calif.) youth claimed two records. His seven under par 64 yesterday on the hilly Indian Canyon course established a new first-round record for U. S. G. A. amateur competition.

His 71 today, after an amazing first nine scramble, completed the lowest total ever set for 36-hole qualifying in national amateur play.

The old qualifying record was 138, made last year in this self-same butcher-baker-candlestick maker tournament. Ed Furgol, of Detroit, and Worth Stimits, of Colorado Springs, shared the old mark in a deadlock for medalist laurels at Detroit.

Robert Morris, only entry from the Washington, D. C., area, was out of further consideration when he finished with a 155 total. His 76

Mel Hein Signed For 11th Season With N. Y. Giants

New York, July 15.—Mel Hein, pro football's indestructible center, has signed for his eleventh season with the New York Giants, President John Mara announced today.

Hein, who has been all-league center for eight years, will have a couple of battles on his huge hands this coming autumn, the Giants having signed both Chet Gladhuk, Boston College's 246-pound All-America pivot of last year, and Lo de Filippo, Fordham's great captain and center.

Belair Entry Favored in $50,000 Race

By the United Press

Boston, July 15.—The $50,000 added Massachusetts Handicap won't claim another victim for its "graveyard of champions" tomorrow because current King Whirlaway has gone West.

But New England's richest race will have a stickout pair of favorites among the 11 entries named overnight for the seventh renewal of Suffolk Downs' premier stake.

Bucking the jinx that only famed Seabiscuit overcame will be the Belair Stud entry of Fenelon and Foxbrough, 8-5 favorites to win the 1⅛-mile jaunt. A crowd of 35,000 was expected to watch the thoroughbreds scamper over a fast track under sunny skies.

Only 8 of 52 original and 4 supplementary nominations were regarded as starters, but three surprises were dropped into the entry box—the Glen Riddle Farm combination of War Relic and The Finest and A. S. Pierce's Allegro. Neither Riddle horse looms as a threat, and Pierce may reconsider when it comes time to put the $1,000 starting fee in the pool.

Top Weight to Fenelon

Fenelon, winner of the $25,000 Brooklyn Handicap and impressive last season as a 3-year-old, totes top weight of 130 pounds for the Massachusetts, won two years ago by Belair's erratic Fighting Fox and last season by Eight Thirty, now retired to a breeding farm.

At least one member of the Belair Stable, however, believes that Foxbrough, a full brother of 1930 Kentucky Derby winner Gallant Fox, is the horse to beat.

He is the stable's contract rider, Jimmy Stout, who piloted Fighting Fox to his greatest triumph. Given his choice, Stout decided to ride Foxbrough, who came to the United States a year ago after an unbeaten campaign as a 2-year-old in Eng-

Whirlaway Is Victor In Arlington 'Tuneup'

Wright Star Comes From Behind In Warm-Up for $65,000 Classic

By the Associated Press

Chicago, July 15.—Warren Wright's Whirlaway, king of the 3-year-olds, turned in an exciting workout for the $65,000 Arlington Classic by romping to victory in a $5,000 special mile and a furlong race before 20,000 at Arlington Park today.

Racing with only three other 3-year-olds, the long-tailed Whirlaway gave his backers a tremendous scare when he went wide heading into the stretch turn and lost the early lead he had taken.

But Jockey Wendell Eads quickly straightened out the famous thoroughbred and, running down the middle of the track, finished two and a half lengths ahead of David Straus' Daily Trouble.

Sixth Straight Triumph

John Marsch's To A Tee was another two lengths back in third, while Shady Brook Farm's Cadmium completed the small field.

Betting on the race was ot win only. Of the $24,425 wagered, $18,871 was on Whirlaway's nose. His return was $2.20. The time for a mile and a furlong was 1:50 3-5.

Whirlaway reaped $3,250 for his trouble, making a total of $170,161 he has earned this season. It was his sixth straight triumph. Whilaway won $77,275 as a juvenile, raising his grand total to $247,436.

To A Tee Travels

The field broke quickly and To A Tee went to the front, closely pursued by Daily Trouble, Cadmium and Whirlaway. Eads couldn't hold Whirlaway back. On the first turn, Whirlaway moved swiftly between Daily Trouble and Cadmium, caught To A Tee and went out to set his own pace.

Except for the exciting incident rounding into the stretch turn there was nothing left to the race. Eads simply couldn't hold Whirlaway close to the rail. The champion went way wide and before Eads could straighten him out the other three horses were hogging the rail and trying to make a race of it. Once Whirlaway straightened out he drew away easily.

South American Double Net Victor

Grossinger Lake, N. Y., July 15 (AP). Francisco Segura, of Ecuador, South America, experienced little difficulty today in advancing to the quarter-finals of the Sullivan County Tennis Championship by two victories in straight sets.

Defeating Francis Worcester, Middleton, 6—1, 6—1, Segura next disposed of George Pero, Miami, 6—4, 6—3. His next opponent, William Gillespie, Miami, defeated Lester Hirschfield, St. John's University, 6—1, 6—4.

Wayne Sabin, of Reno, Nev., seeded first, who was among the first ten in national ranking in 1938, also advanced with other favorites by taking Rendich Meola, Middletown, 6—1, 6—3, and Cliff Berg, University of Utah, 6—0, 6—0.

Cards Defeat Phils in 16 Innings, 3-2

By the Associated Press

Philadelphia, July 15.—The second-place St. Louis Cardinals and the last-place Phillies battled tooth-and-nail for 16 innings today before the Redbirds eked out a 3-to-2 victory on Jimmy Brown's long fly with the bases full in the sixteenth.

The game tied the mark as the longest game in the major leagues this year.

Ike Pearson, who took over for the Phils in the tenth, yielded only two hits in seven innings, but he made a wild throw in the sixteenth that paved the way for his defeat. Johnny Hopp opened the sixteenth by beating out a slow grounder to Nick Etten. Johnny Mize laid down a sacrifice and both men were safe on Pearson's wild throw to Etten.

A walk to Enos Slaughter filled the bases, then Brown lifted his long fly to Danny Litwhiler in left and Hopp raced home after the catch.

Needed 3 for 69 On Last Hole, Ended Up With 5; Johnstons Win First Low Net

Mrs. Betty Meckley and Ralph Bogart, who hold the Maryland State and District championships between them, won the District Mixed Scotch Foursome Tournament yesterday at Congressional with a round of 71, a near-record score for the city.

Playing selective drives and alternate shots, the Meckley-Bogart team went perfectly for the first 17 holes, as Bogart used Mrs. Meckley's tee shots on a majority of the holes and knocked the ball near the pin all day. With three for a 69 on the last hole, Mrs. Meckley flubbed an approach and they finished with five for a 71, one under par.

First low net went to the host team of Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Johnston, with a pair of 44s for an 88 minus 20 handicap strokes for a net 68. The Kenwood-Manor duo of Mrs. R. S. Butler and C. E. Nebeker finished second low net with 83-13, 70.

Last week's Maryland State winners, Mrs. Leo Walper and Charles Malone, started with a seven and finished second this time with a 77 while third low gross went to Mrs. T. F. Neblett and W. R. McCallum, 79, winning in a draw over Mrs. W. R. Stokes and Bobby Brownell.

Mrs. Wilard Martin and George H. Bailey, jr., won third net with 84-12, 72, while Jerry Weible and Eric King had 83-10, 73, for fourth net and Mrs. F. G. Awalt and V. C. Myers, 85-11, 74, to complete the prize list.

Toast of the Sandlots...

JIMMY DINNIS

Reversing the order followed by by most sandlotters, Jimmy Dinnis started out as a softball player and switched to baseball. The slender centerfielder of Village Motors team, of the Washington-Virginia League, was a "softie" at Gordon Junior High and for a time afterward, but changed over in 1936.

That change marked the beginning of one of the oldest manager-player relationships around Washington.

It was Norman Outcault, a Washington Post circulation official, who started Jimmy in baseball in 1936. Outcault managed a team of carrier boys from Station 50. That the stocky leader knew what he was about is attested by the fact Jimmy batted around .700 for him in his first year.

During the succeeding five years Outcault managed teams for various concerns, but each season Jimmy turned up in his outfield. First Station 50 was renamed the Washington Travelers, then the Studebaker Champions and finally Village Motors. Now Jimmy is the only player left with Outcault who played on the original Station 50 nine.

Born in Baltimore 24 years ago, Jimmie attended Eastern High here after finishing at Gordon. He tried out for the Tide nine, but not to whole-heartedly.

Since graduation in '36 Dinnis has occupied his time with his work in a packing concern, playing excellent baseball on the side. Two weeks ago he was married to the former Miss Dorothy Griffin at St. Peter's. All of which makes Jimmy a very busy young man.—BILL BURNETT.

Johnson Loses Golf Title to Wagner's 72

Special Dispatch to The Post

Baltimore, Md., July 15.—Although Eddie Johnston made a stout bid to retain his State Junior Open title held two consecutive years, Herbert Wagner, jr., Baltimore Country Club, grabbed off the honors today by touring the Baltimore Country Club course in par 72 figures. This beat Johnston's efforts by three strokes.

More than 60 lads of various ages from under 15 to 21 hammered their way over the layout and the most stubborn battle of the day developed between Jack Lowe and Leo Haselback, waging their war in the 15-year-old class.

This pair of mighty mites from Hillendale wound up in a tie with 87 apiece. They decided on an extra nine holes to settle it. At the end of this nine they were still all even. They played an extra nine holes and again wound up on even terms. A third extra 9-hole tussle will be fought to decide the winner.

Buster Mrstik and Alton Willett, both of Washington, finished one-two in the 16-17-year-old class, with a 77 and 79, respectively. Russell Chaffman, B. C. C., was third with an 85. There was a third place tie in the 18 and over class between D. Sullivan and Robert Suit, with 79s.

No cards were reported by four other Washingtonians, Frank Clark, Earle Skinker, Fred Bolton and Karl Kuster.

Boxing Body Gives Its All—Will Pay for Benefit Ducats

By Al Hailey

The District Boxing Commission, so help us, has agreed to come right out and BUY its tickets to the Joe Turner testimonial fight night show Monday in Griffith Stadium, it was learned from sometimes reliable sources last night.

The testimonal, in case you didn't know, features three 8-round fights and the idea is to prove that the District boxing public thinks Promoter Turner is a pretty good guy.

Clark C. Griffith, president of the Washington ball club, has promised the use of his ball park free—if the District Boxing Commission capitulates and waives its 10 per cent cut of the gate.

That body, which at present has a bill pending to provide $3,000 yearly salaries for two of its three members, has refused to do this. Just what effect the magnanimous gesture of purchasing its own tickets will have on Griffith's future action remained a deep, dark secret last night.

The Boxing Commission, in the past, has been the recipient of as many as 60 and 75 free tickets per fight staged by Turner—even when Turner's shows were drawing less than 800 paid customers.

Despite the thanklessness of their jobs, the nonpaid boxing commissioners have refused to "play ball" with the one man to whom they pledged their wholehearted support at a luncheon in the Occidental Hotel little over a year ago. Turner was royally toasted, "foreign" referees were severely roasted, and the commissioners themselve saw a rosy future in which cooperation was the theme.

With the proposal for the Turner testimonial, however, the commission underwent a change of heart, rushed to Corporation Counsel Richmond B. Keech for a ruling and found out it couldn't possibly waive its slice of the Monday night fight gate.

Plans have steadily progressed, with Matchmaker Gabe Menendez drawing up a fairly creditable club-fight card.

Jimmy DeChard, Washington's gift to the heavyweight world, meets Joe Carilli, of Hartford, Conn., in the feature eight-rounder. And if Jimmy beats Joe he may get a preliminary shot on the Joe Louis-Lou Nova card coming up in September.

Our Mr. Hailey Lost on Waivers

The Post Sports Department mourns the passing of Albon Bailey Hailey, sometime boxing expert and pigeon fancier, who leaves these hallowed walls today to become a first lieutenant in the Army of the Republic.

Mr. Hailey catapulted out of Georgia three years ago with a song in his heart. At last, after a couple of decades, he'd escaped from Georgia.

The Army is immediately sending Mr. Hailey to Savannah, Ga.

Try again, Mr. Hailey.

City Council Honors Memory Of Lou Gehrig

Copyright by Herald-Tribune

New Yorkk, July 15.—A bill to name the plaza in front of the Bronx County Building, two blocks from Yankee Stadium, Lou Gehrig Plaza was passed unanimously today by the city council. The bill, introduced on June 17 by Councilman Joseph E. Kinsley, Bronx Democrat, does not go into effect until signed by Mayor LaGuardia.

Gehrig, died on June 2 of amytrophic lateral schlerosis, a rare form of infantile paralysis, after he had played in 2,130 consecutive games between June 1, 1925, and May 2, 1939, he was forced to retire because of the disease, and on October 9, 1939, he was appointed a member of the Municipal Parole Commission by Mayor LaGuardia.

On July 4 a granite monument to Gehrig was unveiled in Yankee Stadium. The council bill giving his name to the plaza in front of the Bronx County Building was introduced on June 2 by Councilman Joseph E. Kinsley, Bronx Democrat. It does not become effective until signed by the mayor.

Gesell Wins 2d Straight Midget Race

Ernie Gesell, capitalizing the misfortune of a rival driver for the second straight week, last night became the first to win two straight features at West Lanham Speedway. Before approximately 6,000 fans, the Inwood (Long Island) veteran and leading money winner of the circuit, broke his own track record for the 7½-mile event and led Henry Seiger home by some 200 feet.

Gesell's time of 7:12.76 clipped almost 5 seconds off the mark of 7:17.78 which he established last week.

Goat of last night's feature event was Lyle Dickey, the hard-luck Hollywood, Calif., pilot, who was disqualified on the fourteenth lap for his car's leaking water as he was leading Gesell by a comfortable 50 feet.

That was not the only break for Gesell last night, for back on the eighth lap a near-tragic accident to Jimmy Forte prevented Dickey from possibly making a complete runaway of the race. Dickey was at least 200 yards in front of Gesell when Forte lost his rear right wheel and came within an ace of climbing over the guard rail of the turn at the head of the homestretch.

The race was stoipped while Forte was removed uninjured from his car and the car removed from the track. The contest was resumed at its point of interruption a few moments later, with the officials guessing at the distances that separated the 12 cars that started in the event. Dickey suffered to the extent of about 50 yards in the officials' computations and he was being hard pressed to hold off Gesell when his car began to leak water, and Starter Doug Clarke waived him off because he believed the dripping water would make the track dangerously slippery.

FIRST QUALIFYING HEAT—Won by Andy DeVercelly, Cedarhurst, Long Island; second, Mike Joseph, Philadelphia; third, Walt Walker, Philadelphia. Time, 2:28.45.

SECOND QUALIFYING HEAT—Won by Ernie Gesell, Inwood, Long Island; second, Henry Steiger, Brooklyn, N. Y.; third, Johnny Ringer, Omaha. Time, 2:27.15.

THIRD QUALIFYING HEAT—Won by Lyle Dickey, Hollywood, Calif.; second, Len Duncan, Brooklyn, N. Y.; third, Jimmy Forte, Philadelphia. Time, 2:27.24.

FIRST SEMIFINAL—Won by Gesell; second, Walker; third, Ringer. Time, 2:55.07 (new track record; old mark, 2:56.74, by Henry Banks.)

SECOND SEMIFINAL—Won by Dickey; second, DeVercelly; third, Duncan. Time, 2:54.52 (new track record, topping above one by Gesell).

SEMIFEATURE—Won by Bill Troutwine, Waterbury, Conn.; second, Joe Sheppard, Washington, D. C.; third, Harry Pierson, Philadelphia. Time, 2:30.79.

FEATURE—Won by Gesell; second, Steiger; third, Walker; fourth, Joseph; fifth, Ringer. Time, 7:12.76 (new track record; old mark, 7:17.78, by Gesell).

'Isolated' Race Horse Found Stimulated

By the Associated Press

Los Angeles, July 15.—Injecting a note of mystery into the inquiry, the California Horse Racing Board opened public hearings today in its investigation of alleged illegal stimulation of race horses.

Chairman Jerry Giesler charged that one of the horses involved in the inquiry, Mulligatawney, had been tampered with since he was cited originally June 7 as having been caffeine-stimulated.

Giesler produced testimony that on three occasions, dating from July 2 to July 11, Mulligatawney was found to have caffeine in his system despite the fact that he was "presumably isolated" and under the supervision of racing board guards.

Special samples were taken from the horse over the period. He was not being raced at the time the samples were obtained.

A. A. Baroni, Reno horseman, owned and trained Mulligatawney at the time of the alleged June 7 stimultaion. The horse was claimed in a race at Hollywood Park July 3 by the Oakmont Stable. The new owner later agreed to place the horse in the board's custody.

Giesler, in a lengthy preliminary statement, as the hearing opened, asserted these disclosures "tended to confuse the issue" and promised further testimony— "some of it circumstantial"—before the hearings end later this week.

The eight other horses involved in the investigation were given similar examinations since July 2, and tests were pronounced negative in each instance. Giesler said there had been no evidence of caffeine since June 7 as far as actual racing was concerned.

Arrangements have been made for a round of golf in the afternoon. The meeting will be followed with pictures of last fall's football games.

Dobson Beats Tribe by 6-2 For Boston

By the Associated Press

Cleveland, July 15.—Pitcher Joe Dobson, who couldn't quite make the grade as a regular with the Cleveland Indians, proved today they made a mistake in trading him to Boston last winter.

The right-hander limited his former teammates to four hits—three singles and Hal Trosky's pinch-double—to send them down to a 6-to-2 defeat and give the Red Sox one victory in the four-game series.

Dobson passed six batters, but he fanned nine Indians.

The Bostons got to Mel Harder, Cleveland starter, for a pair of tallies in the first on singles by Lamar Newsome and Lou Finney, a hit batter, a walk and an infield out. In the fitfth Finney lined a home run after Newsome had walked.

The Indians came back with two in the sixth but Larry Rosenthal, third Tribe pinch-hitter in that inning, fouled out with the bases full.

Dobson had all the runs he needed, but the Red Sox supplied two more in the ninth off Fireman Clint Brown, who relieved Harder in the fifth as Mel went down to his fourth defeat against five victories. It was Dobson's fifth triumph against three losses.

Fishing with JACK BELL

Manteo, N. C., July 15.—The Outdoor Writers Association of America ended its four-day summer convention here today amid considerable jubilation.

North Carolina's Depart of Conservation and Development was host to the O. W. A. of A., some 40 strong. A fleet of North Carolina's conservation patrol boats was made available for fishing, cruising and the exploring of new fishing waters.

JACK BELL

Many salt-water anglers of the Eastern seaboard are not familiar with the fishing advantages off the coast of North Carolina, especially Hatteras. The Cape Hatteras, "Graveyard of the Atlantic," should not turn away anglers despite its reputation. The cape and the inlet to the sound off Hatteras are widely separated. The inlet is one of the safest and best along the Atlantic coast.

The cape and the waters adjacent are very rough, but there is no reason to fear them or even go near them. We did go, however, to see for ourselves, and it is a wonderful sight to see the water break to enormous heights.

Sport fishing there is now being explored in earnest, and there is plenty of room for pioneering. An example is the white marlin fishing off the shores of Ocean City, Md., discovered only a few years ago. Ipswich Bay, Mass., now a famous tuna grounds, really was not appreciated until 1939. There are undoubtedly hundreds of places all along the Atlantic Coast which have never been fished and may be better than known territories.

George Sutton, of Washington, on his well equipped fishing boat Happy Days, is exploring the waters around Cape Hatteras for big game fish. Bill Hatch, his guide, believes that the best big game fishing north of Florida is to be found at Hatteras, N. C.

Many anglers do not know that the Gulf Stream off Cape Hatteras is nearer to the coast than at any other place along the Atlantic north of Florida. The salf-water angler who has never seen or fished the Gulf Stream has something in store for him.

Walton Onslow, of Washington, made an unusual catch while trolling for bluefish with a small spoon lure. He hooked and landed with nine-thread line a sea turtle estimated at 175 pounds. After several photos were made of the turtle he was released in the waters offshore.

This area is unusual in being able to offer anglers fresh-water fishing of the very best for learge-mouth bass. This is worthwhile considering when offshore fishing is impossible due to storms. The angler does not have to return without having excellent fishing. This is also something for the duck and goose hunter to consider. He prefers rough weather for his shooting and when conditions are not right he can always get in some bass fishing. No other place along the Atlantic has the same advantage. The season for bass in North Carolina's coastal bass waters is open all season.

Word was received of the death of Thomas Aiken, who died Wednesday at Victoria Hospital in Miami, Fla. Tommy was a national director of the Outdoor Writers of America, and daddy of the movement for adoption of uniform tackle requirements for record claims. The fishing fraternity has lost a friend.

Sunday July 13 the O. W. A. of A. held a brief memorial service out at sea off Manteo, N. C., at which time three beautiful wreaths of gardenias were cast into the waters of the Atlantic which Tommy Aiken loved.

700 to Compete In Track Meet Today

More than 700 youthful track aspirants, representing most of Washington's public playgrounds, will give their all today as the annual D. C. Recreation Department track meet is staged at McKinley High stadium starting at 10 a. m.

Officials of the event were named yesterday, including Milo F. Christiansen, honorary referee; Harry English, referee; Louis Mitchell, chairman; Joe Kaufman and Sam Fox, judges of finish; Otts Kriemelmeyer, Everett Cross and Capt. Langmack, timers; and Bernard McCarty, recorder.

Five weight classes will be observed—85, 100, 115, 135 pound and unlimited. There will be several dashes, broad jump, high jump and a relay. Qualifying for the big meet has gone on at various playgrounds throughout the last week.

Winners, and other finishers in each event will receive medals.

Tigers Near 4th as Macks Are Beaten, 3-2

By the Associated Press

Detroit, July 15.—The Detroit Tigers climbed within striking distance of fourth place today by defeating the Philadelphia Athletics, 3 to 2, on Barney McCosky's first home run of the season. Rookie Uman Harris, of the A's, was charged with his first defeat against two victories.

McCosky's round-tripper came in the seventh with the bases unoccupied and provided Buck Newsom with a working margin for his eighth victory. Newsom limited the Macks to seven hits, three by Wally Moses, who drove in the first run and scored the other on Benny McCoy's double.

Lambert (Dutch) Meyer, replacing the veteran Charley Gehringer at second base, doubled home Detroit's first run and handled six fielding chances flawlessly.

Village Motors Play Gibson Grays Tonight

Village Motors and Gibson Grays tonight hope to engage in the Washington-Virginia League's first game in a week, after seven straight disappointments. The teams are scheduled to play at Ballston Stadium at 8 p. m. in the opener of the second half of the league. Abe Silverman will pitch for Village Motors and Don Olson for Gibson Grays.

Center Market Beats GAO, 1-0; Nears Departmental Title

Joe Wells, Les Hoff in Pitching Battle As First-Half Winners Start Stretch Drive

One of the finest baseball shows of the local sandlot season resulted yesterday as Center Market virtually clinched the flag in the Departmental League.

Facing the defending champion G. A. O. nine on the Monument Grounds, the Marketmen took a 1-0 decision which kept intact their undefeated record in the second half of league play. Center Market won the first half.

The winners' Joe Wells hooked up in a brilliant pitching battle with Les Hoff, and in the end it was an error and long fly which decided matters. After Gabrelli had doubled to start the Market's fifth inning, Wells reached first and Gabrelli reached third on Love's misplay. Stadtler walked, filling the bases, and Cincotti's lazy fly to the outfield was good enough to score Gabrelli.

Both Wells and Hoff hurled 5-hit ball, the first handing out only one walk to Hoff's three, Hoff, however, had a 5-2 advantage in strikeouts.

Don McNeill Rallies, Gains Clay Court Quarterfinals

Fights Off Big Threat By Fishbach

Oklahoman Recovers After Poor Start; Seeded Stars Win Out at New York

By the Associated Press

New York, July 15.—Don McNeill spent the better part of an hour today on the receiving end of what would have been the season's most amazing upset, but pulled himself together just in time to hang a 5—7, 6—4, 6—3 setback on Joey Fishbach, of New York, and gain the quarter-final round of the New York State clay court tennis championships.

The Oklahoma City blond, who hasn't won a tournament since he captured the national singles crown last year, had to fight himself as well as his opponent to forestall an abrupt exit from the State championships. He lost his first three service games, his backhand failed him frequently and his usual accuracy on overhead smashes was conspicuously absent.

Lowly Take Beatings

For the second successive day the seeded players clamped down hard upon the unranked entries, except for one minor defection at the bottom of the favored list. This was engineered by Seymour Greenberg, of Chicago, the Eastern intercollegiate champion, who eliminated seventh-seeded Sidney Wood, of Southampton, N. Y., 6—1, 7—5, and won a lower-bracket quarter-final berth.

Three seeded Californians also earned quarter-final posts. Frankie Parker, of Altadena, the National Clay Court champion, advanced by defeating Victor Seixas, of Philadelphia, National Interscholastic champion, 6—1, 6—3.

Schroeder Wins

Ted Schroeder, of Glendale, National Doubles champion, brushed aside Leonard Hartman, of New York, 6—0, 6—4, while Ted Olewine, of Santa Monica, downed Frank Bowden, of New York, 8—6, 6—2.

Ladislav Hecht, of New York, entered the round of 16 after a 6—4, 6—3 triumph over Jerry Crowther, of Hermosa Beach, Calif., National Public Parks Doubles champion. Jack Kramer, of Los Angeles, Schroeder's partner in the National Doubles championship, somthered George Lyttleton-Rogers, of New York, 6—1, 6—3, for a place in the fourth round. Fifth-seeded Gene Mako, of Los Angeles, will face Bill Canning, of Hidden Valley, Calif., for a quarter-final position tomorrow.

Woof Woof Ready For Saturday's Hollywood Race

By the Associated Press

Los Angeles, July 15.—Young Hurst Philpot, trainer and half-owner of the fast-stepping Woof Woof, said today his horse would be a definite starter in Saturday's $75,000 Hollywood Gold Cup.

Philpot added that injuries received in the American Handicap July 4, when he was nicked by another horse, would not keep Woof Woof in the barn.

The Kentucky bred son of Bull Dog finished second by a nose to Mioland in the American and is considered a strong candidate for the rich summer stake. He probably will be coupled with another Philpot-Bernard Robinson stake star, No Competition.

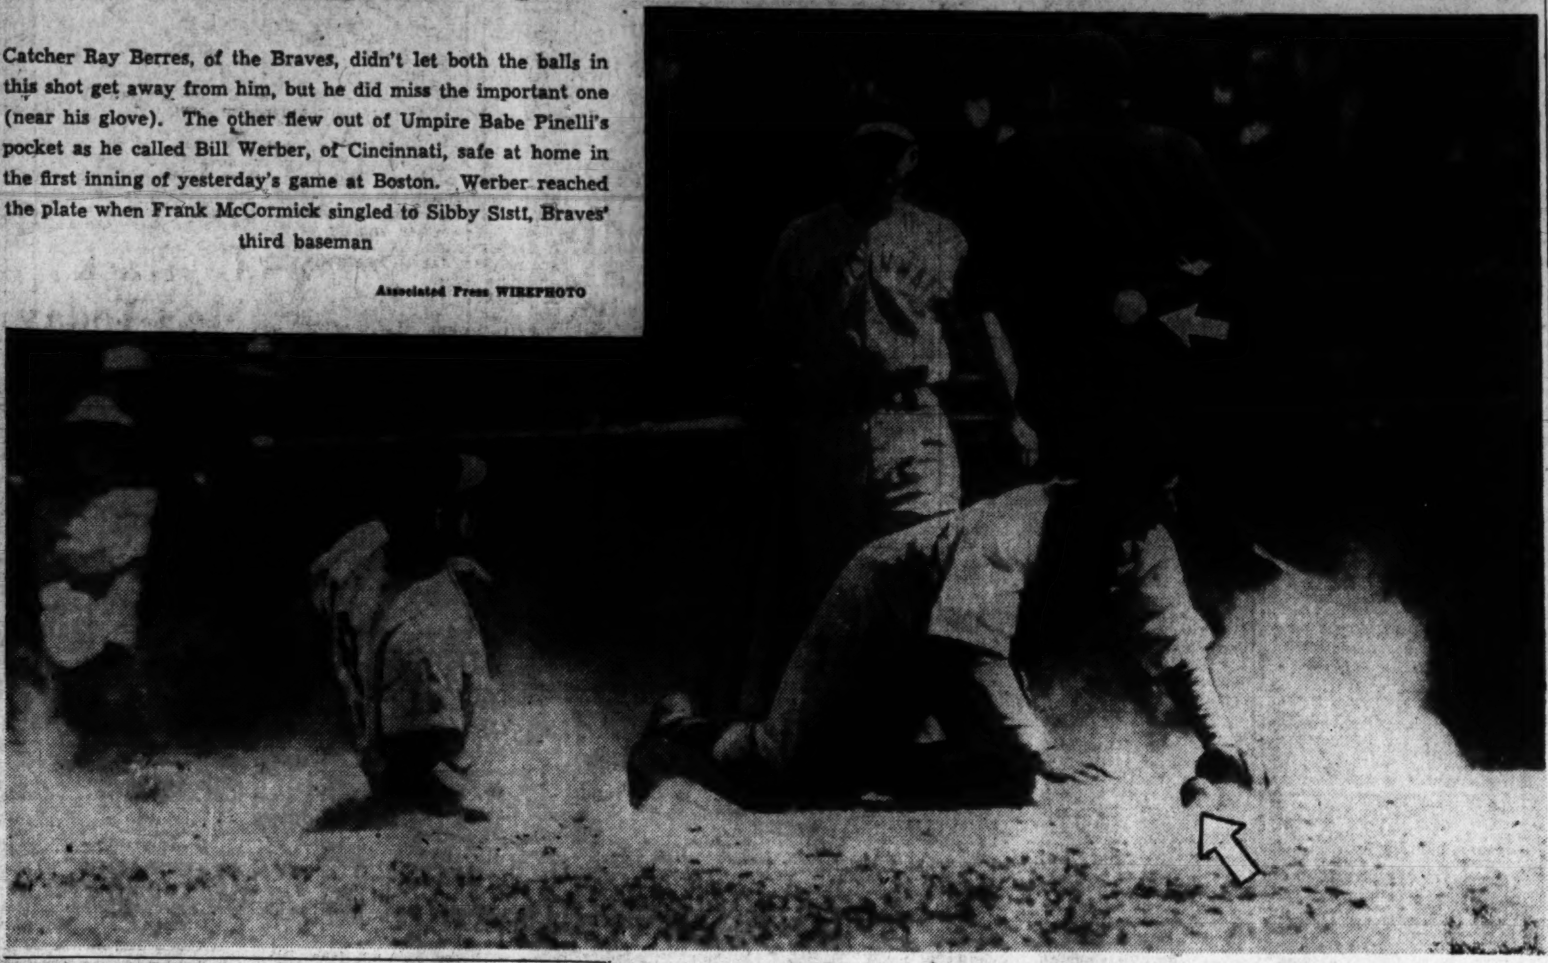
Two Balls Complicate Werber's Homeward Dash for Reds



Catcher Ray Berres, of the Braves, didn't let both the balls in this shot get away from him, but he did miss the important one (near his glove). The other flew out of Umpire Babe Pinelli's pocket as he called Bill Werber, of Cincinnati, safe at home in the first inning of yesterday's game at Boston. Werber reached the plate when Frank McCormick singled to Sibby Sisti, Braves' third baseman

Nats Move to Detroit For Series Today

Hudson Will Go Against Griffs' Favorite Foes in First of Three Games

By Shirley Povich

Post Staff Writer

Detroit, July 15.—The Nats did not lose a ball game today. They weren't scheduled. Tomorrow they move into faster company after winning two out of three games with the Browns. They play the Tigers in a three-game series.

The Tigers, strangely, are the only club the Nats have been able to lick with any consistency this season. Tomorrow Bucky Harris will send Sid Hudson to the mound in an attempt to lick 'em again.

Hudson has had no luck since coming West. Only Ted Williams' ninth-inning homer saved the young Washington right-hander from being charged with being the losing pitcher in the All-Star game after he pitched a home run to Arky Vaughan. His home run ball was working also, in his last start, when he pitched a two-run homer to Bill Knickerbocker, of the White Sox, last week.

Chase Rebuked

Added to Buck Harris's woes with a weak-hitting club is the undeniable fact that his pitching has gone sour in recent games. Ken Chase, after pitching three clever games in succession and indicating that he had recovered the winning touch, has botched his last two pitching jobs.

Chase's horrible exhibition against the Browns yesterday, when he walked seven batters in two and two-thirds innings and gave up five runs, drew him a sharp rebuke from Harris. When the Nats' manager was told after the defeat that Chase had complained before the game about the pitching mound at St. Louis, saying he didn't like to work from it, Harris declared:

"I wish I had heard him say that. I don't want any pitchers working for me who think they can't win before they start. He'd never have started that game."

While Harris' starting pitchers—Chase, Hudson, Sundra and Zuber—have been botching their assignments, he has been getting a big lift from his relief pitching. Arnold Anderson, Vernon Kennedy and Alex Carrasquel have been turning

D. C. Awarded National Canoe Title Races

For the second time in four years the Potomac River, near Washington, will be the scene of the National Canoe Racing Championships, it was announced yesterday by President Richard Ackad, of the Washington Canoe Club.

The event, Ackad revealed, was awarded the District of Columbia despite a vigorous bid by Boston and the fact that local waters were the scene of hostilities in the popular affair as recently as 1938. This year's races, along with the National Titling Championship, will be staged Sunday, July 27, starting at 11 a. m. Hostilities will be over the Washington Canoe Club's course above Key Bridge.

Though the host club's team has been sadly depreciated by the Draft Act, its share cannot be overlooked. Strongest prerace favorite, however, will probably be the Inwood Canoe Club, of New York. Other entries will include a delegation from Boston; Guy Newhall's Neeham Canoe Club from Dedham, Mass.; the Pendleton Club, headed by Ernie Riedel; Yonkers Club, of New York; the Philadelphia, and Cacawa Canoe Clubs.

Once again, Bill Havens, jr., of the Washington Canoe Club, will defend his tilting title against the threat of Adolph Springle, Pendleton star. The pair have clashed annually since Havens won the crown in 1935.

Vander Meer Whitewashes Braves, 3 to 0

Boston, July 15.—Striking out 11, Johnny Vander Meer today hurled the Cincinnati Reds to a four-hit, 3-to-0 victory over the Braves and Al Javery, who went eight frames and was charged with the defeat.

The Reds scored single runs in the first, sixth and eighth innings to help Vander Meer to his eighth win of the season.

The Reds scored in the first on singles by Bill Werber and Lloyd Waner and a two-base error by Seb Sisti. A double by Eddie Joost drove in Harry Craft in the sixth. Lonnie Frey scored the final marker when he singled, stole second, advanced to third on a wild pitch and rode home on Frank McCormick's fly.

Pirates Cancel Option On Gridder Parker

Pittsburgh, July 15 (AP).—The Pittsburgh Baseball Club today announced it had canceled its option on Ace Parker, baseball and football star now with the Portsmouth (Va.) Club of the Piedmont League. In professional football, Parker plays for the Brooklyn Dodgers of the National League.

Dodgers Whip Cubs Twice, Boost N.L. Lead

7-0 and 8-4 Victories Taken Before 33,247; Davis Hurls 4-Hitter

By the Associated Press

Brooklyn, July 15.—The swashbuckling Brooklyn Dodgers conquered the Chicago Cubs in both ends of a double-header today, 7 to 0 and 8 to 4, to inflate their National League lead to four full games over the St. Louis Cardinals.

In each game the Dodgers pounced on the Cubs for a lead and protected it with superb pitching to the great satisfaction of a crowd of 33,247 fans, second largest turnout of the season at Ebbets Field.

The veteran Curt Davis pitched 4-hit ball in the opener for his third shutout and had the help of some marvelous fielding, including three double plays. As the result he faced only 28 batters and Chicago had only one man left on base. It was the eleventh shutout of the year by a Dodger pitcher.

Brooklyn made only seven hits off Larry French and Jake Mooty, but splurged themselves to four unearned runs in the second stanza after an error by Bob Sturgeon. With two out the Dodgers loaded the bases and Davis singled in two runs. Then they loaded them again and Billy Herman repeated the trick.

The Dodgers ripped off another four-run flurry in the first inning of the second game as Paul Erickson walked two men and then was routed by hits by Cookie Lavagetto, Joe Medwick and Dolph Camilli, Tot Pressnell and Mooty, who returned for one inning in the nightcap, also were hit hard.

In contrast, Luke Hamlin, making his first start since June 21, pitched six-hit ball.

For eight innings he allowed only three singles, all by Stan Hack. But in the ninth the gave up three runs starting with a homer by Lou Stringer. Hack made another hit, this time a triple, which became a run.

Manor Plays Host To Maryland Golfers Today

Manor Club will be host to a Maryland State one-day tournament today, the usual three-in-one type with pro-amateur, pro-sweepstakes and amateur-handicap divisions. At least 15 professionals and some 50 amateurs are expected to compete.

Entry fees for the amateurs will be $1 in each event and $2 for the pros in the sweepstakes and pro-amateur. Lewis Worsham, the newly crowned Baltimore Open and Al Houghton, who wins one of these events about once a week, will both be on hand.

Emmet Gary, Maryland State Golf Association secretary, will be on hand to solicit entries for the Maryland Open championship, to be played next Tuesday at Elkridge with a $300 purse for the pros plus amateur awards.

'Softies' of Kavakos, Senate Meet Tonight

Northeast Section Faces Northwest In Softball Fight

On the "hot corner" for Kavakos in its big softball battle with Senate Beer tonight will be this husky star, Third Baseman Bill Burke. Hostilities will be at Griffith Stadium, for the benefit of the USO

Before what is expected to be the largest crowd ever to see a softball game in Washington, Kavakos Grill and Senate Beer tonight will battle under the lights of Griffith Stadium at 8:30 o'clock in the softball game that almost failed to materialize.

Recognized as the two leading teams in the District, efforts to match these teams previously failed when neither "Big Bill" Kavakos, of Kavakos Grill, nor Tom Clark, of Senate, could get together on a playing site. Finally through the intervention of the D. C. Softball Commission the game was arranged only last week. It was agreed to play for the benefit of the United Service Organization and D. C. Softball Association funds. The local softball body will use its share of the proceeds to send the District champion ten to the national tournament at Detroit early in September.

Northeast, stronghold of the Kavakos Grill clan, is solidly in back of its favorites. Northwest, where Senate Beer culled its players, is equally as much behind its representatives. Not since the days of the Mohawks, Knickerbockers, Rex A. C. and Apaches has neighborhood rivalry and honor reached such a peak of excitement.

On the firing line will be two of the foremost pitchers in Washington. Abe Rosenfield, an ambidextrous young veteran who has been a star ever since softball was introduced here in 1933, will take the hill for Senate Beer, opposed by the latest youthful sensation, "Cannonball" Jack Smith, Kavakos' fastball ace who whips plateward the fastest pitch in local ranks. Three times before these two rivals have met this year, with Smith, then with I. B. M., bowing twice to Rosenfield in close decisions.

These two great hurling stars will be backed by two of the city's finest clubs, each of whose supporters are convinced will represent the city in the National Championship Tournament. Kavakos, with nine .300 hitters in the line-up, is granted an edge offensively, but Senate, with only a mite less batting punch, is admittedly the smoother fielding team and a club of opportunists.

Sideline features include a 100-yard dash for softball players, which will be conducted by the A. A. U. and open to any member of a team affiliated with the D. C. Softball Association. A jitterbug contest and exhibitions are being arranged by Bill Kavakos.

Entered in the 100-yard dash are: Johnny Walker and Jack Schooner, of U. S. Aggies; Bud Simonds, George Adriani and Joe Frank, of Yellow Cab; "Pie" Juliano, of Senate; Tommy Boggs and Jockey Quill, of Kavakos; Sid Carter, of D. C. Firemen; George Boswell, of Adam Hats; "Butch" St. Lawrence and Jack Trench, of Fat Boy; Otis Shaw and "Battling" Brown, of May Hardware; Howard Herbert, of Brookland Merchants; Fred Ginning, of Evening Star; "Mousie" Rice, of Mount Rainier Businessmen; Frank Haske and "Pheasant" Baldwin, of Pepco; Bill Blanchard and Sherod East, of Greenbelt; Jim Kiraly, of Garvin's Grill, and Don Mathias, of I. B. M.

Hagerstown, Md., July 15.—Time Her, a fleet daughter of Timemaker and Dunworkin, withstood a stretch drive today to win by a head in a photo finish. Her victory, scored in the colors of Mrs. G. C. Rollings, came in the Hamilton Hotel Purse, featuring the program that opened the final week of the sport at this point. Mrs. N. E. Stanton's Butterman, away from the racing for a long time, was second. A length farther back for third came Mrs. D. Rehill's Fair Haired. Five others competed in the dash of five furlongs over the Mason-Dixon course.

Time Her, a speedy mare, both here and at Charles Town, was popular with the crowd and was installed the favorite. She returned $4.90 for each $2 investment. Her time over the fast track was 1:04 2-5. Jockey Carson Kirk, Silver Spring, Md., did the riding on Time Her and Danny Scocca, Washington, D. C., was aboard Butterman.

Scocca Shines

Scocca, who has been in the thick of every feature battle here, made a game attempt to win with Butterman but the horse barely failed. He took him to the top early, shook off Paper Girl, withstood a challenge from Last Bet, but failed to stay with the winner. Kirk was forced to ride Time Her wide along the backstretch.

Although beaten in the feature, Scocca had his innings of success. He rode both ends of the daily double which brought a $74.80 pay off. In the first race he drove E. R. Pike's Oyster Bar home to a head victory over Good Grass. Suegale was third in this field. Oyster Bar paid $6.20. Scocca came back in the second race to score a front-running victory with Mrs. F. Jostis' Don Dash, a $19.20 shot. Farmlands and Osofree followed the Chatover gelding to the wire.

D. C. Trainer Scores

Trainer R. L. Hanna, of Washington, saddled his first winner of the meeting in the third race. He put Jockey A. F. Martinez in the saddle of Long Legs and the daughter of Caruso overcame trouble to win going away ahead of Balkanese and Jewel Song. Long Legs paid $7.20.

Jockey Bert Vesseli won the fifth event with S. J. Flammias Pandoramint. The 6-year-old mare broke on top and was never headed. Highland Song was second and Schley Al was third.

Mat Victors In Tonight's Bouts to Meet

With four powerful men wrestling in double windup bouts tomorrow night at Turner's Arena, Promoter Joe Turner announced that he was planning to match the winners in a future bout.

Ernie Dusek, the wild Nebraskan, meets Hans Kampfer, the mighty Oak, as he is called, in one cofeature, while the other shows Wladislaw Talun, 6-foot 8-inch, 305-pound Polish giant, against Milo Steinborn, the Strong Man.

A Dusek-Talun bout or a Kampfer Steinborn match would strike a popular chord with the fans, Promoter Turner stated.

Added to the show yesterday was a 30-minute scrap between Angelo LeLone, rough New Yorker, and Tommy Rae, the Boston stylist.

The two-man team match finds Eddie Newman and Jim Austeri meeting Ace Freeman and Maurice LaChappelle.

Havre De Grace Plans Fall Purse Average of $1,500

By the Associated Press

Baltimore, July 15.—Edward J. Burke, general manager of the Havre de Grace track, has informed the Maryland Racing Commission that purses would average $1,500 at the 13-day meeting opening September 13.

Burke also requested permission to offer eight-race programs at the fall meeting. The commission, which permitted eight-race programs at Bowie and Havre de Grace last spring, is expected to make a decision on the fall programs at its meeting tomorrow.

The $1,000 purse for races for cheap selling platers will continue in effect, Burke said, but the $1,500 average for the meeting will be reached by increasing the purses for expensive selling horses and allowance performers.

At the Havre de Grace spring meeting, the average purse was $1,330, when only 13 of the 96 races carried more than $1,000. The average was boosted by three stakes carrying a total of $32,500 in added money.

B. Baer-Simon Bout Postponed Again—Until Cold Weather

By the Associated Press

New York, July 15.—The oft-postponed heavyweight bout between Buddy Baer, of California, and Abe Simon, of New York, has been put off again—this time to await the advent of cold weather—and moved indoors.

Originally scheduled this month at the Polo Grounds, the battle of the behemoths first was advanced to August 14, and now Promoter Mike Jacobs says it positively will take place September 5 in Madison Square Garden.

The lightweight championship fight between Lew Jenkins and Sammy Angott, originally assigned the September 5 date, has been postponed to October 3.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—OYSTER BAR, $6.20, $3.20, $2.60; GOOD GRASS, $3.90, $3.10; SUEGALE, $4.80.

OYSTER BAR saved ground at the first turn to take command, drew clear, but was tiring in the closing stages and just lasted. GOOD GRASS took the lead early, had to be restrained while trying to run out and closed boldly in the final straightaway. SUEGALE was hard ridden throughout and showed a good effort. SHILKA went evenly.

SECOND RACE—Six and one-half furlongs. Purse, $500; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 3:04. Off at 3:04. Winner, Mrs. F. Jostis' ch. g. Two-dollar mutuels paid—DON DASH, $19.20, $8.90, $5.10; FARMLANDS, $7.10, $4.70; OSOFREE, $4.80.

DON DASH took command over FARMLANDS in the early stages, drew out and was weakening under pressure in the closing test. FARMLANDS could not keep up with the pacemaker, came to the inside for the final drive and was in close quarters against the rail. OSOFREE was briskly handled throughout and showed a good effort. SCHLEY GOREE lost ground and tired.

Daily Double, OYSTER BAR and DON DASH, Paid $74.80

THIRD RACE—Six and one-half furlongs. Purse, $500; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 3:33. Off at 3:33½. Winner, F. Hellmann's br. f. Two-dollar mutuels paid—LONG LEGS, $7.20, $4.50, $3.90; BALKANESE, $4.00, $3.20; JEWEL SONG, $5.10.

LONG LEGS, steadied while lacking racing room early and blocked off on the backstretch, came widest of all entering the stretch and won going away. BALKANESE was well placed from the start and closed with good energy. JEWEL SONG set a good pace and weakened in the final drive. MAFUTA was strongly handled and showed a good effort.

FOURTH RACE—Five furlongs. Purse, $600. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 4:04. Off at 4:06. Winner, Mrs. G. C. Rollings' ch. m. Two-dollar mutuels paid—TIME HER, $4.90, $3.10, $2.60; BUTTERMAN, $4.90, $3.70; FAIR HAIRED, $6.00.

TIME HER, steadied while well placed on the outside, drove to the front entering the stretch and came over on BUTTERMAN approaching the wire. BUTTERMAN took command at the first turn, was hustled along and was slightly bothered in the closing test. FAIR HAIRED closed with good energy. LAST BET was well placed and weakened.

FIFTH RACE—Six and one-half furlongs. Purse, $500; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 4:38. Off at 4:38½. Winner, S. J. Flammia's b. m. Two-dollar mutuels paid—WORTHOWNING, $5.40, $4.30, $3.20; CUSTER, $8.80, $5.00; SHORTS, $3.10.

WORTHOWNING, in the first flight from the start, came out for racing room and wore down CUSTER to win going away. CUSTER raced SHORTS into defeat to get to the front, but could not resist the winner. SHORTS set the early pace and tired gradually. HIGH LANCE was vigorously handled early and weakened.

Joe Vosmik Expects To Sign With Colonels

Cleveland, July 15 (AP).—Outfielder Joe Vosmik said today he expected to sign with the Louisville American Association club, which would return him to the minors for the first time since 1930.

Vosmik said he had been approached by Herb Pennock, of the Boston Red Sox farm system, and likely would come to terms. He was with the Red Sox after leaving Cleveland several seasons ago and later went over to the National League, Brooklyn releasing him recently.

Sam Byrd Slightly Hurt in Auto Crash

Philadelphia, July 15 (AP).—Golf Pro Sam Byrd, former major league baseball player, was reported in good condition today at Hahnemann Hospital where he was taken late last night following a collision between his automobile and a trolley.

The former member of the New York Yankees and Cincinnati Reds was bruised and cut about the head. Mrs. Byrd also was bruised in the mishap, but did not require hospitalization.

Byrd, a native of Birmingham, Ala., is pro at Merion Golf Club.

—At The Post

Dear Al:

Racing circles were shocked to learn of the sudden passing of District Commissioner Melvin C. Hazen yesterday. He played a minor role in the racing game hereabouts, for the most part confining his competitive efforts to the smaller tracks. His Lady Longworth, which he bred and raised, was being prepared to start in yesterday's first race when news came to Trainer F. E. James of Hazen's death. The filly was scratched. The Commissioner always seemed more interested in the farm, the stables and the morning workouts than he did in the afternoon's events and the mutuels. He was opposed to racing for the District, however, but only because he did not believe the majority of Washingtonians were in favor of having the sport there. Charles Town seemed to be his favorite track. He was seen there more than at other courses. Jockey William Kelly has been called to his Kingston, Pa., home due to illness in his family and will not be seen in action again until the Bel Air meeting. Sanford (Pete) Peterson, who has been handling Kelly's riding engagements, has taken over the book of Jockey Martin Bletzacker for the remainder of the session here. Walter Haight, the colt, runs (or will he?) today. He got his name on top in the entries because he is in No. 1 post position. Officials of the track chipped in and bought a new outfit (shoes to hat) for Perry, the track's handyman. The press box gang has dubbed him Ebony Crosby and he likes it. I thought I was seeing things yesterday. Jockey Danny Scocca was out on the track riding winners and I could have sworn he was sitting in the stands. The latter person turned out to be his brother, visiting from Washington. R. P. Gillette claimed Schley Goree out of yesterday's second race. A. F. Martinez, the Cuban comet, is leading the riders at this meeting. Yesterday's weather was the kind the stockholders ordered at the meeting last winter. And the crowd was larger than that of the first Tuesday of the meeting. George Ryall, jr., who handles the J. J. Jones finish camera here, is the son of the racing writer for P. M., New Yorker and other publications. Gifford Beavins is his coworker. See you on the rail. BILL.

First race—AUBALEY has worked well and probably is ready to turn back a field of this kind. I'm going to string along. JOHN'S BUDDY had poor racing luck last out and is dangerous. WALTER HAIGHT may improve enough to be third.

Second race—EASTER RABBIT has speed enough to turn back this kind. Needs only a share of the racing luck. MICROPLAY is a fair sort and belongs close. MIGHTY BUSY to take care of the others.

Third race—McHENRY has speed to go to the top of these and I'm going to be there. BULLET B. is in excellent form and is a threat with these. SQUABBLE for the minor award.

Fourth race—LEONARDTOWN will get the route that suits in this event and I see no reason for mistakes. MY EXIT was all over the track last out and will be a contender here. BOO'S LETTER for the show end.

Fifth race—NICK'S last was not his best race. I look for a return to form in this. MOROCCO D. is a threat. SUNNY ROSE did everything asked in the late stages of the Charles Town meeting.

Sixth race—JUSTA JIMMIE is the natural choice in this field. Likes the route and gets a modest weight assignment. DUCHESS DEL belongs with these and is dangerous. SCHLEY BUCK for the show end.

Seventh race—KNOXVILLE can better that last considerably and I look for a set of brackets in this company. YANKEE LAD and POMARY to account for the place and show positions.

Eighth race—QUILL runs best on a fast track. If he can get the right condition this will be all over but the pay-off. STAND ALONE has some class. ALMAC to take care of the others.

Best bet—LEONARDTOWN.

1—John's Buddy, Walter Haight, So Fast.
2—Farcical, Happy Sis, Star Castle.
3—Royal Wanton, Real Boy, Bob Junior.
4—Precious Time, Brilliant Carl, Lanelan.
5—Caldon, Dacotah, Corora.
6—Miss Mint Drop, Duchess Del, Bright Gem.
7—Yankee Lad, Channing, Petee Lad.
8—Almac, Our Teddy, Tee Off.
Best bet—Precious Time.

Jockey Pearson Hurt, Race Horse Killed Instantly

By International News Service

Hollywood Park, Calif., July 15.—A race horse was killed and Jockey Bill Pearson injured today in a three-horse spill during the third race at Hollywood Park.

Pearson's mount, Maevic, was killed instantly, and Pearson suffered a broken collar bone.

The other two jockeys, Ferrell Zufelt, on Molasses Mibs, and Billy Fisk, on Tripaway, were uninjured, track hospital physicians said.

Molasses Mibs followed the field riderless after the fall, apparently uninjured. Tripaway, too, apparently escaped injury.

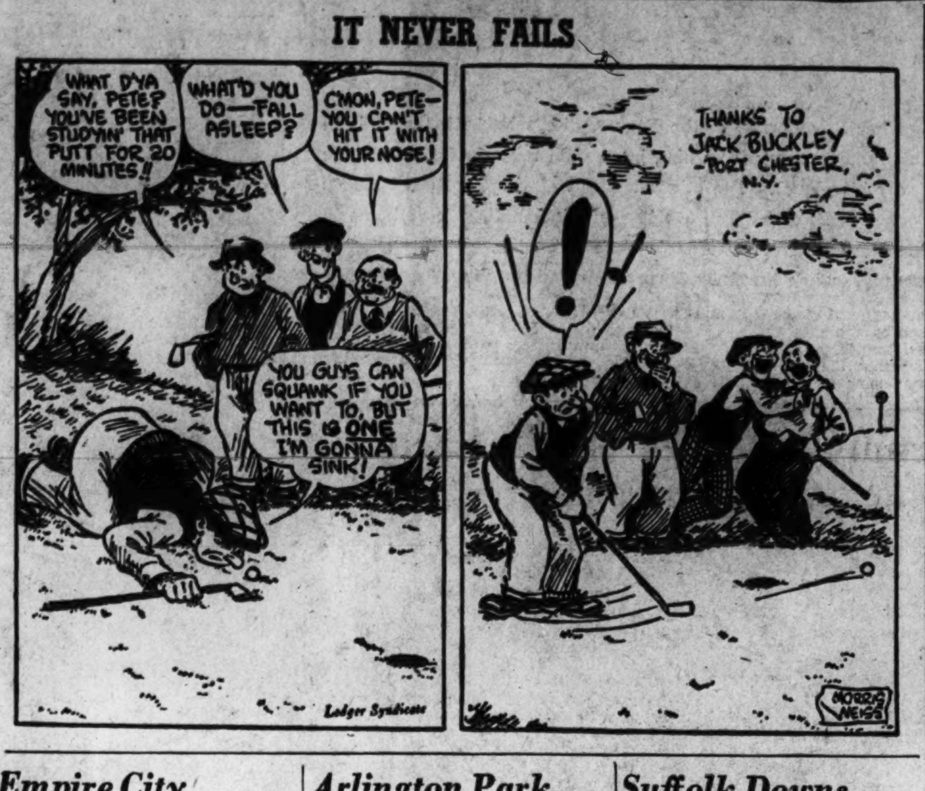
IT NEVER FAILS



WHAT D'YA SAY, PETE? YOU'VE BEEN STUDYIN' THAT PUTT FOR 20 MINUTES!!
WHAT'D YOU DO—FALL ASLEEP?
C'MON, PETE—YOU CAN'T HIT IT WITH YOUR NOSE!
YOU GUYS CAN SQUAWK IF YOU WANT TO, BUT THIS IS ONE I'M GONNA SINK!

Kingfisher In Upset at Empire City

By the Associated Press

Empire City, N. Y., July 15.—C. V. Whitney's Kingfisher surprised most of the crowd here this afternoon when he lasted over the mile and a sixteenth distance to capture the featured Dalmatian (Class "C") Handicap. Second winner of the day sired by Halcyon, the gelding reported a length in advance of John C. Clark's Waller. S. A. Warner Baltazzi's White Mask lost the place by two lengths.

R. Sterling Clark's Trois Pistoles field of seven.

and Saguenay II, the former a recent winner, ruled favorite in the field of seven. Saguenay was used up vying with Mary Schulz for the early lead, while Trois Pistoles never became a threat, showing very dull form. Kingfisher was timed in 1:46 and paid $11.80. He had raced well in sprints, but had not shown much endurance in longer contests. Basil James, who apparently has snapped out of an extended slump, gave the King a nice ride.

James rated Kingfisher close behind Mary Schulz and Saguenay II in the early stages. He urged the Whitneyite alongside that pair nearing the far turn and guided him into a clear lead as the field swung for the last turn.

Retail Sales Here in June Mount 15%

Washington department store sales in June were 15 per cent heavier than in the same month last year, according to the monthly report of the Federal Reserve Bank of Richmond.

The seven reporting stores here for the first six months showed a 20 per cent increase over the volume for the same period last year.

Store sales in the Fifth Federal Reserve District were 15 per cent improved in June and 19 per cent heavier for the first six months as compared with like 1940 periods.

Comparative figures for States and cities follow:

	June, 1941	6 Mos.
Maryland	14%	18%
Virginia	16%	21%
West Virginia	16%	16%
North Carolina	14%	17%
South Carolina	23%	21%

Riggs Dividends Voted

Directors of the Riggs National Bank have declared regular quarterly dividends as follows: $1.25 a share on preferred stock and $2 a share on common stock. The preferred dividend is payable August 1 to stockholders of record July 14, while the common dividend is payable July 15 to stockholders of record July 14.

President Robert V. Fleming announced that directors, at a regular meeting Monday afternoon, also declared the next quarterly dividend of $2 a share on common stock, payable October 15 to stockholders of record September 30.

Postal Savings Climb

Postal savings in Washington totaled $9,579,193 on June 30, an increase of $91,834 as compared with June 30 last year, it was reported yesterday. At the end of May postal savings here totaled $9,541,795.

Advertising Gains 6.4 Per Cent

Retail newspaper advertising during the week ended July 5 was 6.4 per cent greater than during the corresponding week of last year, marking the sixteenth consecutive week in which this year's figure has exceeded last year, Advertising Age reported yesterday.

The report covers all newspapers in 83 major cities, which published a total of 14,973,694 lines of retail display advertising during the week, compared with 14,073,287 lines during the same week of 1940.

For the 27-week period since the beginning of the year, newspapers in the 33 measured cities carried 557,859,150 lines of retail advertising, compared with 524,470,131 lines during the same period of 1940. This is an increase of 6.4 per cent.

Japan's Industry Reported Slowly Deteriorating

The Commerce Department said yesterday available statistics indicated that Japanese industry "is slowly deteriorating under the continual strain of the struggle in China."

"Factors responsible for the volume decline in output of Japan's industry during the year were reported as shortages of skilled labor, materials, fuel and electricity," a press release said.

Heavy industries, the statement added, were handicapped mostly by lack of materials, while consumer goods industries were affected by loss of foreign markets and restrictions on sales at home.

An official index of Japan's industry compiled by the Japanese ministry of commerce and industry was 174.9 per cent of the 1813-33 average during the first nine months of last year, compared with 179.9 in a similar part of 1939.

No official figures were available for the last three months of 1940, but the American Commerce Department said that since conditions grew worse toward the end of the year, "it is evident that industrial output for the year was considerably lower than shown by available statistics."

Passenger Car Registrations Set New May Record

Detroit, July 15. (AP)—New passenger-car registrations during May totaled 515,034 units to top all previous records for any one month in the automobile industry's history, according to R. L. Polk & Co. The figures compared with 489,074 reported for April of this year and 481,675 tabulated for April, 1929.

For the five months period from January through May, passenger-car registrations totaled 2,023,811 units, an increase of 35.2 per cent over the same period last year, the statistical agency reported.

Truck registrations for May numbered 71,170 units, topping April of this year by 901. For the five-month period, truck registrations were 326,849 units, a gain of 32 per cent over the like period of 1940.

Cotton Consumption In June Under May

By the Associated Press

The Census Bureau reported yesterday that cotton consumed during June totaled 875,137 bales of lint and 126,351 bales of linters, compared with 918,902 and 129,471 during May this year, and 565,416 and 79,952 during June last year.

Imports of foreign cotton during June totaled 26,105 bales, compared with 30,853 during May this year, and 42,374 during June last year.

Exports of domestic cotton during June totaled 75,236 compared with 71,539 during May this year, and 133,530 during June last year.

Furniture Bad Debt Losses Dip to 0.32%

A Commerce Department survey of furniture stores which sell on credit shows that bad-debt losses on charged merchandise declined to .32 per cent last year from a .4 per cent in 1940.

These stores reported that 75 per cent of their business was done on the installment credit basis, 16.6 per cent by general charge accounts, and only 8.4 per cent by cash.

North American and SEC To Compromise on Dispute

By the Associated Press

Wilmington, Del., July 15.—Federal Court was informed today that the Securities Exchange Commission and the North American Co., are working on a compromise settlement of a dispute over the utility's right to dissolve an intermediate holding company against the S. E. C.'s wishes.

Counsel for the commission, the utility and the subsidiary—the North American Light & Power Co.—appeared before Judge John P. Nields and requested him to withhold decision until August 15 on an injunction asked by the S. E. C.

Counsel for North American told the court that the majority stock the parent company holds in Light & Power would be voted only for adjournment when stockholders of the subsidiary meet here next Monday in a session adjourned from June 30. The new date for the stockholders meeting was announced at August 21.

The S. E. C. asked the restraining order June 4, contending the voluntary breakup of Light & Power would hamper the S. E. C. program toward intergrating the Nation's utilities into closely-located system that actually operate utilities.

North American challenged the right of the S. E. C. to forbid it to move voluntarily in a direction the S. E. C. had previously indicated would be desirable.

Earnings Reports

McGraw-Hill Publishing Co. and subsidiaries reported for the six months ended June 30 net profit of $559,629, after Federal income and excess profits taxes, or 93 cents a share. This compared with $421,331, or 70 cents a share, in the comparable period of 1940.

Alpha Portland Cement Co. reported for the 12 months ended June 30 net profits of $1,031,143, after depreciation, depletion and Federal income and excess profits taxes, equal to $1.70 a share on the capital stock. This compared with $665,484, or $1.04 a share, for the comparable period ended June 30, 1940.

United Fruit Co. estimated its earnings for the six months ended July 5, before income taxes, at $10,729,000 compared with $9,379,000 estimated profit in the first half of 1940. Earnings from European or United Kingdom sources were not included.

MacAndrews & Forbes Co. reported for the six months ended June 30, after Federal income and excess profits taxes, net earnings of $431,644, or $1.22 a common share. This compared with $437,940, or $1.24 a share, in the first half of 1940.

Hiram Walker-Gooderham & Worts, Ltd., and subsidiaries whiskey distillers, reported today for the quarter ended May 31 net profit of $1,711,745 (in Canadian currency), after income and excess profits taxes, equal, after preferred dividend requiremnets, to $2.17 a common share. This compared with $1,381,340 in the May quarter of 1940, or $1.71 a share.

Oil Output Rises On Texas Stepup

New York, July 15 (AP).—A jump in Texas output sent the Nation's daily average crude oil production for the week ended July 12 to 3,870,750 barrels, 212,550 above the previous week's figure and compared with 3,560,750 barrels a year ago, the American Petroleum Institute estimated today.

Reports from refining companies owning 86.3 per cent of the estimated United States capacity indicated operations at 95.8 per cent of capacity or a run to stills of 4,090,000 barrels daily compared with 87.1 per cent and 3,745,000 barrels the preceding week and 3,481,000 barrels a year ago.

Continuing the seasonal decline, gasoline stocks dropped to 89,561,000 barrels at the end of the week from 90,218,000 the week before and compared with 91,971,000 barrles a year ago.

Week's Gold Imports Show Slight Climb

By the Associated Press

The Commerce Department said yesterday gold imports in the week ended July 9 totaled $9,009,385. This figure was somewhat higher than the preceeding week, but close to average for recent weeks.

Principal shipments were $4,040,024 from Canada and $2,125,095 from Columbia.

Foreign gold deposits under earmark in the Federal Reserve Banks increased $1,454,491 to a total of $1,918,240,391.

Recapitulating June figures, the department also said that gold imports in June totaled $30,718,564—one of the smallest totals for any month in recent years. It included $17,521,000 from Canada, $4,593,000 from Australia, $3,443,000 from South American countries, and $2,114,000 from the Philippines.

A. T.&T. Earns $2.66 a Share In 2nd Period

New York, July 15.—American Telephone & Telegraph Co., reported today for the three months ended June 30 net income of $49,655,125 or $2.66 a common share, compared with $44,909,738 or $2.40 a share in the corresponding period last year.

These figures were for the parent company only, reflecting chiefly its income from the long-lines business and from dividends paid it by operating subsidaries.

For the three months ended May 31, consolidated net income of the parent company and subsidiaries was $66,321,947, of which $63,913,796 was applicable to the stock of the parent company, or $3.42 a share. This compared with consolidated net income of $54,676,461, in the like period a year ago, of which $52,444,985 or $2.81 a share was applicable to the stock of the parent concern.

Walter S. Gifford, president, in a letter to stockholders accompanying the report, said:

"In these statements, Federal taxes for 1941 have been accrued at tax rates now in effect. As heavy increases in both income and excess profits taxes effective retroactively to January 1, 1941, appear certain, the net income as reported . . . in all probability is highter than it will ultimately prove to have been."

Gifford's letter also revealed a net gain of 673,000 telephones in the first half of this year, nearly 50 per cent greater than in the same period of 1940.

The number of toll and long distance calls in the first half of this year was up 14.5 per cent over the previous year.

N. J. Standard Net Gains

New York, July 15 (AP).—W. S. Farish, president of Standard Oil Co. (N. J.) estimated today the company's net earnings for the first six months were $79,000,000.

At this time last year Farish estimated net earnings of the first six months of 1940 had been $85,000,000. Total net earnings for 1940 were reported as $123,886,346, Farish pointing out that the profit was equal to $4.54 a share on the capital stock.

Defense Bond Questionnaire

Q. Can civic, fraternal, social and other organizations place funds from their treasuries into Defense Savings Bonds?

A. Yes; such organizations may invest their money in either the Series F or Series G Bonds.

Q. Can a person who is not an American citizen buy a Defense Savings Bond?

A. Yes, provided he is a resident of the United States or its Territories or possessions. Thousands of foreign-born people in this country are putting savings in Defense Bonds to show their faith in American democracy.

Note.—To buy Defense Bonds and Stamps, go to the nearest postoffice or bank, or write to the Treasurer of the United States, Washington, for an order form.

Western Maryland Rwy. Issue Is Authorized

The Interstate Commerce Commission yesterday authorized the Western Maryland Railway to issue $1,900,000 of 2¼ per cent equipment trust certificates in connection with the purchase of new equipment.

Cotton Prices Sweep Higher To 11-Year Top

By the Associated Press

Still spurred by inflation talk and fears of a short crop, New York cotton figures kept ahead of the commodities list with net gains of $1 to $1.20 a bale yesterday.

Steady buying by mill and speculative interests gave prices a late boost that held values at the best at the close. Hope for a revision in cloth price ceilings encouraged purchases.

All futures months from December forward closed above 16 cents a pound. The first time cotton has reached that level since April, 1930.

Cottonseed oil moved up .11 to .17 of a cent a pound with cotton.

Sugar futures in the world contract, buoyed by reports of British purchases in this hemisphere, climbed .02 to .04 of a cent a pound. Rubber, among imports, was up .10 to .20 cents a pound; cocoa lost .06 cent a pound. Santos coffee gained .05 to .06 of a cent.

Silk, up sharply Monday, held unchanged to 1 cent a pound higher.

Wool tops rose .7 to .8 of a cent a pound.

The Associated Press index of 35 cash staples declined to 89.12 per cent of the 1926 average from 89.21 per cent the day before.

Wheat Rallies After Slump

Chicago, July 15. (AP) — Wheat prices dipped about a cent a bushel early today to the lowest level since June 30 but then recovered all the loss in a final hour rally propelled by covering operations of previous short sellers and some buying associated with flour business.

War reports, including Russian claims of counter-offensives in some areas and apparent failure so far of the Germans to take Kiev despite assertion yesterday that capture of the Ukraine capital was near, stimulated some buying. Rumors of German peace proposals disrupted "shorts" who sought to even their accounts. Early weakness was associated largely with hedging sales and reports of serious congestion of wheat at some terminals.

Wheat closed unchanged to ⅛ lower compared with yesterday, July, 103⅞; September, 105½@1.05⅝; corn, ¼ off to ⅛ up; July, 73¼@73⅝; September, 75⅝; oats, ⅜ to 1 lower; soybeans, ¾ to ⅞ higher; rye, ⅛ to ½ down, and lard unchanged to 5 lower.

Rail Freight Rate Cut Advocated by Scrap Iron Trade

Detroit, JJuly 15 (AP).—Members of the Institute of Scrap Iron and Steel, Inc., noting that "loss of production at steel mills and foundries engaged in defense work is threatened by a shortage of scrap," urged today the adoption of an advisory committee's recommendations on freight rates as a step to overcome the shortage.

Louis J. Borinstein of Indianapolis, president of the institute, said that between 750,000 and 2,500,000 tons of scrap iron are "frozen" in the Middle West because freight rates are so high it cannot be shipped to mills.

The institute's action was taken at its midyear convention here. Copies of its resolution were forwarded to William S. Knudsen of the office of Production Management and Leon Henderson of the office of Price Administration and Civilian Supply.

Cotton Belt Rwy. Plan Is Issued

The plan of reorganization for the St. Louis Southwestern Railway (Cotton Belt), which sharply reduces capitalization and fixed charges and eliminates the holdings of present stockholders, was issued yesterday by the Interstate Commerce Commission.

The plan calls for a new capitalization of $75,000,375 compared with the old capitalization, including loans and bills payable, of $105,946,995.

Fixed interest charges would be reduced from $3,159,045 to $1,513,731. January 1, 1942 was fixed as the effective date of the plan. It now goes to the Federal District Court at St. Louis for action.

The commission found the equities of the holders of both the common and preferred stock of the cotton belt to have no value, and made no provision for the stockholders to participate in the reorganization.

Cont. Baking Stock Retirement Approved

Wilmington, Del., July 15 (AP).—Stockholders of the Continental Baking Co. today approved a proposal to retire 40 per cent of the preferred stock and exchange the present A and B shares for new common.

Under the plan the company will borrow funds to pay for the preferred through tenders to be invited at not more than $105 a share, including all claims for dividends. Each share of A stock will be exchanged for three shares of new common and each B share will be exchanged for one-tenth of a share of new common.

Farm Implements and Rails Lead Advance; Stock Average Sets New Top Since January

New York, July 15—The buying tide ran to rails and industrial specialties in today's stock market, with many so-called leaders drifting through a narrowly irregular channel.

Farm implements were among the strongest performers, getting up 1 to 3 points. Gains elsewhere ranged from fractions to a point or so. Steels, motors, rubbers, oils, utilities and aircrafts failed to do much on the upside.

Trends were a bit spotty from the start but plus signs were in the majority at the close. Of 768 issues appearing on the ticker tape, 336 were up, 214 down and 218 unchanged.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks held a net advance of .2 of a point at 43.7 and was at the best level since January. Dealings expanded in the forenoon and slowed down after midday. Transfers of 702,900 shares compared with 563,830 yesterday.

In addition to the continuance of optimistic business prospects, the question of inflation, brokers said, still was the main market stimulant. Claims and counterclaims of the Nazis and Bolshevists from the various Russian battle fronts were thought to have provided scant speculative inspiration inasmuch as Wall Street was undecided which to believe.

Bolstering the rails were a number of 5-months' earnings statements confirming the substantial comeback of most roads. The agricultural implement group was buoyed by the persistent thought that rising farm prices and labor shortage would boost the demand for motorized machinery.

Posting new 1941 tops were J. I. Case, International Harvester, Caterpillar Tractor, Southern Railway, Atlantic Coast Line, Savage Arms, General Steel Castings, preferred and Budd Manufacturing, preferred.

Modest impovement was retained by Owens-Illinois, Union Carbide, General Electric, American Can, Allied Chemical, Pepsi-Cola, Santa Fe, N. Y. Central, Southern Pacific, Anaconda, Western Union, Sears Roebuck ad International Nickel.

United State Steel and Chrysler ended at Monday's final marks. General Motors was up a shade, as was Republic Steel. On the losing side were United States Rubber, United Aircraft, Westinghoouse, Du Poont, Standard Oil (N. J.), American Smelting and Phillip Morris.

Small gainers in a ragged curb were Cities Service, Brewster Aero, Glen Alden Coal and American Gas. Volume here was around 112,000 shares versus 106,000 the day before.

Chief interest in today's bond market centered in the rails which were active and higher by fractions to more than a point. Numerous issues established new 1941 tops.

Utilities, industrials and the miscellaneous list showed only minor changes either way; United States Governments were less active than on Monday when a lowering of commission rates diverted from the over-the-counter market to the stock exchange market a substantial volume of business. Prices were steady. Except for gains in a few Latin-Americans, foreign dollar bonds were quiet.

Total volume of $9,016,800, par value, compared with $9,496,850 on Monday.

D. C. Underwriter Becomes Member Of $1,000,000 Club

For the first time since 1937, a Washington life underwriter has qualified for the exclusive "Million-Dollar Round Table," it was announced yesterday by S. H. Emerson, jr., president of the United Services Life Insurance Co., of Washington.

The successful underwriter is Melville M. Menefee, who produced $1,059,090 in life insurance for the year ended July 1. Only 26 men in the entire United States qualified for this honor in 1940.

Mr. Menefee, 31, was born in Washington, and has been in life insurance business slightly over two years. He is a graduate of V. M. I. and a Marine Reserve officer. His wife is the daughter of the late Gen. Henry Grant Learnard, U. S. A. The Menefees have two children.

The new member of the exclusive insurance group works entirely among officers of the Nation's armed forces, his company being owned by some 2,500 service-connected stockholders.

Railroad Nets In June Spurt $85,145,324

By the Associated Press

The Association of American Railroads reported yesterday that 87 Class 1 railroads had estimated operating revenues of $367,080,657 in June compared with $281,935,333 in June, 1940, and $364,378,248 in June, 1930.

The reporting carriers, the association said, represent 81.8 per cent of total railroad operating revenues.

The June, 1941, revenues were 30.2 per cent above those for June, 1940, and 0.7 per cent above June, 1930.

Freight revenues of the 87 railroads in June totaled $303,596,455 compared with $226,00,617 in June 1940, and $271,720,651 in June, 1930.

Passenger revenues totaled $37,150,692 compared with $30,231,449 in June, 1940, and $56,752,197 in June, 1930.

4 Groups to Bid On Utility Issue

New York, July 15 (AP).—Financial circles heard today four nationally known banking groups had been formed to bid on $33,000,000 of bonds and debentures of the Wisconsin Power & Light Co., an important unit in the Middle West system.

It was understood the financing, proceeds from which would be used to retire currently outstanding first mortgage 4s, would consist of $30,000,000 of first mortgage bonds and $3,000,000 of serial debentures.

One group was understood to be headed by Glore, Forgan & Co. and Halsey, Stuart & Co. another included the first Boston Corporation, and Blythe & Co., the third to be headed by Lehman Bros., and the fourth by Salomon Bros. & Hutzler.

WHY ON EARTH DO THEY DO IT?
...neglect to carry rental insurance
Moral: Better come in and let us tell you what a great help Rental insurance can be if fire chases you away from your home for a spell.
Rental insurance pays your rent in other quarters, equal to your own, while you're repairing or rebuilding after a fire. Ridiculously low cost for what you get.

New York Cotton

New York, July 15 (AP).—Cotton futures prices advanced $1 to $1.20 a bale today, setting new 11-year highs for the third consecutive trading day and in some months surpassing the parity price of 16.12 cents a pound.

A scarcity of contracts was evident as trade and mill interests bid prices up to the worry of shorts who sold early and attempted to cover late in the day.

Persistent reports of heavy insect damage, compared by some speculative sources to the weevil activity of 1923, stimulated the rise. Further rains in the cotton belt and improved sentiment in the cloth markets also were factors.

When the 16-cent price was chalked up, it was the first time since April, 1930, that cotton had reached that level. At the close all futures months from December forward were above it.

Worth Street took hope from the meeting of the textile industry advisory committee that was expected to suggest cotton goods price ceiling revisions to Federal Price Administrator Leon Henderson.

Exports Monday 3,200 bales. Season so far, 1,040,383; port receipts, 16,811; port stocks, 3,286,655.

(Rates in spot cables unless otherwise indicated.)

Sugar Futures

New York, July 15 (AP).—World sugar futures moved into new high ground for the season today but profit taking cut the gains somewhat and the close was 2½ to 4 points higher on sales of 36,200 tons. Domestic sugar rose 2 to 3 points on sales of 6,200 tons.

Refined was unchanged. The few raw offerings were at 3.55 cents a pound for current supplies and 3.35 to 3.40 cents a pound for overquota sugar.

Giant Errors Help Pirates Triumph, 5-1

By the Associated Press

New York, July 15.—The New York Giants whipped themselves today, making four errors and yielding four unearned runs, as the Pittsburgh Pirates romped off with a 5-to-1 decision on the seven-hit hurling of big Max Butcher.

The Giants got their only tally in the first inning when Hank Danning singled to deep short with the bases loaded. After that they were helpless not only at bat, but in the field.

Bill Jurges, who has been having dizzy spells again, had a bad day at short. In the third inning a bounder by Al Lopez lodged in his shirt for a freak hit and then he fumbled a smash by Butcher, leading to a run on a double play.

Nats Start 3-Game Tiger Series Today

in entirely adequate jobs for the Nats and giving the club its best relief work since the start of the season.

There is one other bright phase of the Nats' play, aside from the remarkable hitting streak of Cecil Travis, of course. In recent games, George Case has indicated that he can hit the ball, after all. Throughout the Chicago and St. Louis series, Case recovered his batting eye almost magically. He got no great amount of hits, but he was banging the ball hard on virtually every appearance at the plate.

Travis, of course, continues to amaze every club he faces. His consecutive-game hitting streak, which has now reached 24, has been overshadowed by Joe DiMaggio's 55-game streak, but the Nats' shotstop is pounding pitching at even a greater rate than the Yankee slugger. He has boosted his average to .375 and is in second place among the league's hitters, ahead of both DiMaggio and Jeff Heath, and led only by Ted Williams.

On the Washington club, Travis' pals are convinced that he has a chance to lead the league at bat despite Williams' 20-point lead at this point. Buddy Myer today declared, "Williams is over his head with that .397 figure. Any time Travis hits .370 I'm not surprised. I think Travis can catch Williams and end up as the league leader. He's as good a hitter as there is in this league."

Garvin's Grill, Lansburgh Win At D. C. Stadium

Garvin's Grill and Lansburgh's were returned victorious in last night's double-header at Washington Softball Stadium. Garvin's outslugged Elite Laundry, 8-6 and Lansburgh whipped Community Business Men of Mount Rainier, 5-2.

Garvin's, forced to play with only nine men, scored five in the third and three in the fourth with Gene Adams and Jack Jones leading the attack. Brewer, on the mound, held Elite safe after a bad third inning.

Ted Lanon continued his excellent tossing for Lansburgh's as he gave up only five hits. Bayba, with three for three, including a homer, led the department store lads. Burnett also homered.

land. An indifferent performer with a penchant for stopping after getting to the front, Foxbrough, who will carry 122 pounds, may have struck his stride in copping the recent Butler Handicap.

Tom Driscoll, assistant to Trainer Sunny Jim Fitzsimmons, believes there "isn't much to choose" between Fenelon and Foxbrough. "Foxbrough has come along nicely. He showed us one race a year ago that indicated he was finding himself . . . He likes to run, and he likes to race."

Your Chance Has Chance

Second choice at the mutuels probably will be Mrs. George D. Widener's Your Chance, attempting to duplicate for his mistress what Eight Thirty did for her husband. Your Chance turned back Hash, Mioland, Dit, Haltal and others in this year's Suburban and earned $36,323 last season. Your Chance's package is 120 pounds.

Two capable 3-year-olds—Greentree Stable's Swing and Sway, conqueror of Our Boots in the Empire City 'cap Saturday, and Louis Tufano's Market Wise, victor in the Wood Memorial—seek to become the second winning youngster in this event. Swing and Sway will carry 106 pounds, 5 less than his class rival.

Oldest horse in the race will be Mrs. A. J. Abel's 7-year-old Honey Cloud in at 110. The others named were Tower Stable's Royal Man (106) and A. J. Sackett's Tola Rose (112).

Swim Marks Fall At A. A. U. Meet

Swan Lake, N. Y., July 15 (AP).—Helen Rains and Gloria Callen, of New York, took turns breaking listed world records in the eighth annual A. A. U. Swimming Meet in the 20-yard President Pool here today.

Adam Hats Beat I. B. M. Ten, 11-3, In Major Upset

With Gilbert Cake turning in a masterful one-hit pitching performance, the last-place Adam Hats ten scored a major upset in the Merchant's Softball League last night at Ballston Stadium, trouncing favored I. B. M., 11 to 3.

The only hit garnered off Cake was a single by First Baseman Wheeler, while I. B. M. batsmen were fanned. A home run and brace of singles by Shortstop Boswell featured the 19-hit Adam Hats assault on the Machinemen's Mahaney.

In another league battle Plaza Wine and Liquor trounced Manhattan Auto and Radio, 11-3, behind the four-hit pitching of Billy Cross. Ray Wrenn's two doubles set the pace for Plaza.

Cameo Turns Back Old Hecklers, 3-0

Behind the heady five-hit pitching of Otis Printz, Cameo Furniture nine yesterday hung a 3-0 beating on its perennial tormenter, the Heurich Brewers, yesterday on the Ellipse.

The victory practically clinched second-half honors in the Washington Post-Industrial League, earning a playoff with the Brewers, first-section victors, for the circuit championship.

Printz, allowing only one base on balls, was never in serious trouble yesterday. He went ahead on a pair of runs in the fourth inning and a clincher in the fifth, and protected his edge to the end.

The first two runs were driven in by Printz himself. With the bases loaded he rapped a sharp single between center and right field, scoring Harris and James. Albert's base hit in the fifth wound up scoring, Godfrey coming home on the blow.

Johnny Murnane, Heurich's young right-hander, lacked much of his stuff as he issued seven hits and four bases on balls to the winners in seven innings. Art Lacey pitched two-hit ball the last two frames.

Clark Shoots 138 For Publinx Medal

total today was a slight improvement over the 79 he shot yesterday, but not good enough.

Clark, on his outgoing trip today, started like a dub, three-putting the 491-yard first hole for a double bogey 6. Another double bogey 6, on the 400-yard fifth, resulted from a trapped second shot and a strong third over the green. He bagged four birdies to compensate for the deficiencies.

On the tenth, he hooked and the ball landed under a tree. His club hit a branch on the wing and he almost fanned the ball. It rolled 6 inches. It was another double bogey 6. He had a bogey on the thirteenth but picked up a couple of bridies to turn in a 37 and total 71, even par.

This is Clark's second public links tournament. He qualified last year with 148 and was put out in the first match-play round.

Second place, four shots behind, went to 18-year-old Bill Korns, University of Utah freshman. He coupled a rousing 70 with yesterday's 69 for a solid 139, just a stroke off the old public links record and equaling the present United States amateur low score.

Scores of 150 and lower qualified for match play rounds starting tomorrow. Seventeen players tied at 151 and went into play-off for 13 places remaining open.

Stimits was among those in the play-off with a 74 today, but Furgol the other comedalist last year, was safely in with 73, 74—147.

Montgomry Apartment Plea Granted

Dividing on party lines, the Montgomery County commissioners yesterday rezoned a 16-acre tract adjacent to Sligo Creek Parkway for apartment use.

The strip involved has been the focus of a campaign by citizens of the community and later of the county to halt the rezoning since 1938. The fusion board of commissioners at that time first rezoned the property, then rescinded their action. Later, the present board of commissioners rezoned the property by a 3 to 2 vote.

Citizens' groups then retained former Judge Thomas M. Anderson, of Rockville, who found the hearing on the petition was held a day too soon and the property reverted to residential again. A new hearing was ordered and the action again was opposed by civic groups and nearby residents.

The fight against the apartment development adjacent to the park has developed into a general campaign against apartment house development. The Montgomery County Civic Federation, representing 52 civic groups of the county, adopted a resolution opposing granting of any more apartment house zoning.

Oxley Opposes Move

Commissioner O. W. Roby (Democratic Organization), moved apcratic Organization) moved ap-Commissioner R. W. Farmer (Democratic Organization). In voting "no," Commissioner John Oxley (Antiorganization Democrat) said he felt it was unfair to the county taxpayers to foist an apartment dwelling upon them where it would mar the beauty of such an attractive spot. He pointed out that the present owners are the grantees of the owners who originally owned the property and who obtained rezoning of an adjacent tract, part of which now is the site of the Piney Branch Apartments.

Commissioner Walter P. Johnson, Republican, voted no but made no comment. Thomas Earle Hampton, president of the board, voted in favor of the change and said he did not agree with Oxley that the property is detrimental to the neighboring property. Oxley suggested that the National Capital Park and Planning Commission be requested to advise the commissioners, but Hampton declared "they don't ask us about Washington zoning."

Thomas M. Anderson, attorney for the Inter-Civic Zoning Committee, said that only a small portion of the 40 acres rezoned for apartments in 1937 had been used, that there was no present need for any more apartments, and that the beauty of the Sligo Creek Parkway would be marred by the development along its edge.

The property in question is a tract of 16 acres comprising Sections 7 and 8 of Sligo Park Hills at Piney Branch Road and Sligo Creek Parkway.

Claude A. Cook, chairman of the Inter-Civic Zoning Committee, last night said that his group would continue to campaign against the development and that contributions were being collected from residents to carry on the legal battle.

Other Requests

The commissioners acted upon a number of other zoning requests as follows:

Montgomery Land Co., Douglas Hatch, president, petition for reclassification from residential C to commercial D of parcels A, B, and C, adjacent to the southwest corner of the intersection of Colesville Pike and Bladensburg Road, was granted.

Heirs of Sarah E. Shoemaker, petition for reclassification from residential A to industrial E of lots 4 and 5 of the Wilbert estate, Bethesda district, were given commercial classification. The petitioners had agreed to the change.

United Clay Products Co., E. Taylor Chewing, president, petition for reclassification from residential to commercial of a tract known as Girls portion on the east side of Blair Road near Eastern Avenue and abutting in the rear on the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad. Petition granted.

P. Blair Lee, owner, petition for reclassification from apartment to commercial of parcel A on western side of Georgia Avenue north of Eastern Avenue. Petition granted.

Curtis Walker, petition for reclassification from residential A to residential C of lot 12, block 66-B, section 1, Blair-Takoma addition to Silver Spring, located at Gist and Chicago Avenues. Petition granted.

Meyer Seegal, owner, petition for reclassification from residential A to commercial D of part lot 5, block 2, J. H. Cissel addition to Silver Spring, located on west side of Flower Avenue, north of existing commercial zoning to Piney Branch Road. Granted.

James W. Gill, attorney, petition for reclassification of parcel A, subdivision of Countryside School property, located on northeast corner of Georgia Avenue and Luzerne Avenue, Silver Spring, from residential A to residential C. Petition was withdrawn July 8 when it was found wrong corner had been advertised. Commissioners yesterday ordered a new hearing advertised, date to be announced later.

George Sacks, petition for reclassification of 60 acres on Bradley Boulevard, from residential A to residential C, was withheld for later action when Commissioner Oxley requested that location of persons opposing and favoring the change be shown. Commissioner Hampton withdrew from the meeting during this petition because of personal interest.

Standards Bureau Draws 100 Lines on Connecticut Ave.

The Bureau of Standards, trying to get a line on traffic paint, yesterday drew nearly 100 lines across Connecticut Avenue at Van Ness Street Northwest.

E. F. Hickson, chief of the paint section of the Bureau of Standards, said the traffic stripes are part of a study to determine the durability of several hundred types of traffic paint. These stripes, white, lemon yellow, and orange yellow, contain materials which it is hoped will replace other imported ingredients now difficult to obtain, he said. Wood oil which has to be imported from China, is now, according to Hickson, almost impossible to obtain. In view of the fact that between 5,000,000 and 6,000,000 gallons of paint are used yearly in this country for traffic markings it is important that some other oil be found that will replace this particular oil, Hickson declared.

Mrs. Campbell To Be Buried In Arlington

Funeral services for Mrs. Al Hazel Campbell, 45, who died suddenly Monday at her home, 7701 Easter Avenue, Takoma Park, Md., will be held tomorrow at 10 a. m. at the S. H. Hines funeral home, 2901 Fourteenth Street Northwest. Burial will be in Arlington Cemetery.

Mrs. Campbell lived most of her life in Washington, having moved to Takoma Park about a year ago. She was a yeomanette in the Navy during the World War.

She is survived by her husband, Ralph Campbell; a daughter, Hazel Christine Pitcher, and two brothers, Ashton Crist and Donally Crist, of Washington.

Gen. W. R. Smith, Former West Point Head, Dies at 73

West Point, N. Y., July 15 (AP).—Maj. Gen. William R. Smith, retired, 73-year-old head of the Sewanee Military Institute in Tennessee for the last nine years and superintendent of the United States Military Academy from 1928 to 1932, died here today.

Gen. Smith died unexpectedly of cardiac asthma in the quarters of his son, Capt. William R. Smith, jr., who is in the West Point chemistry department.

Born in Nashville, Gen. Smith was graduated from West Point in 1892. After a distinguished career in the World War and as commander of several United States, Hawaiian and Philippine posts, he retired on April 30, 1932. During the World War he supervised the laying of the first submarine net in America, closing the entrance to Hampton Roads, Va.

Soviet Reported Moving Offices Out of Moscow

Copyright by New York Times

Government services are packing up and leaving Moscow, according to authoritative reports received here today. They include departments and agencies but, as far as known, not the foreign office. Presumably as long as it remains in Moscow the foreign Diplomatic Corps also will remain there.

The movement is understood to be precautionary. The services are going to Kazan, 450 miles to the southeast of Moscow. It is on the Trans-Siberian Railroad and the first big city east of the capital.

Moscow (Wednesday), July 16 (AP).—United States Ambassador Laurence A. Steinhardt said early today that he and his staff had no intention of leaving Moscow.

S. A. Lozovsky, Soviet vice commissar for foreign affairs, earlier had informed the head of the Diplomatic Corps here, Mohammed Saed, the Iranian (Persian) Ambassador, that the Russian government was remaining in Moscow.

New Construction At Fort Meade Set at $2,225,000

Fort George G. Meade, Md., July 15 (AP).—About $2,225,000 worth of construction work is under way or under contract here at present, it was said today at the office of Maj. J. A. Noxon, constructing quartermaster.

This work, most of which is expected to be completed by September 30, includes 10 buildings and a sprinkling system in the hospital section, 30 buildings in the recruit reception center, 10 chapels, 5 barracks, motor repair shops and sheds for storing vehicles, a field house, an officers' club in the Twenty-ninth Division area and a recreation building for officers in each of the regiments of the division.

A new water filtration plant for the post probably will be completed in early October, it was said, and a sewage disposal plant should be finished in November.

Mrs. Darby Buried In Beallsville

The funeral of Mrs. Estelle Allnutt Darby, 73, wife of Thomas C. Darby, of Dawsonville, Md., who died at her home on Sunday after a long illness, took place yesterday afternoon at the home. Elder Benjamin H. Seekford, Washington, of the Primitive Baptist Church, conducted the services and burial was in Monocacy Cemetery, Beallsville, Md.

Mrs. Darby was a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Nathan W. Allnutt and was a lifelong resident of the Dawsonville neighborhood. Besides her husband, who is one of Montgomery's leading citizens and formerly president of the board of county public school commissioners, she is survived by five daughters, Mrs. Garnett Ball, of Washington, and Elizabeth, Estelle, Margaret and Valeria Darby, all of near Dawsonville. She also leaves a sister, Mrs. Milton G. Darby, Rockville.

Meade Signal Company Goes To Beauregard

By a Staff Correspondent

Fort George G. Meade, Md., July 15.—Fort Meade this week will feel the effects of the Army's gigantic program for summer and fall maneuvers.

The Twenty-second Signal Company will leave tomorrow for Camp Beauregard, La., to serve as a signal operating company in maneuvers there. It will take eight officers and 150 men from this post.

Today at 6 p. m., 11 hours after leaving Fort Hancock, Sandy Hook, N. J., Headquarters Battery, Fifty-second Coast Artillery (Railway), rolled into Meade in 24 trucks. The company, destined for Monroe, N. C., bivouacked here overnight.

Capt. Ralph M. Pursell, comanding the battery, said he did not know what duty his command would perform in the huge Carolinas maneuver area. He said it was under orders "from day to day."

In another part of the post, 8 officers and 21 men of Flight B, 104th Observation Squadron, made camp after a hurried practice march from their base at Frederick, Md. The organization, commanded by Lieut. J. W. Rowe, left Frederick at 2:30 p. m. and arrived here at 4:30 p. m.

Officers said the flight was alerted at 8:30 a. m. and ordered to make the march without warning. While here, it will perform reconnaissance and photographic missions, against a hypothetical enemy supposed to have gained a foothold along Chesapeake Bay. Two observation airplanes were flown here to take part in the exercises, and communications will be established with the aid of the Twenty-ninth Signal Company, Twenty-ninth Division.

An advance detail of 8 officers and 150 men from the Forty-fourth Division is expected to reach here at noon tomorrow from Fort Dix, N. J., to prepare for arrival at 1:45 a. m. Friday of the entire division. The Forty-fourth is making a two-day road march from Fort Dix to the A. P. Hill Military Reservation, where it will engage in two weeks of maneuvers.

Gen. Reckord Creates Antitank Battalion

Fort George G. Meade, Md., July 15.—Capt. Charles S. Smithson, of Washington, has been tentatively selected for adjutant of the 104th Antitank Battalion, formally created today by Maj. Gen. Milton A. Reckord, commanding the Twenty-ninth Division. Capt. Smithson was adjutant of the 121st Engineers.

In an order issued today, Gen. Reckord established the new unit, to be composed of five batteries of 52 guns, formerly antitank batteries of the division's three field artillery regiments, and Company E, 121st Engineers, converted into an Engineer battery. The District Engineer company was recalled from A. P. Hill Military Reservation, in Caroline County, Va., to be incorporated in the antitank battalion.

It was understood the battalion would be brought together as soon as possible and would be housed in tents in the Regular Army area of Fort Meade to be vacated July 24 by R. O. T. C. units now training there. Lieut. Col. Edgar E. DeMuth commands the battalion.

Herbert Huffman Rites Tomorrow In Silver Spring

Funeral services for Herbert L. Huffman, who died Monday night on the eve of his seventieth birthday, will be at 2 p. m. tomorrow at his home, 800 Silver Spring Avenue, Silver Spring, Md. Burial will be in Cedar Hill Cemetery.

Mr. Huffman, a resident of Silver Spring for seven years, retired about a year ago as a policeman at the Blue Plains Home for the Aged and Infirm, Washington, where he was employed for 15 years. A former resident of Hyattsville, Md., Mr. Huffman was born in Luray, Va., where he lived most of his life. He had been ill since February.

Surviving are his wife, Susie; two daughters, Mrs. Mabel G. Brown, Mrs. Mae Burke, both of Silver Spring; a stepson, Charles Thompson, of Colmar Manor, Md., also two brothers, Mallory Huffman, of Arlington, Va., and James Huffman, of Luray, Va., and five sisters, the Misses Lula and Nana Huffman, of Luray; Mrs. Bertie Atwood, of Rileyville, Va.; Mrs. Eunice Mason, of Orange Grove, Fla., and Mrs. Nettie Grant, of Lanocka Harbor, N. J.

Mrs. Swinburne's Burial Tomorrow In Mount Olivet

Solemn requiem mass for Mrs. Catherine M. Swinburne, 72, will be celebrated tomorrow at 9 a. m. in St. Anthony's Church, Twelfth and Monroe Streets Northeast. Burial will follow in Mount Olivet Cemetery.

Mrs. Swinburne died Monday at her home, 3618 Tenth Street Northeast. She had been ill since last Christmas.

She was born in Phillipsburg, Pa., and moved to Washington in 1918. Since that time she had been an active member of St. Anthony's parish, a member of the society of Catholic Daughters of America, of the Catholic Foresters and of the third order of Saint Dominic.

Mrs. Swinburne leaves her husband, Michael J. Swinburne, a retired Government Priting Office compositor, 3618 Tenth Street Northeast; two sons, the Rev. William A. Swinburne, of Vancouver, Wash.; Joseph P. Swinburne, 3618 Tenth Street Northeast; three daughters, Sister Rita Clare and Sister Nolasco of St. Joseph's Community in Buffalo, N. Y., and Sister M. ODD BODKINS By FRED FOX and CHASE CRAI

THEY'VE TIED SYLVESTER NEAR A BOX OR SOMETHING. LET'S HAVE A LOOK!
NO, GWEN! YOU GO BACK TO THE HOUSE! INVESTIGATING THE BOX IS A MAN'S WORK! I'LL LOOK!
WHERE ARE THOSE MEN, DADDY?
ON YONDER HILL, WITH A BATTERY BOX AND A KIND OF PUMP HANDLE! I GUESS IT'S SAFE TO TELL YOU NOW!
ONE OF 'EM INVENTED A TERRIBLE EXPLOSIVE, CALLED "GLUMITE". HE'S DEMONSTRATING IT FOR THE GOVERNMENT MAN. THE OTHER FELLER IS RIP HIXLEY. HE DRAWS PITCHERS FER NEWSPAPERS!
IF THE "GLUMITE" WORKS, POOR SYLVESTER WON'T EVER BUTT NOBODY AGAIN. HE'LL BE A SACRIFICE TO SCIENCE!
DADDY!! SO WILL ODD BODKINS!

Some of the tops of the amusement world are doing what they can on the Treasury Department's "Millions for Defense" program over WJSV at 8 tonight to see that the Defense Savings Bonds campaign goes over the top.

Among those participating are Lily Pons, the noted coloratura star of the Metropolitan Opera . . . her husband, the popular radio orchestra leader, Andre Kostelanetz . . . the popular comics, George Burns and Gracie Allen . . . the lovable "Aldrich Family," with Ezra Stone . . . Baritone Barry Wood, of the "Hit Parade" . . Authoress Alice Duer Miller . . . Master of Ceremonies Walter O'Keefe . . . and Al Goodman's Orchestra and Ray Block's Choir.

Miss Pons is to sing the trilling "Bell Song" from "Lakme," with her husband conducting the orchestra, and an aria from Donizetti's "Daughter of the Regiment," which she revived at the Metropolitan last season.

"The Aldrich Family" are to appear in a specially-written skit by Author Clifford Goldsmith, who, you'll remember, wrote the long-running stage comedy, "What A Life."

Burns and Allen, from Hollywood, are to appear in one of their inimitable bits of comic insanity. Miss Miller is to read part of her new epic poem, "The White Cliffs of Dover." And Barry Wood, who's to be a regular feature of the "Millions for Defense" hour from now on, is going to sing a group of Irish folk songs in the "Songs of America" section of the show.

The Post Radio Highlights

4:30, WOL—Racing: Massachusetts Handicap at Suffolk Downs.

Contract Bridge

J. L. had trouble selecting an opening lead against declarer's four-spade contract. This is how he describes his problem:

"Sitting South in a rubber-bridge game, I held these cards as the opening dealer against East's four-spade contract:

♠ A 7 2
♡ K J 9 3
◇ 8 7 4
♣ 6 3 2

"The bidding went:

East	South	West	North
1 ♠	Pass	1 NT.	Pass
2 ♡	Pass	2 NT.	Pass
3 ♡	Pass	3 ♠	Pass
4 ♠	Pass	Pass	Pass

"Declarer made his contract, but my partner afterward told me that a spade opening would have set him one trick. On my cards and the bidding, was there any way for me to select a spade to open?"

Declarer has shown at least five cards in each of the majors. Dummy's continued no-trump bidding, plus his reluctance to support one of East's suits, probably indicates a holding of three trumps, two hearts and four cards each in diamonds and clubs. In that case, declarer will be able to use dummy's trumps unless South prevents him.

South could probably take three heart tricks provided the suit is led to him enough times and provided dummy cannot ruff his heart winners. South must therefore knock out dummy's trumps, and his opening lead should be a small spade.

The small trump is preffered so that the ace will retain for J. L. control of the trump suit and provide a certain entry if he later decides on a different defense. The trump opening, however, looks like South's best chance and when he gets in the lead again with a heart he can play the ace and a small spade, exhausting dummy of the suit. suit.

Labor Dispute Closes Down Steel Plant

By the Associated Press

A Michigan steel plant employing 8,000 was closed by a labor dispute yesterday, but this and other current work stoppages were viewed by a Washington official as minor incidents in a generally improved defense production picture.

While C. I. O. pickets were patrolling the main plant of the Great Lakes Steel Corporation near Detroit, Sidney Hillman told a House committee in Washington that "there is not a single strike in the Nation today that is troubling the OPM."

The associate director of the Office of Prdouction Management went on to say that production in the United States was greater than that of the totalitarian states. Defense industries, he said, were employing 2,700,000 as against 400,000 a year ago and an estimated 5,700,000 next year.

Workers Refuse to Wait

Discussing the Great Lakes dispute, an official of the Steel Workers Organizing Committee said that the steel corporation had agreed to sign a contract at 2 p. m. Wednesday, but that the workers had refused to wait. The bulk of the plant's output was said to be of a defense nature.

A stone-throwing incident accompanied the beginning of mass picketing at the Bendi., N. J., plant of Air Associates, Inc., where a labor dispute has been in progress four days. A few C. I. O. United Auto Workers started picketing Saturday, demanding reinstatement of nine discharged workers. The plant employs 700 and makes aircraft equipment.

Conferences among representatives of the union, company and OPM have failed to bring about a settlement.

C. I. O. workers also were threatening to tie up another defense plant near Detroit. Charles Cowl, field representative of the S. W. O. C., said that a strike would be called Thursday morning at the Great Lakes Engineering Works, a shipbuilding firm.

NLRB Election Asked

The OPM has asked the workers "not to defy the Government," but Cowl said the union was "defying a firm that is defying the Government by refusing to let its employes choose their own unions."

The C. I. O. group is asking a Labor Board election. The A. F. L. Boilermakers Union and the Independent Downriver Shipbuilders Association, which holds a labor contract with the company, were reported to have refused to agree to an election.

Hillman testified before a committee investigating migrant labor that "the democratic system is better for production as well as for a way of life."

"The weakness of the totalitarian system is that those nations have lost the cooperation of the worker," he continued. "Hitler wanted stability by using slave labor and slave management."

He added that "Hitler has done nothing that we should imitate."

Telling of the increase in defense employment, he said:

"Many, on the other hand, have lost jobs because nondefense industries have closed down in many places. Unless we make proper provisions in the way of redistribution of workers who have lost jobs through the action of priorities there will be too many unemployed for comfort."

Earlier, Hillman testified that 1,400,000 additional workers would be required up to April, 1942.
